EDITOR'S FOREWORD

It's been a hell of a year. It's been a hell of a last two years. I was sad when it reached the point of not being able to do a Price Guide in 1995. But seeing one's business collapse in circumstances beyond one's control is bad enough. There are no winners in a liquidation. Only the company that administrates the process and takes its cut. To see it all happen again from afar after having left East Barnet Road was an experience I would not want to put my worst enemy through. All one can do is pick up the pieces and start again.

This new Price Guide has been very therapeutic for me. A new Publisher. A new Database System. A new Dual Price Format. It's been like writing two whole new books as it has been such a long time since the last U.K. Guide (July 1994). John Skoulides has been great. We delight in arguing over prices and dreaming of the day when the book will be what we want it to be. That can only be done with your help. There is a new Editorial Address. Don't wait to be asked or cajoled or begged. We're tired of doing that. The Price Guide should be a platform for everybody to have their say. So write. Anytime.

My thanks list is important. Louise, my better half, for all her help and encouragement. My children Benjamin and Ella for scribbling all over my computer printouts. And John Skoulides, without whom this book would not have been possible (he in turn would like to say "thank you" to his better half Sue and to Rick Appleby for constant research help).

A very special mention must be reserved for David Dupont and Helen Sawyer for their typesetting and design and a thousand other little jobs that you don't see and they receive no recognition for (like rescuing advertisers from major disasters with their copy).

Major thanks also to Steve Holland, compiler of the British section which is now looking somewhere near what we both dream about. It is surely the best British listing ever produced.

The roll call of thanks goes on to all the main and other contributors and market reporters who are credited elsewhere in this book. I look forward to the day when that contributors' listing runs into many pages.

The people at Titan Books cannot go without recognition. My thanks to Nick Landau, Katy Wild, Simon Furman, Ruth and Siobhan and anybody else who has been involved in the production of this book including Beverley at Marot.

Howard Hughes, Colin Clarke, Kelvin, Brian and all at Commercial Colour Press know they have my thanks and it has been a pleasure doing a sixth book with them.

While Alan Austin never seeks the limelight, I once again acknowledge him as the founding father of price guides in this country and his rightful place as "The Guvnor".

I seem to spend so much of my time mentioning Bob Overstreet as the author of the very first price guide for comic books. And rightly so for all he has done for this industry.

Penultimate thanks to Tony Petrou for all his work on the computing side. We're up, we're down, we agree, we disagree. But ultimately I acknowledge the amount of work he has done to make this book the best it can possibly be. And thanks also to his better half Demi for her hospitality when we're working late into the night.

My final thanks are reserved for the cover artist Gary Frank and especially the foreword writer Colin Baker who went out of his way for me.

Read and enjoy.

ABOUT THE COVER

In keeping with asking Britain's top artists to provide a cover, I was encouraged by Steve Holland to ask Mr Gary Frank whose work I have known for some time. I have been particularly impressed with his work on The Incredible Hulk. As he was doing a Sabretooth one-shot comic at the time of asking and as Marvel Comics have always been very helpful in clearing cover images quickly and efficiently for me, I thought that the least I could do was publicise one of their characters. Illustration of Sabretooth by Gary Frank. Copyright © 1996 Marvel Entertainment Group, Inc.

Foreword by COLIN BAKER

The word "comics" conjures for me memories of Rochdale Covered Market where I used to spend my hard-earned pocket-money on my favourite cowboy comics – Tom Mix, Hopalong Cassidy and Lash Larue. I also remember being enthralled by the adventures of young Billy Batson who with one magic word – "SHAZAM!" – transformed himself into Captain Marvel, the world's mightiest mortal. Then these new boys, Superman and Batman came along...

When I played Doctor Who in his sixth incarnation, I enjoyed a strange experience for any actor, that of seeing himself in comic-strip form. Some versions were flattering, though some of the better artists drew me a little too well! I have even contributed to the genre myself and wrote Age of Chaos, a Doctor Who graphic novel, for Marvel Comics and at the risk of the accusation of unsubtlety I'd be delighted to repeat the experience. I'm so glad to see the good Doctor making a comeback. Paul McGann is a very fine actor and will realise very quickly, as I did, that it's a peach of a part. I'm also glad that a new generation of children – like my four, the eldest of whom is ten – will now have a Doctor of their very own.

If you are reading this you will appreciate the value of some of the rarest and most sought after comics, the complexities of collecting and the need for such an authoritative catalogue. And remembering the Classic Comics series I used to buy forty years ago, like Black Beauty and Lorna Doone, at the very least it's a great way of getting kids into the world of fiction and story-telling and the worlds of the imagination in time and space.

ADVERTISEMENTS

ABBREVIATIONS AND TERMINOLOGY USED IN THIS GUIDE

Arrival Date	pencil markings on the cover of a comic that indicate when that comic was received by the distributor or news stand dealer to be sold on the news stand. The date is usually two months prior to the cover date. Much more of a U.S. market phenomenon and concern
Ashcan	a prototype comic put together by a publisher to secure title and format copyright. Usually new black and white covers stapled around an existing comic
Baxter	a type of high quality heavier stock white paper
B&W	Black and White artwork
Bi-Monthly	published every two months
Bi-Weekly	published every two weeks
Bondage cover	usually shows a glamorous female bound and/or gagged
Bookshelf Format	Marvel's equivalent of DC's Prestige Format: a special edition of a comic that approaches a graphic novel
Bronze Age	generally accepted to be the period of comics from 1970-1980. More widely used in America than the U.K
Cameo	a brief appearance by a character (comic book or real) in a comic story. Usually defined as being 2 or 3 panels only
(c)or(cy)	the copyright date or copyright year on an otherwise undated publication
CCA	The Comics Code Authority that issued a Seal of Approval on most mainstream comics from April 1955
Digest	a paperback collected edition, smaller than regular comic size, most usually reprints. 4" x 6"
DS	double size: an issue with twice the number of pages than a normal size comic ie. 64 pages
Dust Shadow	when an edge of a comic, front or back cover, is exposed to a layer of dust over the years, leaving a dark shadow
Embossed	when a pattern is pressed into a cover to form a raised surface
Film	a film adaptation or a comic based on concepts from a film.
1st	first appearance, of a character or of a character in that title. Can also be used for objects, places etc flashback	a sequence injected into a story either by the narrators or a character remembering or re-telling the story in some part
Foil cover	a special coloured cover on card-stock paper with a "metallic" sheen
Foxing	tiny red brown or red-orange spores in paper caused by damp. This is most prevalent on Golden Age and some Silver Age material
GA	Golden Age: commonly accepted to be 1938–1945.
Graphic Novel	paperback or hardback special edition of a comic, high production value text, art and reproduction. Term first coined by Will Eisner in the late 1970s. Usually 8" x 11" in size.
holo-grafix cover	a silver shard printed effect on a cover that produces different colours radiating outward as the cover is rolled around in a light source intro	introducing (usually a character)
JLA	Justice League of America
JLI	Justice League International
JSA	Justice Society of America
Late Golden Age	the period of comics from 1945-1949
Late Silver Age	the period of comics from 1966-1969
LD	Limited Distribution in the UK. Applies mainly to post 1970 comics. More recently denotes the fact that a high demand item has sold quickly and is scarce in its availability less common	a term that is still being tested referring to a noticeable scarcity of a comic that was previously thought not to be scarce
LSH	Legion of Super-Heroes
Mag	Magazine format or size
Mando	a type of high quality paper
Marvel Chipping	a defect peculiar to Marvel comics of the 1950's and 1960's in the trimming process that resulted in chips out of the right edge of the cover
Mature Readers	a comic labelled for Mature Readers, not intended for children
Modern Age	generally accepted to be from 1980 to the present day
MS	Mini or Maxi-series: an intentionally finite series
Mylar	inert plastic protective sleeve, stiffer and safer for storage purposes than an ordinary plastic bag
ND	Not Distributed in the UK
nn	No number: an unnumbered issue
OS	one-shot: a single issue, not part of a series
Pre Golden Age	the period of comics from 1933-1938
Pre Silver Age	the period of comics from 1950-1955
Prestige Format	DC's equivalent of Marvel's Bookshelf Format: a special edition of a comic approaching a graphic novel

Printing defect	faults with a comic as a result of the production process. These include spine and cover wrinkles, extra paper "tags" on pages folded back in, pages still joined at top/bottom edges etc. While these still affect the grade of the comic they are different from Grading Defects which occur as a result of wear and tear
Quarterly	published every three months
Rare	comics that are seldom seen in collections that come to light or are offered for sale in shops or on lists. Rarity may be due to original distribution or production circumstances. Applies readily to both new and old comics
re-done	a story re-told with new artwork
SA	Silver Age, 1956-1965
Scarce	a comic that is generally harder to obtain than most owing to original distribution circumstances. Applies mostly to pre 1970s comics
Scarcer	a comic that's noticeably not around for no apparent reason, usually applied to newer comics and is a term that's still being tested, like "less common"
Splash page	usually the first story art page, one single panel
Squarebound	a comic glue-bound with a square spined cover
sub crease	a vertical crease caused when a comic was folded in half for subscription mailing
3-D comic	comic produced in two colour tinted layers which produces a three-dimensional effect when viewed through special glasses
Toy	a comic title based on a toy product
Trade paperback	a 7"x10" paperback collection of a series of chosen stories, usually reprints
TV	a comic based on a Television show
Very Scarce	a comic that is harder to obtain than a Scarce issue, usually as a result of a production fault like a lost shipment or distribution inequality between US and UK. Also factors of high collector interest. Applies more readily to pre 1970 comics but can occasionally be used for newer comics
Very Rare	a comic that almost never turns up owing to original distribution or production reasons coupled with original and subsequent high collector interest resulting in many copies staying in collections for years away from the general circulation
X-over	Cross-over, when a character appears in another character's title so that the narrative directly continues. These occasions are usually multi part stories and all parts are necessary to enjoy the full narrative

EXAMPLES OF USAGE

Neal Adams, Wrightson art	contains artwork by Adams and Wrightson, but not on the same strip
Neal Adams/Wrightson art	Neal Adams pencils, inked by Wrightson
Superman,Batman in 24	both appear in issue 24 in different stories
Superman/Batman in 24	both co-star in a story in issue 24
FEATURES	new stories, previously unpublished
REPRINT FEATURES	stories, often back-ups, which have been previously published elsewhere

ERRORS AND FURTHER INFORMATION

Although assembled directly from personal observations wherever possible a project of this complexity will inevitably contain errors. If you find any inaccuracies or omissions in the body of the text or in any of the featured articles, please write and tell us, so that corrections can be made; any contributions will be credited in the next edition.

FOR THOSE SENDING A SUBSTANTIAL BODY OF INFORMATION, THE BEST 5 WILL RECEIVE A SPECIAL SIGNED AND NUMBERED COPY OF THE GUIDE. THESE 5 COPIES WILL BE UNIQUE.

Have we omitted an artist whose work you feel should be noted, or ignored a title of collector interest? With your suggestions and help, the 1997/8 edition can be more complete and comprehensive. We would also like to hear from you if you have a particular field of knowledge; Canadian comics or British reprints of American material, for instance.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION

WELCOME to the 7th edition of the Comic Book Price Guide. This is in more ways than one a completely new book, having been re-designed to accommodate its most important new feature of dual-pricing for both the British and American markets.

For those not familiar with the history of the British Guide, particularly American dealers and collectors who may be seeing this book for the first time, this is how it went. The British Price Guide assumes its pedigree from the very fine pioneering work done by British dealer and fanzine editor Alan Austin (still in my opinion "The Guv'nor"), Justin Ebbs and Gary Fox, the 4th edition of which was released in 1982. In 1989, the 5th edition was released when myself and Lance Rickman assumed the agony and the ecstasy of production. We achieved what they said could not be done and moved the Guide into a new stage of professional packaging and widespread exposure.

Much experience was gained and after having taken over the sole responsibility of producing the Guide, the 6th Edition came out in April 1990 with a new look, a new format (professionally typeset) and a more comprehensive listing. Just to confuse matters I decided to establish a numbering sequence for this and future Guides, settling on a Number 2 as it was the second one that I had done. Number 3 came out in April 1991 with 30% more back-issue information and listings extended even further back into the early Silver Age. Numbers 4, 5 and 6 followed and this book is number 7.

This Guide, as with every other Guide that we have done, must be seen very much as a work-in-progress, a basis upon which to build for the future.

Where The Guide used to be divided into 4 sections of D.C., MARVEL, INDEPENDENTS and BRITISH with a general introduction to each, it was decided that this time around that all the American comics would be listed alpha-numerically with the section on British comics remaining separate at the end.

The British section is compiled by Mr. Steve Holland with help from a number of his associates and overseen by me.

It is necessarily a selection of the most sought after material though a definitive encyclopaedia and price guide of British comics is in development.

The British section dates largely from the beginning of the 20th Century and concentrates on that particularly area of science fiction and TV related material starting with The Eagle in 1950. This listing has also been expanded to include more British publications than ever before and once again a special Classics Illustrated section from Mr Dan Malan, the foremost collector and historian of such material.

The pricing rationale for so vast and complex a subject is continually evolving as is more fully explained under the section PRICING STRUCTURE. Where the mechanics of the mathematics might necessarily break down, particularly with reference to more recent comics, a certain amount of judgement and common sense must be used. The more recent the comic, the less the margin between the near-mint and mint, to the point where they become more or less the same. And where the mathematics used to produce unsightly values like £13.20 or £3.60, we have devised a rounding up and rounding down formula to make for whole numbers in the Good and Fine columns.

As shall no doubt be repeated elsewhere, IF A COMIC IS GRADED ACCURATELY AND FAIRLY, THE INFORMATION IN THIS BOOK WILL PROVIDE EXACTLY WHAT IT INTENDS – A GUIDE.

COLLECTING COMIC BOOKS

The collecting of comic books (or PANELOLOGY, to use the more scientific term) is at once fascinating and frustrating, exhaustive and rewarding, both creatively and often financially. Many people rediscover their interest in comics in later years (wishing Mother hadn't "thrown that pile of comics out, dear.") while others start collecting young and carry on building up their collections. This General Introduction highlights certain points worth remembering when buying new or old comics either on a regular basis or for the first time. This introduction is also written with the British market very much in mind though most of its points are universally applicable.

COMIC SHOPS AND SHOP ETIQUETTE

Brand new comics at the Newsagent or in specialist shops are not necessarily in MINT condition. They are more likely to be so at the comics shops rather than news-stands or newsagents as most comic shops now individually bag their new comics but they should still be checked for proper cut and trim, no creases or corners folded over, no ink stains inside or any other defects that may arise from packaging and delivery. When handling a shop's back issue stock, a certain amount of care should be exercised. Individual comics are usually in alphabetical and numerical order in back-issue boxes and should not be shuffled around. Don't bend comics backwards to see the covers or thrust them carelessly back into place as you could be causing damage far in excess of the amount you will eventually spend. Comics should not be removed from bags without first checking with a member of staff as some dealers prefer to open and re-seal the bags themselves. Thoughtless customers soon become unpopular in any shop while careful browsers are universally welcomed.

BUYING NEW COMICS and BACK ISSUES

When buying back issues it's worth making a detailed "wants list" of a defined area of collecting, be it titles or characters, themes or artists. ABOVE ALL ELSE, IT PAYS TO SHOP AROUND as prices can vary tremendously and with patience a good deal can be obtained. Having said that, it is also worthwhile concentrating on one shop or one dealer to build up a rapport and relationship that may lead to more personal service and better deals. It is also a good idea to budget strictly and collect within one's means though this often proves to be the greatest point of frustration and even more so if one chooses to collect higher condition (and therefore higher priced) comics. Collectors are becoming more and more aware of grading and condition and many set a minimum acceptable grade or improve the general condition of a collection by gradual replacement (upgrading). As ever it is all a matter of personal choice as some prefer to collect entire runs of high-grade comics and others just want to read the comics and stories whatever their condition.

PROFIT OR FUN?

As in any other dealing there is a certain element of financial speculation in the market where current fashions, hyped-up demand and limited supplies can realise quick profits for the well-informed investor. Recent market reports in American publications indicate that more and more businessmen are treating Golden Age comics especially as an easily-negotiable and high-return investment.

A personal collection, however, that is seen only in terms of capital investment is all too easy to mismanage. Potential profit can become actual loss and the pleasure of collecting and dealing can often turn to disappointment. ABOVE ALL ELSE, I BELIEVE THAT COMICS ARE MEANT PRIMARILY FOR FUN AND ENJOYMENT to be read and appreciated for what they are and to be collected and dealt in on that basis. Any financial gain is purely a bonus and a reassurance that money can be well invested if so desired.

SELLING YOUR COLLECTION

When it comes to selling, a vendor has two courses of action – sell to a dealer or sell the comics yourself. Selling to a shop or dealer cuts out a lot of time and hassle but with their overheads and profit margins to consider, only a certain percentage - often around half and sometimes less – of a comic's market value will be given. Some may take comics in trade against purchase of other items but again percentages will be lower as any comics they take still have to be processed and sold. Selling comics yourself can be time consuming and involve certain costs but may realise higher gains.

Advertisements in fan publications and stalls at comic marts and conventions are the usual way of reaching potential customers. The disadvantage is that the rarer or the most popular comics will sell quite quickly, leaving you with a less saleable collection of low-interest titles.

STARTING A BUSINESS

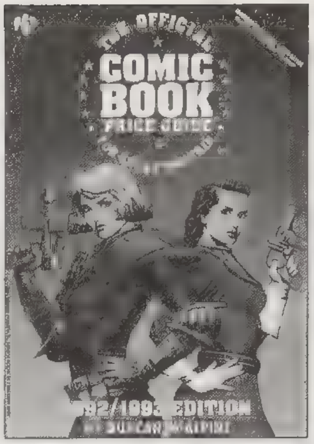
(see also the article written by Suresh Tolat further on in this book)

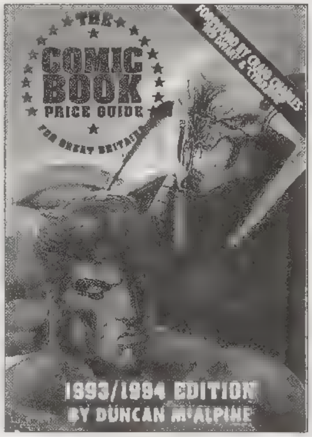
With the continued growth of comics in this country as an industry it is tempting for a novice collector to start up in business, assuming that all dealers make huge profits and keep the best items for themselves. All too often a prized collection is used to start up a fledgling business with the best of intentions only to see it frittered away and wasted.

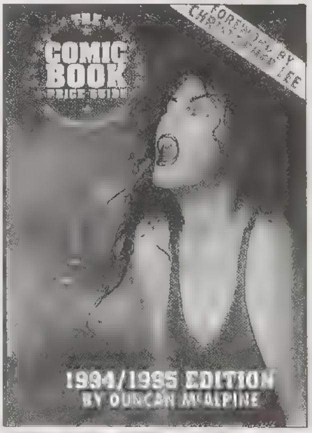
If there is an intention to turn collecting into a business or just start one having observed from the outside, it is essential to seek professional advice. Banks will provide all the information you need on finances and distribution companies will help you (or should do!) with stock control. Either way, a few points to bear in mind may help. These points are fairly obvious to most people but worth re-iterating nonetheless.

1) Have a very clear idea of your intended target-market and the size of your operation.
2) Have a very clear and professional business plan set out for at least 18 months ahead.
3) Have a very clear idea of your intended image or logo design and how you are going to advertise yourself. There is an awful lot of competition out there! You need to get your name known.
4) Be sure that you are well versed in the current state of the market. There are a number of magazines and books that are essential reading such as Comics International, Previews, Overstreet's Fan and Krause Publications' Comic Buyers Guide.
5) Be sure that you can afford the proper amount of time to your business, no matter how small or side-line. All dealers will tell you that everything takes longer than one might think. Be prepared for some long hours!
6) Seek advice from dealers, particularly those who have been established for some time but realise that they are not going to give away their trade secrets that they may have learned after years of hard work.
7) Try to find a new way of doing things, offering a level of service that makes you stand out from the rest.
8) Be approachable from other dealers in terms of doing business as things often come about after a chance meeting or conversation.
9) If employing others, make sure you are definite and clear in your relationship with them. Too often friends can fall out, particularly over money!
10) Above all else approach your business with common sense and if in doubt, talk to someone.

These are by no means hard and fast rules to easy success but they are obvious considerations worth stating here. As such there is no formal training to be a comics dealer though a knowledge of financial matters coupled with expertise in a particular field is obviously advantageous.







THE DISTRIBUTION AND SCARCITY OF COMICS

The relative scarcity of certain comics owing to original production factors or distribution patterns are denoted throughout the Guide very carefully. While it is impossible to ascribe actual numbers to the various terms that are used, every effort through consultation and comparison has been made to be accurate though the scarcity and distribution of some issues remains contentious. Below is a list of generally accepted terms in the U.K. market in order of degree of scarcity.

L.D.

LIMITED OR LOW DISTRIBUTION IN THE U.K.

This is a term for the purposes of this book that applies to the U.K. market and should be noted by American dealers and collectors. A good example of L.D. would be D.C.'s Crisis on Infinite Earths #1 which had a generally lower than usual distribution around the U.K. and as it didn't turn up in all the Newsagents it was a little harder to get in some areas. L.D. is a term that generally applies to comics after 1970 or thereabouts.

Please note however that owing to the number of specialist shops throughout the UK, ever growing distribution companies and more U.K. dealers bringing back quantities of material from U.S. conventions, the concept of Low Distribution of a comic through all the normal outlets has lost much of its meaning in the last few years. The term L.D. is now more often applied to a high-demand item that sells out very quickly, is therefore immediately sought after by fans and collectors and does not often turn up in collections bought by dealers a few months later.

N.D.

NON OR NOT DISTRIBUTED IN THE U.K.

to the usual network to Newsagents. These comics are thus harder to obtain than Low Distributed comics. This term is most traditionally applicable to certain 1970's comics. American dealers and collectors will note throughout this book that there are quite a few comics with this N.D. accreditation. There have, however, always been N.D. comics as far as the U.K. market is concerned in fluctuating degrees as prior to the mid 1970s there were no large-scale distributors of comics so an N.D comic then was considerably harder to obtain. More recently with an increase in the distribution of the N.D issues to the specialist shops, they have become a little easier to obtain so the concept of NON DISTRIBUTED has increasingly less meaning but because they are still imported on a comparatively limited basis, generally by air freight or mail order by dealers and collectors, they still remain scarce in the general circulation. An example in the U.K. market would be the run of Amazing Spiderman #121-214 which were not distributed in the U.K at the time of publication in order not to clash with the Marvel U.K reprints of the original U.S. Spiderman stories that began in 1972 (see Mighty World of Marvel and Spiderman Comics Weekly in the British section).

SCARCE IN THE U.K.

A TERM GENERALLY APPLIED TO PRE 1970s COMICS

as those being harder to come by than most. Actual numbers of a particular issue are difficult to determine. The problem with applying the term is deciding whether a comic is scarce owing to original circumstances (like missing shipments to the U.K. of American Flagg #19) or to popularity and demand and therefore collectors sitting on copies leaving fewer in circulation. I believe that both reasons make the use of the term valid. It may be noted that the terms L.D. and SCARCE are virtually inter-changeable as they both mean more or less the same thing. I prefer to use SCARCE for older items such as Fantastic Four #51 (i.e. pre 1970) and L.D. for more recent ones such as Fantastic Four #286 (i.e. post 1970) as concerns and awareness of limited distribution and indeed the coining of the term are more recent phenomena. In some instances a comic can however be SCARCE as well as N.D. in the U.K. market and as such may also be called VERY SCARCE.

VERY SCARCE IN THE U.K.

HARDER TO OBTAIN THAN SCARCE AND MAY BE VIRTUALLY INTER-CHANGEABLE WITH THE LATER TERM N.D. SCARCE.

Once again the use of the term VERY SCARCE would be for older items that is, pre 1970s comics. An indication of this particular degree comes when back issue collections are bought by shops or dealers and the same recurring numbers of certain titles are missing for one reason or another. Silver Surfer (1st Series) #4 is a good example. Being a thicker issue at 68 pages than a regular comic with a cross-over appearance of Thor and considered a collectible even cult title, Silver Surfer #4 is a comic that is generally deemed VERY SCARCE in the U.K. market. A newer comic that I would rather call N.D. SCARCE in the U.K. market would be Captain America King Size Annual #4, not distributed to UK newsagents and scarce even over in America owing perhaps to a production problem or high demand/lower print run at the time.

RARE IN THE U.K.

HARDER STILL TO OBTAIN THAN ANY OF THE ABOVE.

These comics do not often turn up in bought collections in the U.K. or seen for sale in comics shops or on Mailing lists. Classic examples in the U.K. market would be Avengers #9, Fantastic Four #7, Spiderman #18, X Men #8. It is a term that, owing to its minimal use may be applied to older as well as newer comics.

VERY RARE IN THE U.K.

ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO OBTAIN AND NOT EVEN SEEN BY THE MAJORITY OF PEOPLE IN ANY CONDITION.

Once again it is a term that may be applied to any comic regardless of its age so newer example may be the G.I. Joe Treasury Edition and older examples would be issues of certain esoteric romance or humour titles. In particular it would refer to Golden Age comics, some examples can be counted in tens and twenties on both sides of the Atlantic (see The Top 50 Rarest Section). Whatever contentions and arguments remain all the terms from SCARCE to VERY RARE must be used with extreme caution in order to preserve their meaning. THE INDISCRIMINATE AND UNINFORMED USE OF THE TERMS RENDERS THEM WORTHLESS as it must be remembered that any degrees of scarcity of any comic must take into consideration the picture of the market as a whole and not the local absence of something in any one area.

CENTS OR PENCE?

The majority of comics in circulation in the U.K have cover prices in old (that is pre-1971 decimalisation examples like 9d or 10d) or new pence (that is post 1971 decimalisation examples like 6p or 15p) either imprinted in the top left or right-hand corners or ink-stamped somewhere on the cover Comics distributed in America always have their prices in cents. Over the last few years comics set for distribution in the U.K have both sets of prices. Some collectors prefer to have cents copies of comics as a mark of a kind of purism. Other collectors prefer to have pence copies because that is what they may remember reading as children. Comic dealers in this country generally do not distinguish between the two although in the case of earlier or more sought-after issues cents copies are sought after/valued more. It is in the case of RARE or KEY books that this difference becomes more marked. A genuinely near-mint copy of Incredible Hulk #1 for example is listed in this guide at £6,000 A near-mint cents copy of the same comic would be valued more highly. One reason for this is that the American market does not very highly regard pence copies of comics though this varies tremendously from dealer to dealer. Indeed it has been noticed particularly in the last year that more and more British priced copies of Silver Age material are appearing on American dealers lists with anything from about a 25% less price tag to actual parity with a presumably cents copy of the same comic

It would be a fallacy to say that the one comic is inferior to the other. BOTH ARE ESSENTIALLY EXACTLY THE SAME, appearing on the same paper printed at the same time on the same machine on the same day. A pence-priced (or black) plate would have been substituted towards the end of the print run of each comic to print up the overseas market issues for distribution. One cannot be said to be an inferior reprint of the other (for more expansion on this matter, see the article dealing with the differences between the U.K. and U S. markets to be found further on in this book)

Broadly speaking the question of cents or pence does not matter for the vast majority of comics. It is only really of importance on rare or key issues and even then only on older items and there seems to be a traditional 20-25% difference in price although this is very approximate: as has been already indicated American dealers generally regard pence copies as inferior and will not trade in them or if they do they will offer very low percentages. Whether this situation will change depends on the usual factors of supply and demand If unrestored, high grade copies of key issues are demanded, where else can American dealers go apart from pence copies if the supply of unrestored cents copies is drying up?

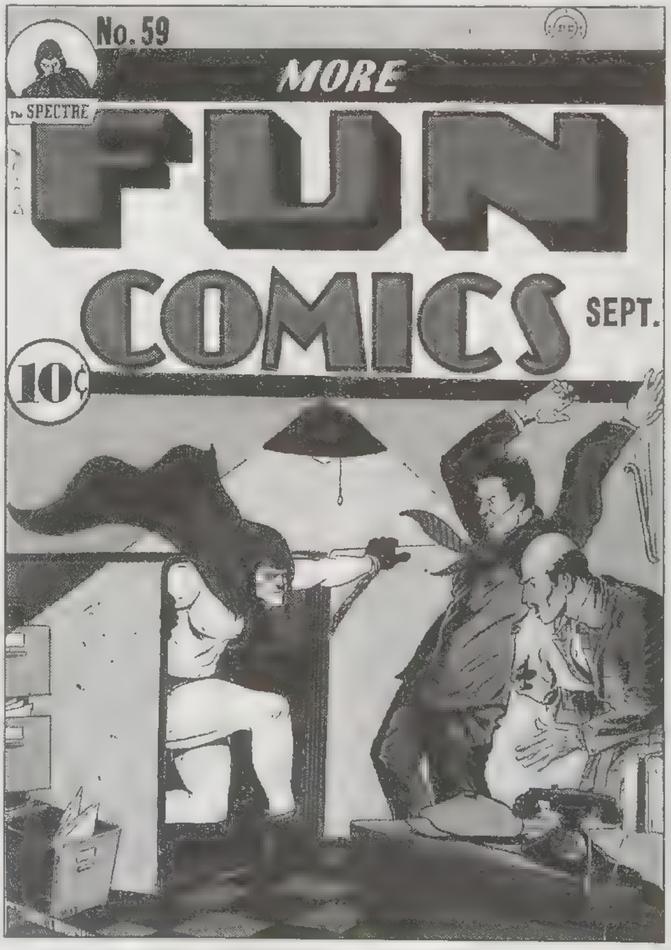
KEY ISSUES

The term KEY ISSUE means a comic that features an important event like the first appearance of a character, the origin story of a character or an issue that is historically important as the first of its type. Very often it is the first issue of a character's title. The term originated in America and as such American dealers and collectors have found an almost innumerable number of Keys, particularly in recent years. At times it seems that any excuse is found to make an individual comic that much more valuable, particularly one that was not selling in any great number before! An example would be issues of DC's Omega Men featuring the first appearances of a character called Lobo which for years were consigned to the depths of bargain boxes The situation is such that the terms "Major Keys" and "Minor Keys" has become prevalent. This Guide's position is that where possible it draws attention to these issues but takes this opportunity to urge caution with any comics that appear to be artificially inflated for no apparent reason It is difficult to know where to draw the line at calling a comic a 'key issue" and how far one should go in paying for a desired item Once again it is a matter of personal choice. If new to collecting comics it would be wise to seek expert advice

Those Key issues that have been established as such for some time however may be prized as items of great interest. Showcase #4 as the comic that reintroduced the Golden Age hero The Flash in a new, or Silver Age, incarnation and the first appearances of The Fantastic Four, Spiderman, The Hulk and Thor or even a more modern instance of the first appearance of the new X-Men in Giant Size X-Men #1 for example are all well established Key issues and in top condition are able to command multiples of Guide.

MULTIPLES OF GUIDE

The concept of "multiples of Guide" again originated in America when a particular collection called the Mile High Collection (later renamed, and rightly so, The Edgar Church Collection) came to light in 1977. A collection of 22,000 comics from the late 1930s to the early 1950s was discovered in Denver, Colorado. The overall condition of these comics was of an unprecedented high grade owing to the very favourable storage conditions and the fact that they were all part of the same collection bought as new and ageing together, gave these comics a unique feel rather than a collection assimilated over the years of varying grades and degrees of deterioration (for more information on this and other pedigree collections, see The Photo-Journal Guide to Comic Books Volume 1 by Ernie Gerber, an excellent and breath-taking set of books). The comics were immediately sold at twice the listed price in the then edition of the American Overstreet Guide. They changed hands over the years at ever spiralling multiples. One American dealer/collector sold a large number to another at four times Guide across the board, no matter what the comic or condition. In this way the Mile High Collection assumed a certain pedigree. Other notable high grade collections have since been discovered – The San Francisco, The Larsen The Denver and The Allentown are considered to be the next best in roughly that order and in most cases (but not all) the Key issues such as Detective Comics #27 (featuring the first appearance of Batman) or Batman #1 and Superman #1 etc. have been of the highest order in terms of condition. These collections often come with a certificate of authentication or are easily identifiable by certain characteristics or markings and as such represent some of the best copies available of a particular issue on the world market and as such have excellent investment potential. They are for the most part Golden Age collections that is featuring comics from the Golden Age of comic book heroes from the late 1930s to the late 1940s.



More Fun Comics #59 from the Edgar Church Collection.
Note the detail of "D-7-28" marked in distributor's crayon pencil top left of the cover. Most comics from this collection have variations on this coding and as such this is the identifying mark

The most significant collection of recent years has been the White Mountain Collection of high grade Silver Age comics, much of which was sold at a San Diego Comicon. Key issues from this such as Spiderman #1 and Showcase #22 (1st Silver Age Green Lantern) have commanded multiples of Guide prices.

What this has meant for the discerning collector has been an increased awareness and valuation of comics that are in unusually nice condition, genuinely Very Fine or Near Mint. While Key issues in pedigree collections may command prices at three and four times the listed Guide price, comics that turn up individually in very high grade may vary as widely in price and as such more and more research is being done for this Guide to draw attention to particular issues. Key issues that are offered in unusually high grade but may not be from a pedigree collection may command prices over and above the listed Guide price (say Guide and a quarter or Guide and a half) though not in the accepted levels of 2 to 5 times Guide that the top pedigree collections can command. Outstanding examples of "multiples of Guide" are seven times Guide for a More Fun #52 (1st appearance of The Spectre) one particular year and more recently eight times Guide for an All Star Comics #8 (1st Wonder Woman).

A very noticeable distinction between the U.K. and U.S. markets is that in the former there is a marked resistance to the concept of multiples of Guide. This has been particularly true in the last couple of years. This point is discussed further in the article on the U.K. and U.S. markets and also under PRICING STRUCTURES.

Having taken all the above into consideration above all else this Guide advises those who are new to the field of collecting comics that it is essential to seek out professional advice before parting with large sums of money.

FAKES AND FORGERIES

Inevitably where vast amounts of money are concerned, the problem of fakes and forgeries come into their own, particularly as the technology for the repair and restoration of comics gains in expertise and capability every year. It is unlikely that Silver and Golden Age forgeries can be created from scratch though there have been instances over the years of File Copies of key issues being created with elaborate stamps and approval ticks and signatures. Much of this is the subject of debate and speculation. Where possible and where known, details are given of forged comics that have appeared such as the counterfeit Cerebus the Aardvark #1 or Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1. No value is given to these comics, as is the case quite rightly so with American guides.

THE REPAIR AND RESTORATION OF COMIC BOOKS

The repair and upgrading of comic books is still in its infancy in the U.K. That is to say that while it is a multi-million dollar industry in America, the full-time professional repair of comic books in this country is almost unheard of. The healthy market in America for Golden Age comics particularly from 1938-1948 means that there is a demand for repairing and effectively upgrading poorer condition copies of comics, very much more so for origin, first appearance or key issues. Comics purchased for hundreds of dollars and repaired for hundreds could be sold for thousands. This has led to a marked back-lash against restoration from time to time in the U.S. and a definite air of suspicion in the U.K. and certainly on both sides of the Atlantic against unskilled hack-jobs that even detract from the value of the comic in its original if poor condition. There is now a very definite distinction between comics that have been repaired by an amateur (often abbreviated in American catalogues by rep.) and those that have been professionally restored (often abbreviated as rest.) It is worthwhile for U.K. collectors and dealers for that matter getting hold of American catalogues and listings for examples of grading terminology and indications of restoration.

It is the intention of this Guide to produce in the near future a Restoration Guide for key issues in Heavy, Moderate and Light Restoration. Watch this space!

The more skilled and recognised work of the person who pioneered the restoration of comics Bill Sarrill, and today people like Susan Ciccione, Mark Wilson, Matt Wilson and Jef Hinds is generally held in esteem (as far as this author is concerned anyway). An argument for controlled restoration is that it may enhance and preserve an otherwise deteriorating comic for future appreciation and historical value. For example, if a comic has severe staple rust, should those staples be removed and the paper around that general area be restored to order to prevent further deterioration? An excellent publication that goes into greater depth on the subject is The Grading Guide by Bob Overstreet and is fully recommended by this publication.

an illustration of Susan Ciccone's work - a before and after of the same comic side by side - a landscape picture box across the bottom of the page?

All of this is not to say that restored comic books are in any way fakes or counterfeits. It merely depends on the amount of restoration and more importantly that both buyer and seller are fully aware and honest about the extent. It would be fair to say that American collectors are more experienced in recognising and understanding restoration than British collectors are. But British collectors are becoming more aware of the situation as there is more documentation available and there are increasing numbers of British attendees at American conventions. Either way it is important when buying or selling special Gold and Silver Age comics, particularly for those people located in the U.K. market, to be aware of the restoration industry in general and to recognise what to look for.

SOME RESTORATION TERMS

For those unsure what to look for in a repaired or restored comic, these are some of the more common areas.

STAPLE REINFORCEMENT –

White Typex like or transparent glue around the staples usually on the inside front cover. The cover itself may have a certain stiff feeling when being opened and closed.

COLOUR TOUCHING –

Difficult to detect if done by a professional. Look at colour differences in the darker areas of the cover and particularly the spine. If any touch-ups have been done with a felt tip pen, these will show through on the inside of the cover. This Guide very much takes the attitude that if you have a comic with a worn spine or cover creases, DO NOT use felt tip pens! Leave well alone. You will only make the comic less attractive.

TEAR REPAIR –

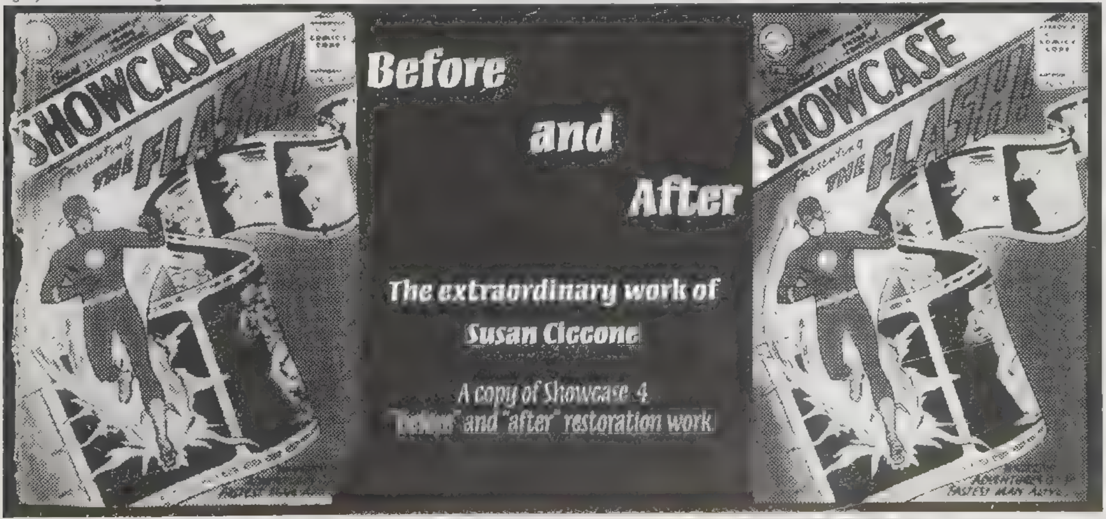
The closing of tears in covers and pages using paper fibres or glue. Professional tear repair can be almost undetectable to the naked eye. Amateur attempts using glue or tiny pieces of magic tape can be easily spotted with careful inspection.

TRIMMING –

Where edges have been trimmed to even them up and lessen or hide original Marvel Chipping. This is considered to be a very serious defect and once again this Guide urges that if you have a comic that has even a tiny amount of Marvel chipping, even removing one or two millimetres from any edge of the covers will ultimately detract from that comic. Leave well alone.

DEACIDIFYING –

Where browning pages have been lightened or even whitened with chemicals. A slight chemical smell usually gives the game away though techniques have become very sophisticated and some would argue that controlled deacidification can benefit the long term life of a comic. Either way, such restoration should be thoroughly researched by a prospective client and only carried out by



Before and After

The extraordinary work of Susan Ciccone

A copy of Showcase 4 "before" and "after" restoration work.

a professional U.K. collectors should talk to people like Bill Cole of Bill Cole Enterprises in America for more information

BLEACHING –

Where covers are lightened to give an almost unnatural white appearance Generally considered to be more risky and less desirable than deacidifying as bleach physically weakens paper fibres Again thorough information should be sought before embarking on this course of action

SPINE REINFORCEMENT –

Where there was once a spine roll and it has been pressed out and weaker paper has had to be reinforced with acrylic and/or paper often giving a much stiffer feel to the covers. There are arguments for and against such a course of action if a comic is falling apart and deemed worth preserving. Once again, professional advice should be sought.

The number of restored comic books in circulation in the U.K market is very low so this information is not meant to be alarmist. It simply means that one should exercise caution if buying a key issue for a lot of money Again one should seek professional advice if one is unsure or unused to spotting restoration. This question of restoration only really applies to Golden and Silver Age comics There would be little point in spending a fortune on restoring a £10 or $15 copy of X Men. Thus an informed buyer can buy with confidence and the informed collector or dealer always has the choice of preserving certain comic books if so desired

This Guide does not encourage amateur restoration using such things as felt tips and glue, magic tape and paper whatsoever. It also fully condemns the practice of restoration carried out for purely financial purposes, a "get rich quick" mentality, and the practice of deliberately ignoring or understating degrees of restoration by both dealers and collectors

STORAGE OF COMIC BOOKS

Storing and preserving a collection becomes more difficult the larger it becomes but a small amount of care is worthwhile in the long run. Many shops and dealers at marts and conventions sell their new comics and back issues in plastic bags and this is the most simple method of preservation. Plastic bags for all sizes of comics can now be bought, quite cheaply, for all sizes from Digest to Treasury. The best type to use is 250 gauge with a 1 inch flap at the top which provides an almost air tight seal. THE SEAL SHOULD NOT BE COMPLETELY AIR-TIGHT as this has been known to cause chemical reactions among the inks and acids in comic book pages A plastic bag will afford good protection from the usual effects of dust dirt, wear and tear but they should be changed every two or three years as certain polymers can react with the acids, inks and paper. One should avoid the use of freezer bags bought from supermarkets and food stores.

A more ideal solution and particularly for more valuable comics is the use of Mylar bags which are chemically inert, stiff, clear plastic sleeves some with flaps at the top. They are available from certain comic shops and come in three basic sizes for Marvel, DC and Golden Age comic books but they can be prohibitively expensive for collections running into thousands. A lighter and cheaper version called Mylites is available for bulk storage. There are a number of U.K. and U.S. suppliers, some of which can be found advertising in this book. Backing boards can also be used to help store comics but these should be of the acid-free variety and ordinary cardboard should be avoided at all costs. Please note that there are many different types of backing boards available today so it is important to check that they are acid free if claimed to be so. Ideally the board should be double-sided white or of food board quality that companies like Birds Eye might use to package their food products Avoid any boards with obvious wood-chips in them as this is commonly called box-board and is not acid-free. As ever, professional advice should be sought Several comic shops sell custom made comic boxes which are easily transportable, store around 150 bagged comics and can be stacked easily. There are also longer "coffin boxes" which can store up to 300 bagged comics. For the most part both types of boxes are not completely acid-free

Other alternatives are ring binders with clear plastic sleeves may be used to store more valuable items (which themselves should be in Mylar bags) and bulk collections can be stored in wooden boxes or on wooden shelving units, again avoiding cardboard boxes at all times as the acids in these will react with the paper over a period of time Ideally comics should be stored vertically in Mylars with acid-free backing boards in wooden or acid-free boxes They may be stacked individually in horizontal piles but without the stiffness of Mylars or backing boards the top ones will tend to curl over and spine rolls may develop. Comics should also be kept in a dark, cool atmosphere with a reasonable amount of humidity A dry atmosphere or too much sunlight can turn comics brown and then brittle in a comparatively short space of time. With careful storage comics will keep their freshness and colour for years to come. Careful storage is the key but remember that Mylars and acid free backing boards are an aid to collecting, not an absolute necessity Common sense can be just as valuable in the long term (and much cheaper in the short!)

As mentioned above in SOME RESTORATION TERMS, comics can be de-acidified but it is a complex and often expensive business (though Bill Cole Enterprises in America is constantly researching much cheaper and effective methods of deacidification) that involves soaking the individual pages or hanging each page for spraying with specially prepared solutions. Covers of comics pose a special problem owing to the varied composition of the papers used. SUCH PROCEDURES SHOULD BE LEFT TO EXPERTS.

PRICING STRUCTURES

The question I most often get asked (not unreasonably) is how do you work out the prices? Most of those who ask realise that it is not just a matter of making them up out of the blue or taking last year's book and adding 10 percent (wish it was sometimes)

As a GUIDE only, all the prices contained herein are necessarily approximations based on observations in comic shops and marts all over the country, mail order lists and catalogues (many thanks to those who send theirs such as Justin Ebbs of Just Comics and David Hern of Wonderworld for example), the collective knowledge of a great number of authoritative people who advise me every year and my own experience of twenty-five years as a collector.

The process of deciding prices has very much developed into an on-going situation all year round with detailed scrutiny before any publication

The actual process of pricing is quite simple. Myself and my Assistant Editor John Skoulides go through the entire Guide from A to Z and discuss each and every price where possible. Obviously there are some one-shots and titles that just do not change in value year after year. But they still get a glance it's amazing how a typo can creep in one year or an issue be lost another when it's been quite a right before. The 35 megabytes of data get manipulated around and transferred from machine to machine so many times and moved back and forth in the type-setting so often that its inevitable one record of segment of a record is altered or lost. Necessarily there are other titles that need hours of discussion and it has not been unknown to spend a ludicrous amount of time discussing one issue! After an eight hour session with both our machines side by side, we both feel like never doing another Price Guide ever again. But then we arrange to meet again on Tuesday and do it all over again on another small section..

Our ambition is to have a regular Board of Advisors both from the U.K and U.S. and regular questionnaires to have maximum dealer and collector involvement in putting together an annual U.K Price Guide All this takes time and money and probably a larger set up than just we two. It is hoped with Titan Books taking over the packaging and administration of this book, more time can be spent on research and true national input.

The rationale behind pricing is a little more complex than the process itself. We have been helped enormously this time around by the decision to print prices in both pounds and dollars. We can see immediately the context of every issue which is exactly what a Guide is all about context and thereby a rough guide to values.

There is no doubt in our minds that prices for Golden Age material in the U.K. are dictated by the American market. The Overstreet Price Guide has been long established and the market for Golden Age comics in the U.S. seems to be as healthy as it's always been The market in the U.K is quite small (and is possibly growing smaller?) as every year more and more Golden Age comics go up in value and thus in the higher grades out of most people's price ranges particularly in the U.K. If a British collector wants to purchase a Golden Age comic and more precisely a high grade key or pedigree issue, then they will probably have to pay American market rates For the purposes of this book, we have used our judgement to estimate current American market values based on as many written, verbal and professional sources at our disposal and arrived by conversion at a British value. Whether comics would actually sell at these values and indeed sell on a regular basis is another matter, another book. But it is a starting point A Guide price.

Some would argue that it should be more difficult to buy Golden Age comic in the U.K. than in the U.S and by and large that is probably true. Does it therefore follow that the British value of most Golden Age comics should be that much more than the American market value owing to factors of rarity popularity and availability? The answer again is probably yes but one must also take into account the size of the market for Golden Age comics in this country, of a size that may negate the rarity/popularity/availability factor. The old adage of a comic's value being that which someone is prepared to pay for it comes very much into play. Thus this book's very general rationale for Golden Age material is a reasonable parity of prices with some of the more straightforward titles and issues, a lesser U.K. value after dollar/pound conversion on some of the more lesser titles and issues and a greater U.K. value on some of the most popular titles and issues after conversion (all the above assumes exact parity in grading which is another question entirely and yet another book!). Within these very general parameters there are going to be exceptions owing to character and creator considerations.

The same sort of rationale is used for Silver Age comics up to official distribution in the U.K. from the November 1959 cover date. Thereafter the question of cents priced U.S. copies and pence priced U.K. copies of the same comic come into play. For many collectors in the U.K. the cents/pence distinction as we have already stated does not matter. But for some it does. And particularly for American dealers and collectors considering British pence priced copies. And particularly on key issues.

Our rationale changes with comics in the 70's where so many Marvels were officially Not Distributed in the U.K. at the time. Or with how War and Romance comics are generally valued in the U.K. as opposed to the U.S. Or how "hot book" trends may happen in the U.S. first, peak higher and faster there than in the U.K or how the trend may last longer in the U.K. than in the U.S.

Our rationale therefore has to be flexible from decade to decade, trend to trend, title to title, comic to comic. It may be noticed throughout this book that in our judgement, some British pound values are over a converted American dollar prices when there are factors of popularity and/or rarity. On the other hand there are many instances of the British pound price being half the converted American dollar price. These cases have been judged individually and can be found by studying the prices carefully. The overall conclusion that this book has come to is that at present American market values are generally higher across the board than British market values.

It may be noticed that many of the ratios between Good, Fine and Near Mint have changed (anything from a 1:3:5 right up to a 1:3:16). Each one has been judged individually and they will keep altering and evolving as we observe the general prices between lower and higher grades. The overall effect of our ratio changes is that prices on Good and Fine material in the U.K. market have remained largely static since the last U.K. price guide whilst the values on Near Mint material have risen. We will have to monitor the situation to see if this trend continues.

The most complex part of pricing rationale but often the most enjoyable is discussing and establishing relationships between characters, issues and titles. For example, there is a year on year relationship between Flash, Green Lantern and Justice League of America from DC Comics where generally speaking, one title traditionally sells better in back issue terms than another in the U.K. A character like the Hobgoblin may be more highly valued for a time and for whatever reason in the U.S. than in the U.K. or issues like the Silver Surfer Moebius series may be valued more highly in the U.K than in the U.S. as it seems to be much harder to find in shops and collections in the U.K.

It is for these reasons, and many more besides that we feel our Price Guide for American Comic Books should have prices in both pounds and dollars. We welcome any correspondence on the subject at the editorial address.

There are obviously design considerations when dealing with so many more figures and we have tried to make the book as clear and user-friendly as possible. Again we welcome any comments on the subject.

THE BRITISH SECTION

The British section is compiled by Mr. Steve Holland as has already been noted. The production process requires many telephone calls as he sends me a disk/printout which then passes back and forth as I amend from my own collecting experiences. Steve himself calls upon a large number of people at his end. It is hoped to restrict the British section in future Guides to TV, film and sci-fi/comics related material and to list everything in a more comprehensive stand alone British Comics Guide.

It must be noted that collectors of British comics do not use precisely the same system of grading as used for American material and few British comics of any significant age survive in exceptionally high grade. In view of this, British comics collectors tend to use a hybrid of terms that are used for books and paperbacks as well as American comics. For further information see the introduction to the British section. For the purposes of this book a single Near Mint price in pounds sterling is listed and a percentage chart can be used to work out prices on lower grades. In future Guides, there may be opportunities for a dollar price to be added as and when a regular U.S. market price can be established.

AN INTRODUCTION TO GRADING

The most difficult, contentious and eternally frustrating aspect of comic-book collecting is grading. For collector and dealer alike it is essential to grade the condition of a comic book fairly and accurately in order to determine its true value and worth. As the collecting trend in today's market seems to be more and more discerning as fandom becomes more and more knowledgeable, accuracy on the higher grades becomes even more essentia

As grading is very much a subjective exercise it is all to easy for the novice (and indeed the experienced collector) to allow wishful thinking and optimism to influence the appearance of a comic book and make it better than it really is. One man's idea of mint may be very different from anothers! The stricter and harder one becomes, even to the point of under-grading the more secure one can feel in selling comics and the happier one can be in collecting. It is worth re-evaluating one's grading criteria from time to time in order to become the more expert. Accurate and consistent grading only comes with experience. One exercise the novice may undertake could be to take a comic from each of the recognised grades and lay them side by side in order to appreciate more fully and put into perspective the varying degrees of wear and tear

THE PROCESS OF GRADING

1) Open the comic and grade from the inside out Lie it on a flat surface or hold it in the cup of the hand. Do not bend back or flatten out Check the centrefold is there and attached by both staples. Check for missing pages, panels or coupons cut, tears in pages, writing or stains Check outer edges of pages for browning/brittleness. One may check the comic smell for signs of dampness or acidity.
2) Check inside front and back covers, particularly turning the cover to see how it strains against the staples and may have torn. Older comics in particular often have staples slightly out of line They also tended not to use stainless steel staples so rust is more prevalent. Check for unusual whiteness as against the page colour which may indicate cover bleaching and stain removal. Check for any staple reinforcement.
3) Check back cover for tears and/or pieces out. Check wear or any soiling along the spine
4) Check front cover. This is the most important part of the comic as it is most seen when displayed and liable to the most wear. The areas of most common wear are around the staples and at the corners. Check for any cracks of chipping along the right hand edge Hold it up to the light and check for cover gloss and any indentations Check dark blue/black areas for any signs of colour touch up.
5) Finally assess the overall appearance of the comic checking for tightness and squareness of trim. Many comics were off-cut or had off centre staples where the cover art wraps a little round to the back cover. Eye appeal is what can often influence initial grading but is also vitally important as a final assessment

These steps should be adhered to generally to treat all comics with respect but need only be exhaustively followed on more important items.

If one feels that grading is important or not above all read and enjoy.

GRADING FOR BEGINNERS

Having been through the process of examining your comic book the hard part comes with arriving at an accurate grade Every comic has an accurate grade which can be arrived at by asking the right questions. As a beginner you might find yourself being a little vague and saying It's about VG or a Fine/NM copy. Spot-on grading only comes with practice. If you are just starting out it is worth getting these approximations in your head to give an overall picture

MINT ________________	Perfect
NEAR MINT ___________	Nearly perfect
VERY FINE ___________	Very nice condition
FINE ___	Above average
VERY GOOD ___________	Average
GOOD ________________	Below average
FAIR	Well worn
POOR ________________	Very tatty

Practising with a stack of comics and sorting them out into these eight different piles is a very useful exercise and one that experts should do from time to time

THE GRADING DEFINITIONS

Having got used to rough approximations, the next step is exact definition. The accepted grades of condition for comic books and their fuller definitions are as follows

MINT (M)

Perfect and as new, REGARDLESS OF AGE, with full cover gloss and lustre and white, crisp pages No printing or cutting defects, off-centre covers or staples No marks on the cover whatsoever, not even an official distributors stamp, even if it is neatly done (note American Guides seem to allow this – why?)

As with coins or stamps, MINT really means uncirculated or untouched and as such the only MINT comics would be those kept on file at the various comic companies (and not all of these are untouched quite the reverse!) or those comics issued in plastic bags and unopened. Either way a comic would have to be in quite spectacular condition to qualify for this grade. Even new comics on the rack at news-stands or comic shops are not necessarily Mint They have been handled, transported stacked and handled again even before they reach the shelves. Please note that there is no such grade as NEAR MINT/MINT or MINT -. A comic is either mint or it isn't. The true rarity of this grade cannot be emphasised enough

PERMISSIBLE FAULTS

None

NEAR MINT (NM)

Almost perfect and as new. White pages Tight, flat and clean with only extremely light stress marks at a staple or staples or the smallest of creases at a corner or on the spine No marks on cover except perhaps an official distributors stamp or mark in pencil and even then very neatly done Please note that this is still an extremely high and very scarce grade.

PERMISSIBLE FAULTS:

You have to look very carefully and even then there should be no more than one, perhaps two very minor defects. Among the most common are Extremely light stress around the staples
The smallest corner crease

NOT PERMISSIBLE FAULTS:

Any page discolouration
Anything missing
Anything added
Any degree of spine roll
Any writing anywhere apart from very neat arrival date (preferably in pencil)

Even within these strict confines, a spectacular copy may be referred to as a NM+ (a NM++ is taking things a bit far) and a comic that is very nice but just not quite up to being a Near Mint may be referred to as a Near Mint- (similarly NM— stretches the point beyond being a useful grading term)

VERY FINE (VF OR VFN)

Very slight wear beginning to show owing to an accumulation of very minor defects. This is a comic that has been read carefully a few times and stored away with due care and attention Most of the cover lustre remaining and still clean, flat and tight with only the tiniest spine wear or perhaps nick at top and bottom. No major cover marks or creases. A light crease up to about half an inch Pages may be off-white but in no way yellowing or beginning to brown Very Fine means a copy with excellent eye appea

PERMISSIBLE FAULTS:

Minimal wear is apparent at first sight. One or two very minor faults are allowed Some of the most common permissible defects are
A light cover crease up to about half an inch
Off white pages
Slight staple discolouration (but no rust)
One or two corners with slight rounding
Some minimal cover surface wear

NOT PERMISSIBLE FAULTS:

Yellowing pages or any worse than that
Staple rust
Any writing apart from neat arrival date or some other such small neat initial/figure
Anything missing apart from a slight nick in the spine top or bottom
Spine roll although "white spine" where the comic is still absolutely flat but the printing process has wrapped the cover around so that a slight edge of the cover illustration shows on the right edge of the back cover or a white edge has wrapped around from the back cover to show on the left edge of the front cover

Within these quite strict confines, a nice looking comic may be referred to as a VFN+ and one that is quite sharp but may have a noticeable defect that starts to offend the eye may be referred to as a VFN-

FINE (FN)

The basic minimum for most collectors, a comic with wear showing on edges slight spine creases or stress around the staples. Still clean and flat with no major marks major or writing on cover or inside Some cover gloss or lustre remaining. Pages may be yellowing slightly but not browning or brown edges. Above-average, read quite a few times and stored away with some concern though not necessarily in ideal conditions This is the most widely used (and abused) grade

PERMISSIBLE FAULTS:

No major defects but an accumulation of a few minor defects instantly apparent Some of the permissible faults are
A couple of cover creases or one or up to an inch or so
Some small spine creases
Pages may have a yellow tinge to them but in no way tanning
Small neat writing or name
Staple discolouration but not rusty
Tiniest piece chip may be out of a page or the cover
Slightest spine roll
Slight corner knock or impact

NOT PERMISSIBLE FAULTS:

Heavy creases
Any tanning of pages or worse
Very noticeable writing
Coupon or puzzle completing
Staple rust
Piece out of page or cover bigger than a chip
Anything other than the slightest spine roll
Any water mark/ripple/damage
Anything other than a slight stain either to the cover or inside
Big corner crunch or book crease
No tape of any description or size

There is obviously a lot more room for manoeuvre in this grade than with any of the above as far as combinations of minor defects goes, but the overall eye appeal of the comic must be above average with a good amount of gloss or lustre left on the cover

VERY GOOD (VG)

An average, second-hand, obviously read copy with marks and minor defects. Printing lustre almost gone but not soiled or stained. Worn along spine with possible spine-roll or slightly loose staples. Pages may be yellowing with signs of browning around the edges. The cover could have minor tear or crease or there could be a loose centre fold. NO PAGES OR PARTS MISSING No coupons or panels cut

PERMISSIBLE FAULTS:

An average used comic which many collectors regard as the bare minimum as nothing major is actually missing An accumulation of defects one or two moderate. Some accepted defects in this grade are

- Moderate cover creasing
- Tanning or slightly browning pages
- Some cover writing but not scribble
- Rust spots on staple
- Cover detached from one staple
- Small piece out of page or cover, fingernail sized
- Moderate spine roll
- Water stain but not rippling
- Corner crunch or small book crease
- Small tape repair evident
- Some tape removal evident
- Coupon or small puzzle completed
- Centrefold loose

NOT PERMISSIBLE FAULTS:

- Heavy cover creasing
- Brown pages
- Cover or interior scribble, especially with a felt tip
- Rusty staples
- Cover detached
- Any piece out bigger than a fingernail size
- Heavy spine roll
- Water rippling or water damage
- Heavy book crease
- Moderate tape evident
- Major tape remova
- Major amateur colouring in
- Centrefold missing, panels or coupons cut

GOOD (G)

A well read copy with minor tears or splits, soiled and marked, rolled spine and creases. Tape repairs to the staples or spine but STILL COMPLETE and acceptable Collectible mostly as a reading copy only Please note that this grade is very misleading – 'good' is basically a very low grade Please also note that it is the condition in which the large majority of 50's and 60's collections that come out of attic rooms and old boxes They would not have been consciously stored away in plastic bags and the damper climate of some areas in the U.K. and indeed the U.S. generally often results in rusty staples and a damp, musty smell to the comic and very often browning pages.

PERMISSIBLE FAULTS:

An accumulation of defects. one or two quite major ones. Some of the accepted defects in this grade are

- Generally heavy creasing
- Browning (but not brittle) pages
- General writing (but not heavy scribble or grafitti)
- Rusty staples (but not staining the immediate paper area)
- Piece out of cover or page about thumb-nail size
- Heavy spine roll
- Light water rippling (but not damage)
- Subscription crease
- Moderate tape evident
- Major tape removal (but only leaving stain, no tears or print removed)

NOT PERMISSIBLE FAULTS:

- Panels or coupons cut
- Anything worse than the above lists of faults

It must be stressed again that while a Good comic may have lots of faults and one or two quite major, there is NOTHING SUBSTANTIAL MISSING The pages may even be quite discoloured and may have lost their suppleness but in no way are they brittle.

FAIR (F) OR FAIRLY GOOD (FG)

Very worn and soiled with possible small chunks out of spine or cover. Some tears and heavy creases and marks or writing on cover/inside. A couple of extra staples as cover was detached at some time No pages out but a panel and/or a coupon may be out or clipped. The pages are brown and bordering on the brittle.

NOT PERMISSIBLE FAULTS:

- Brittleness
- Page(s) out
- Coverless
- Lots of extra staples
- Heavy brown tape

This grade of comic is basically a mess and is only really collectible as a rare item because no better one exists or as a filler to complete a run until something better comes along which shouldn't be too hard

POOR (P)

Well damaged and heavily soiled. Not collectible unless it is something very rare or very special Very worn torn, brittle, water-damaged, heavily brown-taped spine, absolute mess and may be incomplete – watch out for coupons cut out or pin-up pages missing, no centrefold or no back cover

Please note that A MISSING PAGE IS A VERY SERIOUS DEFECT, PARTICULARLY A STORY PAGE AND EVEN IF THE REST OF THE COMIC APPEARS TO BE ANYTHING FROM NEAR MINT DOWNWARDS. THIS DEFECT DEVALUES IT DRASTICALLY

COVERLESS (C)

These turn up regularly, particularly as older comics but they have little value beyond reading copies, even if the interior is white and clean which it usually isn't Only collectible as extremely rare or old curiosity items or research material. Having said that some people love them. Having a coverless Batman #1 in your collection may be the only way you'll ever afford one It's great for pure reading value While it is difficult to ascribe a universally held valuation formula, they may be offered at about one quarter to one sixth of the good price

With the advances in restoration, coverless copies do have an added attraction in that it is sometimes possible to match up covers and coverless copies I remember an advert where the covers of Batman #1 were advertised for $500 and that was some time ago

PERCENTAGE CHART

For quick calculation of values other than the GOOD·FINE NEAR MINT columns in this book, a percentage chart is offered for use Percentage charts have been used by dealers for years and recently made more public by the work people like Gary Ochiltree (Board Member) of Krypton Komics in particular

This is only a rough guide to the percentage breakdowns between the main grades so that Poors, Fairs and in-between plus and minus grades may be calculated.

PLEASE NOTE THAT PARTICULARLY IN GRADING RARE OR KEY ISSUES, PLUS AND MINUS SIGNS ALONG WITH THE GRADES IS ACCEPTABLE as it may more closely define that grade as being a Very Fine- copy or a Fine+ and these have been built into this chart Obviously the difference is minimal but enough to make a difference to the experienced eye and more particularly when there are large sums of money involved. There is no such thing (in my opinion) as Very Fine++ or any other such excesses. POOR and FAIR are not usually given the distinction of being either plus or minus. It would be absurd to distinguish between a Poor+ and a Fair-, even on the most expensive and sought after comics

The established top grade for the purpose of Guide values is Near Mint or a figure of 100% from which the other grades can be calculated

GRADE	Percentage of Near Mint Guide Price
MINT	120-200%+
NEAR MINT+	110%
NEAR MINT	100%
VERY FINE+	80%
VERY FINE	75%
VERY FINE-	70%
FINE+	65%
FINE	60%
FINE	50%
VERY GOOD+	40%
GOOD+	25%
GOOD	20%
GOOD-	15%
FAIR	10%
POOR	5%
COVERLESS	3.75%

FOR CENTS COPIES OF LONG-ESTABLISHED KEY ISSUES ADD 20-25% ONLY IF IN VERY HIGH GRADE (VF+ or better) (and see Multiples of Guide section)

This is a ROUGH GUIDE only and allows only for working with newer comics (in a ratio of 1:3 5) published for the most part from 1980 or so onwards As many collectors and most new collectors nowadays concentrate on these comics, particularly at the beginning of their collecting, it is a useful chart with which to practice

Other percentages charts for other ratios would need to be calculated if exact figures are needed For example, comics in a 1:3 9 ratio would have Poor as 2 5% of Near Mint, not 5%

Rather than write out all percentage charts for all ratios used in this book and beyond (a 1:3:20 ratio can't be far way), one may use The Hundred Scale which is favoured by many collectors and dealers particularly in America The very rough percentages can be used as follows for all comic books generally

NEAR MINT (inc. +/-) = ...90-99%
VERY FINE (inc +/-) = .75-89%
FINE (inc. +/-) = ...55-74%
VERY GOOD (inc. +/-)= 35-54%
GOOD (inc. +/-) =................15-34%
FAIR = ...5-14%
POOR = ...1-4%

While these percentages are useful for rough calculations on major issues where considerable sums are involved, differences of hundreds and even thousands of pounds or dollars could result from approximation. This Guide would advise accuracy and that means working out the ratio and calculating the exact percentage for the exact grade accordingly

DEFECTS CHART

This is more difficult to quantify as the whole area of grading is at best subjective and can vary tremendously with the type, number and cumulative effect of the various defects common to most comics

As a ROUGH GUIDE (with thanks to David Hern of Wonderworld for pioneering work) the following twelve tables demonstrate the most common areas of defect that a comic is likely to have and the varying degrees of that defect and how those degrees account for a final grade

A drop of a FULL GRADE would be from say VERY FINE to FINE-

A drop of a half a grade would be from say VERY FINE- to FINE+

The problem with any grading assessment whether using charts or not is the cumulative effects of the problem areas on a comic. It is easier to grade a comic with minimal damage (say a tiny crease at one corner making a Near Mint comic a Near Mint Minus) than a comic with multiple wounds (is a spine rolled comic with white pages and a tiny piece of tape inside better or worse than a comic with a light subscription crease, very white pages and a small piece out of the back cover?)

It is suggested that the tables may be reasonably used thus

IF A COMIC HAS ONLY ONE NOTICEABLE DEFECT:

Find the degree of that defect and read across the page to find the grade.(e.g. if there is only a tiny chip = deduct 6 points = NM-)

IF THE COMIC HAS TWO OR THREE MINOR DEFECTS:

Add up the penalties and refer to the middle column and read off the grade there (e.g. the comic has off white pages and a slight spine roll which means 6 + 28 = 34 deducted from 100 = 66 = FN+)

IF THE COMIC HAS MULTIPLE DEFECTS:

Take the one most serious penalty and read across the page to find the grade.(e.g. the comic is brittle with light rust on the staples and small tears and large writing. Penalties are 88 + 38 + 28 + 46 = 200. A brittle penalty makes it no better than a FAIR to start with and the other defects would probably push it into the POOR category therefore.)

THESE TABLES MAY BE USED PURELY FOR PRACTISING AND RECOGNISING THE NUMBER OF FAULTS A COMIC MAY HAVE, THEIR RELATIVE SEVERITY AND HOW THAT AFFECTS THE OVERALL FINAL GRADE. DON'T WORRY TOO MUCH IF YOU END UP WITH HUGE MINUS NUMBERS AND THEREFORE NO GRADE TO READ OFF. AT LEAST PRACTICE IN GRADING IS BEING ACQUIRED.

Once an assessment of the defect (if any) and thus grade has been made, then by using this book sensibly, a true Price Guide price or Price Guide value may be arrived at.

These are by no means hard and fast rules but do give some idea of the relative degrees of seriousness of damage that a comic may suffer over the years and the complexity that grading has reached now that there are comics in the hundreds of thousands of pounds and dollars. These charts are meant not just for the benefit of dealers new and old but also for fans and collectors.

Remember that it is the whole book that needs to be graded and not just the front cover. More and more attention is being paid to the interior whiteness and freshness of comic books. I also it cannot be stressed enough that MINT MEANS MINT, REGARDLESS OF AGE. New comics bought at shops or the newsagents are not necessarily mint. Older comics should not be more lightly graded because of the fact that they are simply older no matter how tempting it may be. Thus an Action Comics #1 should be graded as one would an Action Comics #701. The scarcity of an old or rare comic is reflected in its value or price. At the end of the day a comic is only really worth what someone is prepared to pay for it and as such any formal prices are merely arbitrary. Guide prices serve to be just that, a guide to pricing and valuing a comic once the conditions of the certain recognised grades have been examined.

Some last grading points to remember as stressed in the above tables

1) The term Pristine Mint occasionally arises and seems more popular in America than in the U.K. This would mean something that is unusually mint and could only really apply to a fine copy that has hardly if ever been opened. As such comics of this sort hardly ever appear on the market and I would tend to disregard this grade.

2) Comics that appear to be of a high grade but have very brown or brittle pages should not be graded above fair. A comic is brittle if flakes of paper fall easily from it or if a corner can be folded over and it comes away with little or no effort. See the section on the storage of comic books.)

3) A comic that has at one time been water-soaked (usually owing to being brought across on a ship as ballast) cannot be graded above fair condition, possibly very good minus if the damage is very slight.

4) Subscription copies (where a comic has been folded lengthways for mailing) should be noted even though after a period of time they may have been flattened out.

5) Finally, a comic should only be graded after careful consideration of the whole book, not just at first glance. Ideally, a second opinion should be sought on rare or important issues.

THE BRITISH and AMERICAN MARKET

A Comparison

IT IS OFTEN SAID, more so here on the British side of the Atlantic than on the American, that the British comics scene, market and latterly industry is a mirror-image of America only on a smaller scale. As a certain Asgardian might quoth "I say thee nay!" or at least I hope to show throughout the course of this article that our green and sceptr'd isle has its own unique historical traditions distribution patterns and consequently collecting habits. Where once it might have been thought that the British and American markets were gradually converging, the gap between the two markets is in the process of ever-widening in terms of speculative interest, pricing resistance and ultimately marketplace structure as I also hope to show

One of the most fundamental differences between the U.K. and U.S. markets is that of comics history and traditions. In Great Britain we did not have a "Golden Age" (apart from the historical one of Queen Elizabeth I, Shakespeare and Raleigh Drake and the Armada). The Golden Age of American comics (1938 1945) is almost completely unknown to and even ignored by many U.K collectors It is almost completely unknown to the general population who have their own memories of the comics they read as children back in the 1930s and 1940s. In fact Great Britain only just caught on to the next phase of American comic development, the Silver Age after it had been well underway. As is generally regarded, Showcase #4 cover-dated September/October 1956 ushered in the Silver Age of American comics wherein Golden Age heroes were updated for a new generation of readers and super-heroes with super-powers became once more the dominant genre It may not be widely known to American collectors and dealers but American comic books were not officially distributed in Great Britain until as late as the first couple of months of 1960 (issues cover-dated November 1959), mostly DCs with some Atlas, Archies, Charltons, Harveys and ACGs. There was some limited distribution of romance, war and funny animal titles from late 1957, presumably as market-testers, the most popular of those being Charlton war titles catering to a market stimulated in part by the pocket sized War Picture Library and Battle Picture Library by Fleetway publisher of todays 2000 AD comic

While the transatlantic time-lag between actual distribution of American comics is more than twenty years, happily the same cannot be said for the establishment of a back-issue market. It may have begun in the United States before it did in the U.K. but thanks to certain pioneering individuals, the basis for markets that could at least be compared was established There were isolated collectors up and down the U.K. who began to correspond and to trade comics with each other in the early 1960s as had begun in the States in the late 1950s. The establishment of fanzines were only a few years apart if one compares Jerry Bails' Alter Ego #1 in 1960 and in the U.K. Frank Dobson's Fantasy Advertiser #1 and Dez Skinn's interestingly-named Derinn Comicollector #1 in 1965 Comic book conventions seemed to have started at around the same time with Phil Seuling's New York convention in 1968 and Phil Clark's convention in Birmingham in the same year. When Bob Overstreet started his Comic Book Price Guide in 1970, British collector and dealer Alan Austin produced his first price guide in 1975, researched at source from his own massive collection and painstakingly typed out by hand with addenda at the back for titles he missed out along the way – no luxuries like a computer or word processor here! Alan's book represents an important pedigree of U.K. price guides that this present Guide is directly descended from. As such, the general pattern seemed to be that events in the awareness of the collectibility of back issues that happened in the States were mirrored over in the U.K. after some increasingly short time delay but the advantage in America was the much broader range and age of back issues available. By the mid 1960s, these isolated British collectors had five or six years' worth of distributed American comics to consider their U.S counterparts had more than twenty five. The beauty for collectors of American comics in the U.K. was that sets were entirely possible to put together, at least of Marvel comics. A DC comics fan was faced with the prospect of some very high numbers with the first distributed issues of Action Comics at #258 and Detective Comics at #272 for example. British comics were equally daunting with 52 issues a year rather than twelve and generally being larger in size and even then being available in a wide variety of sizes, there were (and still are!) inevitable storage problems It is no wonder that the collecting of American comics in general and some especially caught on so well in the U.K., presaged by the black and white album and comic reprints throughout the 1940s and 1950s.

Back-issue collecting of American comics had the perfect platform in the 1950s. In October 1951 the first Superman Annual from Atlas Publishing appeared. This collected the first six Australian issues that had appeared from July to December 1950 published by K.G. Murray for distribution by Atlas. The reprints from National Periodical Publications were black and white only and took their content from issues of late 1940s Superman, Action and World's Finest Comics. The cover was taken from the famous origin issue of Superman #53. Batman Superboy and SuperAdventure Annuals followed along with monthly comics of the same titles One hundred page reprint comics also appeared such as All Favourites, Hundred Comics and Superman Supacomics By the end of the 1950s there were not many National Periodical/DC comics characters that British youngsters had not seen. More importantly it got regular buyers into the habit of the monthly comic book so that when the originals arrived at the newsagents at the beginning of 1960, now they could read the adventures of familiar characters in full colour Not surprisingly these British and Australian reprints are fast becoming very sought after for their unusual reprints and many original covers Interestingly the process was reversed in the 1960s for Marvel comics as the colour originals were reprinted in black and white form by Alan Class titles like Astounding Stories and Secrets of the Unknown and Odhams Press titles like Pow! and Smash!

Superman Annual #1 (1951)

A selection of Atlas comics and annuals, available in the U.K. throughout the 1950s and the early 1960s with a wide variety of reprint material before the "real thing" began to be distributed with cover date November 1959

The second fundamental difference is the weekly format established from the very beginning by British comics and the monthly magazine format favoured in America One obvious reason must be the relative sizes of the countries. For America to base a comic distribution service on a weekly basis would have meant an extremely sophisticated distribution network in those early days And on a more basic economic level, a shelf-life of a month (or more) was more attractive than a week given the number of days it would take to get comics out to the furthest parts of the country by road. It is interesting to consider that though the British invented the very word itself when it first appeared in dictionaries in the 1780s as "comick" meaning satirical broadsheet paper with amusing stories and caricature illustrations, aimed at an adult audience and it was the British who developed the comic for a younger audience in the 1890s with Comic Cuts and the like, it was the Americans who took the genre and made it their own in the late 1920s when a month's worth of Sunday Funnies could be collected together and bound with cardboard covers. And there the American comic stayed and flourished right through the Thirties, Forties and Fifties while the British tradition carried on as it had done, almost unchanged during the same period.

Up until official distribution at the beginning of 1960, the staple diet of every school-boy (not discounting publications like June, Girl and Schoolfriend for the school-girl market) were weekly comics like The Dandy (first issue 14th December 1937 and still going today) or The Beano (first issue 30th July 1938 and likewise still going strong) which are even today still very much in the tradition of the finite one page jolly jape story. There were very few continuing dramatic stories with developing characters in this type of comic from the 1930s to the 1950s though the 1960s saw the rise and (some British collectors would argue) peak of this phenomenon, possibly owing to American influence. The other alternative was the generic term "Boys Papers" like The Rover or The Wizard, mostly text stories with illustrations dealing with stories based on school dormitory antics and castaways on desert islands, war hero exploits or tales of the athletes and other sportsmen. The outstanding exception to all this was The Eagle comic (first issue dated 14th April 1950) featuring Dan Dare Pilot of the Future as drawn in full colour by Frank Hampson. With its rocket ships and ray guns, futuristic cityscapes and the dreaded Mekon as principal foe, the Dan Dare strip freely borrowed from the American tradition of dashing heroes and outer space exploits though his firm square-set jaw and very British exclamations ("Cheerio!" and "Great Heavens!") planted him solidly in the British Royal Air Force world and vocabulary of the Second World War. Not a super power or a flapping cape to be seen. The brightly-costumed hero was relegated to decidedly second-raters like Electroman and Masterman though the one major exception to this was Marvelman, produced by Mick Anglo and Roy Parker from their tiny studio in Gower Street in London from 1954 to 1963 though the character, it could be argued, was an obvious derivative of Fawcett's Captain Marvel

It was against this background that the American monthly comic book appeared, first in dribs and drabs and then in official distribution

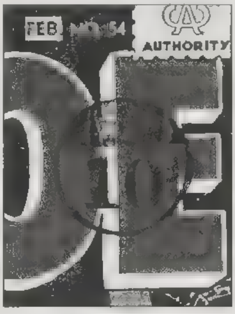
Their full colour glossy covers and colour interiors were a sharp contrast to the duller newsprint quality of virtually all British weeklies, most of which were black and white interiors or at best occasional spot colour.

Distribution of American comics, even when it was official, was patchy at first and very often the sea side towns of Brighton and Bournemouth, Blackpool and Southend had ample supplies for holidaying youngsters with extra pocket money to spend, supplies that tended to get no further inland. Distribution to Scotland, however, has always been somewhat better from the start and as DCs seemed to be in the greatest supply, the marked fondness for mainstay characters like Superman and Batman still survives today in those areas.

While it was mentioned earlier that no Golden Age comics were distributed in Great Britain on an official scale, it is certain that some found their way over with visiting friends or relatives from the U.S. and indeed many thousands of comics came with the arrival of G I s stationed in Britain during the War. Areas where there are U.S.A.F. bases such as Norwich in the county of Norfolk north-east of London are generally good for turning up older, pre-distribution issues as these have been gradually disseminated throughout the county since the War. I myself have seen a copy of Action Comics #1 with an old sixpence stamp on it. It is highly unlikely that there is anything vaguely approaching a treasure trove of Golden Age comics to be found in this country, certainly not on the pedigree scale of some of the American finds such as The Edgar Church Collection. The dream of finding a box of Detective 27s in an old lady's attic will have to remain, as Charles Dickens would be wont to say, "..charming food for contemplation"

A number of early (pre-distribution) Batman and Detective Comics have been known with Popular Book Centre Stamps on the front cover for example These PBC shops were more prevalent in the late 1940s and 1950s though the chain still survives today The mainstay of their stock was cheap paperbacks and pornographic magazines and thus the inclusion of American comics associated them with literature that was liable to corrupt, a stigma attached to the American comic for a very long time. This attitude was not helped by the appearance in unusually large quantities of EC comics in the early 1950s, the first occasion of anything like mass-exposure to the American comic. Though short-lived in Britain, these comics were quickly banned, leading to the Children and Young Person (Harmful Publications) Act of 1955 and found themselves consigned to the same pornographic shelves in adult corner bookshops. The Popular Book Centre stamp is usually a very large diamond shape in the middle of the cover with the re sale price, usually threepence or sixpence (these coins are no longer in circulation and then would have been worth about 4 cents and 7 cents respectively) scrawled in biro or felt tip pen in the box provided. These Popular Bookshop Centre-stamped copies were the scourge of those early collectors in Britain in the 1960s Great for reading value but not so great for those interested in high grade copies

The first American comic books to be distributed usually had the English price of ninepence stamped anywhere on the front cover. This stamp was done in ink and could often be in a neat circle on an unobtrusive part of the cover More infuriatingly, it could be very heavy, even smudged and right on the face of a leading character or right in the middle of a clear expanse of cover so as to be all the more obvious. Occasionally the inking would be so heavy as to bleed through to the inside front cover.



A pence stamp in detail.
A fairly typical example although there were many variations

The very early Marvels more sensibly had the English price printed where the cents price would have been, ninepence from 1961 to mid 1964, tenpence from 1965 to 1967 and one shilling until decimalization in 1971 when it became six new pence or "6p". This gradually rose up to 15p until the practice of dual-pricing in the early 1980s More confusing still, the "sell by" month was removed for these exported copies as by the time they arrived on the British news-stands, it was already the actual month (and sometimes later) that was printed inside the comic. Nervous distributors felt that it would give a very limited shelf life to a publication if the cover month was left on. Classic examples of this would be a Fantastic Four #1 with the "NOV" missing from a British priced pence copy or the "AUG" missing from a British-priced Amazing Fantasy #15. Interestingly, the earliest distributed westerns, romance and war titles had the U.S. indicia removed inside and in its place had emblazoned "Exclusively distributed in the U.K. by Thorpe and Porter"

This has lead to the question of cents copies versus pence copies for collectors in the UK. Many collectors feel that as American comics they should have the original American price while others, content in their nostalgia prefer the pence pricing as that is what they remember as children. The debate still continues as a matter of personal choice but for those who wish to invest their money in higher grade copies, particularly of key issues, only cents will do. For lower grade ordinary issues with no key significance, the cents/pence distinction becomes negligible. In a sense the pence copies are much rarer than cents copies as only a small fraction of the entire print run (2%?), usually at the end when the black cover plates were changed were set aside for foreign distribution. Some would claim that this meant lesser clarity of printing quality as the inks became faded and the plates would start to show wear and as such a non-cents copy is necessarily of inferior production quality. Recent ideas have suggested that at the beginning of official distribution in early 1960, the pence priced copies were produced first as there was a set number ordered by cautious British wholesalers unsure as how how these new fangled American comics would sell against the British weeklies which were cheaper (The Dandy and The Beano were 2 old pre-decimalization pence at the time or just under 3 cents as opposed to 10 cents cover price for American comics to give some price perspective). It is possible therefore that mid Silver Age DCs and the very first Marvel comics are of a better quality of printing than the American cents-priced copies

The actual process of printing renders these ideas doubtful as it would mean restarting the printing presses after an initial short run time

Either way in this current age of collecting cover variants American collectors and dealers may care to consider the possibilities of The British Cover Variant Edition of say, an Amazing Spiderman #1 or a Superman Annual #1 They are certainly much rarer and the early Marvels do have these interesting printing variations Most collectors in the U K. cannot understand why most Americans consider these pence copies as inferior reprints. They were printed on the same day in the same place, on the same paper using the same original artwork. When the finite resource of very high grade cent copies key issues runs out, if it hasn't done so already, where else can collectors turn in order to buy unrestored high grades? Surely the condition of the comic is more important? There is an argument for the attraction and genuine rarity value of a Near Mint unrestored pence copy of Amazing Fantasy #15 in the marketplace if only Fine and Very Fine cents copies are otherwise available. More and more pence-priced copies of Silver Age Marvels seem to be appearing on American dealers mail order lists and are priced at about 75% of a similar grade cents copy. It would be interesting to find out how well they sell. It is still a remarkable fact of luck or foresight that a key issue survives in perfect condition whether it be a cents or pence copy, perhaps more so for "British copies" as there were far fewer pence copies produced in the first place

Even today in Great Britain there is necessarily a greater supply of pence copies of Silver Age, 1960s material in spite of the increasing amounts cents copies brought over by British dealers visiting American conventions in recent years. It will be some time if ever, before there are equal amounts of cents and pence copies of Silver Age books in the U K

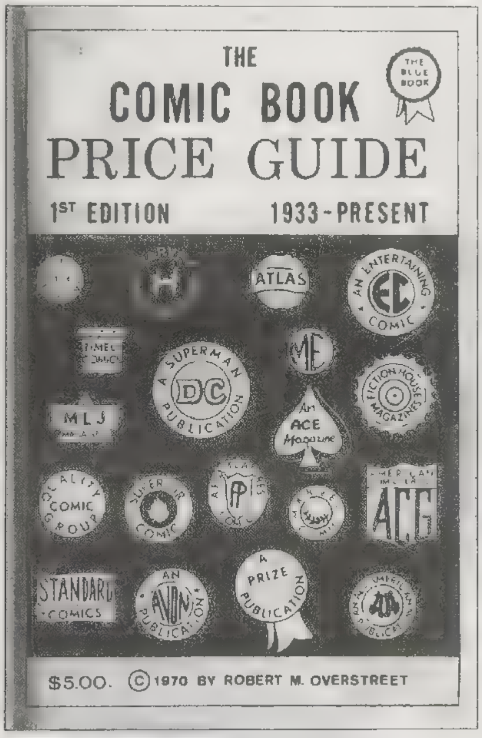
Tales of Suspense #59
An example of a comic made Scarce in the U K. by a quirk of distribution at the time

Distribution throughout the 1960s and 1970s was handled by a company called Thorpe and Porter and the T & P stamp or later on the white sticker with the T & P in the symbol of an indian tent (or teepee – get it?) became what most British collectors fondly remember. While gaining in frequency and reliability occasionally hiccups in distribution occurred. A national dock strike at the beginning of 1965 meant that for at least two (and possibly three) months Marvels in particular only came over in very limited quantities as most were turned away to be delivered to other parts of the Commonwealth, mostly South Africa and Australia. Issues across all the Marvel titles starting with cover-date Oct 1964 (in one instance Sept 1964, that of Two-Gun Kid #71) and ending with cover date Jan 1965 are in generally short supply with cover date Dec 1964 being what seems to be the height of the dock strike as most of those issues are traditionally rare. As the dock strike gradually lessened so the issue numbers became very scarce or scarce and issues cover dated Feb and Mar 1965 are increasingly found to be less common that otherwise thought. Issues of note affected by this dock strike in the U.K. market are: Amazing Spiderman #18,#19 and to a lesser extent #20. Avengers #9-11 and to a lesser extent #12, Daredevil #4,5, Fantastic Four #32,#33 and to a lesser extent #34, Journey into Mystery #109-112, Kid Colt, Outlaw #119, 120, Rawhide Kid #43, Sgt. Fury #11-13, Strange Tales #126,#127 and to a lesser extent #128, Tales of Suspense #58-60, Tales to Astonish #60-63, Two-Gun Kid #71-73, X-Men #8,9. DCs of the same cover-dates do not seem to be as unusually rare or scarce.



The first Overstreet Price Guide in 1970
(Special note: Cover © Copyright Overstreet Publications)

There is another peculiarity to Marvel comics in the U.K. market. As the majority of issues in the 1960s and early 1970s were shipped by sea, very often bundles of them got water-stained and at worst completely water-soaked. Though sea-shipping still continues today, there must have been an unusually high proportion of unseaworthy vessels in the early 1970s as Marvels in particular suffer from this severe fault. Amazing Spidermans from #105 to 110 and later on from #120-129 and Iron Mans from #42 to 44 are notoriously regular sufferers when they surface in indigenous collections. One wonders how many hundreds even thousands of copies have been rendered completely uncollectible in this way.

It is perhaps the history and establishment of Price Guides that cause the markets in the U.K. and U.S. to differ most significantly. In my opinion, one of the most important books about comics ever written appeared in 1970. Two hundred and twenty eight pages long with a handful of adverts at the back, typed out rather than type-set, a few mistakes like Batman #46 being the famous origin cover and story rather than #47 and with what were then ground-breaking prices like Action Comics #1 at $300 in Mint, Detective #27 at $275 and Showcase #4 at $12! The first Comic Book Price Guide by Bob Overstreet had a 1 000 print run, an innocuous white cover and sold for $5. The first edition sold out and a second print run of 800 with a blue cover soon followed. The book did two very important things. It immediately established a market value for American comics the moment that prices were seen in black and white and thereby sowed the seed for speculative interest in the buying and selling of comics. It also, and perhaps more importantly, established a pricing structure centred around the three grades of Good, Fine and Mint. The ratios between the three were roughly 1 to 1 5 to 2 (a little different to some of today's ratios of 1 to 3 to 15!). The concept of the condition being the major factor of value was now set in stone. In 1982, Bob Overstreet with Jon Warren brought out a Price Update as a supplement to the Comic Book Price Guide #12 and the structure of the American market was complete. Dealers and collectors alike could look forward to a regular price increase in most cases (decreases some of the time) and report on the the constant shifting state of the back issue industry. In the years that have followed, some would argue that such a system leads to a healthy and sustainable growth in the market year on year while others would make accusations of unnecessary hype and ever spiralling multiples of Guide. Either way, it is clear that the structure of the American market is more sophisticated in certain areas.

The first Overstreet Update in 1982
(Special note. Cover © Copyright Overstreet Publications)

Twenty six years later, the Overstreet Guide is still going strong when other American guides have come and gone. While values are set and shown to evolve every year for the American market, it is becoming increasingly clear that those same prices cannot be applied issue for issue to the British market. Different traditions. Different distribution patterns. Different character popularity. Different size of collector interest. Different general awareness. And different attitude to realistic levels of prices.

When Alan Austin produced his first Price Guide in 1975, the current Overstreet Guide of the time was number 4 with number 5 just about to come out. Interesting examples of price comparison would be X-Men #1 priced at $10 in Mint and Fantastic Four #1 priced at $70. Alan adopted more or less the same ratio splits as Overstreet between Good, Fine and Mint (which would seem logical at the time) and his pricing seems very consistent. He priced X-Men #1 at £3.50 (when $10 converted at the then exchange rate of 2.40 would have been £4.16) and Fantastic Four #1 at £25 ($70 converted at 2 40 being £29.16). It would not surprise me in the least if Alan had completely ignored the Overstreet price and came up with those values independently. He just knew the market rate for comics like that in this country. In his introduction he wrote about seeing "a trend back towards more reasonable prices" and twenty one years later I hope that this Guide will echo that same sentiment.

IT'S A QUESTION OF CULTURE

(by Alan Scott of Adventure Into Comics Inc.)

I WOULD LIKE to start by thanking Duncan McAlpine for inviting me to contribute this article about the differences in the UK and American market

Over the years, we have seen dramatic changes in the comic industry with the influx of new young artists which have taken comics and the industry in a new direction. To assess the differences between ourselves and our friends across the Atlantic, we must first look at what I deem to be the most important single factor—Culture. Americans being nurtured and weaned on Super Heroes, Hollywood, Rock & Roll and its paraphernalia

Since the early 20s and 30s, the Americans were raised on super-heroes before the advent of TV by radio, Pulp Magazines and Newspaper strips More so to the present. American publishers used comic book characters as part of their propaganda machine during the Second World War while we here at home still indulged in our Dandys and Beanos

The American dream of super-heroes, baseball and football have been an integrated part of American culture from the time of conception. Therefore generation after generation have been subjected to super-heroes as an everyday form of entertainment.

During my trips to and from the USA, these differences become more and more apparent with my association with my colleagues across the Atlantic It is an everyday occurrence to walk into any comic store in the USA and see grandfather, son and grandson all purchasing their favourite super-heroes With the development of the multi media and licensing, it would be part of an everyday occurrence as well to see many of the super heroes on everyday products in and out of stores and supermarkets throughout the US from cereal packets to tins of beans

Other areas of major differences are licensing on a big scale throughout large corporate bodies such as Universal Studios extending their theme parks to incorporate an X-Men Mutant Ride and all the merchandise, Burger King with their special deals and kids meals incorporating licensed super-hero products, toy companies producing all major super-hero figures, card companies producing a wide range of cards covering super-heroes to TV shows. Other media such as television especially the Fox network screening new animated cartoon series (Spiderman, X-Men, Batman Maxx, Ultraforce) The new TV special Generation X recently shown in the US helps strengthen the US awareness of products available to the public, which are seen as major investment and marketing by US companies; for example all major comic companies pushing their titles at comic marts with artists appearing, signings at stores and comic distributors sponsoring comic conventions

Unfortunately none of the aforementioned are common to the UK market (take note publishers and distributors).

As such, this fact of comic book culture being integrated into everyday living highlights the major differences between our two markets. In the UK the comic book industry is still frowned upon and seen by many as adults playing with kids' books

On many occasions, when asked by people what my profession is, when I tell them I sell comic books they look at me in dismay which then brings us on to one major factor in the two markets, and that is product awareness.

As in New York and San Diego and in most major US cities, it is fairly commonplace to find people of professional standing such as lawyers accountants and doctors regularly visiting their local comic store in search of rare and collectible books for investment. Comics being one of the top investment commodities in the US stock market over the last few years older books have distinctly increased in value on a regular basis. It would not be an unusual occurrence for someone to approach a financial institution to request a loan to invest in comic books On the other hand, if you were to ask an English bank, you would be taken away by men in white coats.

This is the basis of why there is such a large scale investment of rare and collectible books in the USA. We have seen many recent examples of such speculation in the last few years where books of notable interest have sold 4–5 times the value of its counterpart here at home

Bearing this in mind, we would be hard pushed to compete in such an open and virile market. Such a difference can be seen in one key area and that is golden age books as the availability of such is virtually non existent here in the UK.

Therefore it is my personal belief that these differences could never really be bridged and we must therefore be thankful to our friends across the Atlantic for exposing us to this medium which has kept many of us from boys to men telling us of what things there are to come.

ORIGINS INDEX

(Foundation work by ANDY KYTHREOTIS)

Below is a work-in-progress listing of the first and/or most detailed origins of selected characters. Very often the origin of a character comes along with his or her first appearance but that is not always the case. Indeed comic publishers often delight in producing a more detailed "secret origin" story years later. While there are many characters missing from our list, at least it gives some idea and where to look to read up about your favourites.

We hope to expand this feature in a number of ways. Our first objective is to give first origin story and most detailed origin story to every character that appears in the First Appearance Index. Our second objective is to list all subsequent origin retellings for major characters like Batman, Superman and Spiderman for example. Any volunteers?
Any further information may be sent to the editorial address.

REPRINT INDEX

(compiled by the author while sifting through his collection one day)

Below is a list-in-progress of key issues that can be found reprinted elsewhere and usually at much less cost to the collector. This index is designed with budgeting in mind, as very often collectors may wish to own an original first issue or appearance but it proves financially impossible. Many of the classic stories have been reprinted at some time or another and for the novice it is a valuable way of learning about the great heroes and villains and their backgrounds.

Happy reading!

50 HOTTEST BABES PAST TO PRESENT

The 'Hot Babe' phenomenon of recent times is not necessarily a modern fad or fashion
Below is a list of what in our opinion are the most popular 'Hot Babes' to be found in comics over the last 35 years, that's since American Comic Books were distributed in the UK. Obviously this is a very subjective feature but as with any article any further information is greatly appreciated (please submit any further information to the Editorial address given on the inside front page,

SUCCEEDING IN BUSINESS

SURESH TOLAT OF CASSON BECKMAN

Over the last 10 years, the comic industry has continued to grow with many new businesses starting up. In many cases, it is the enthusiastic collector who has started up using his own collection as his initial stock. Often these businesses fail so I set out below the main points that should be considered before taking the step of setting up your own business:-

1 Consider whether to start a full time business or initially trade on a part-time basis with a view to eventually going full-time. You must be sure that you have sufficient time to devote to your business.

2 Prepare a business plan which should cover the following:-

- a. Target Market.
- b. Site of business/Mail Order
- c. Cashflow forecasts
- d. Sources of capital.
- e. Division of profits (if applicable)
- f. Promotion methods/Advertising

3 Consider whether to be self employed (or a partnership) or to set up a limited company. Self-employment has its advantages with regard to expenses but a Limited Company gives more protection. If setting up a partnership there should be a formal partnership agreement which sets out the specific duties of each partner and their profit share.

4 Ensure that you have a good knowledge of the current state of the market and that you read all the relevant trade magazines. In addition, establish that you have good contacts amongst other dealers who can often give practical advice.

5 Ensure that proper bookkeeping records are kept so that accounts can be prepared. With the advent of self-assessment, it will become even more essential (see note below)

6 Ensure that you have proper professional advice at the outset from your bank manager/accountant/solicitor - rather than when problems are encountered.

Once you have decided to commence the business, the following should be informed as soon as possible:-

1. The Inland Revenue
They will require to know of your change of status and you should write to your own Tax District advising them of this. If you have no Tax District, then you should write to your local Tax District. They will then send you the appropriate forms for completion to enable them to set up the appropriate records.

In addition, if you have not done so before, you will have to submit a Tax Return detailing your income and claim for allowances to your Inspector of Taxes on an annual basis. The appropriate Tax Return form will be forwarded to you once you have notified them of your change in status.

2. The Department of Social Security
This Government Office is responsible for dealing with National Insurance Contributions and you are required to notify them when you start a business. This will enable them to calculate the contributions that should be paid. If you are self-employed, you will normally have to pay the flat rate Class 2 National Insurance Contributions. In addition, Class 4 National Insurance Contributions have to be paid on your profits between certain defined limits.

3. The Customs & Excise

Normally you only have to register for VAT once your turnover reaches a certain level (which is at present £47,000). However, as comics are zero rated for Value Added Tax purposes, it is advantageous to voluntarily register as this means that the VAT on most expenses incurred can be reclaimed from the Customs & Excise.

SELF ASSESSMENT AND THE SELF EMPLOYED

Many of you will have heard of "self assessment" either from the advertisements in the press or on television. However, although the Revenue have tried to emphasize their helpful side, they have not pointed out the more sinister side which will affect all small businesses, especially those that are in the main cash businesses. It is certain that the new system places a greater responsibility on small businesses which, to begin with will mean extra work.

As the first new style Tax Return will not be issued until April 1997, it does mean that all individuals should be properly prepared from 6th April 1996. Everyone affected by the changes will find it much easier to cope if their tax affairs are up to date before the new system is introduced. Some of the main points that have not been highlighted in great detail during the Revenues advertising campaign are the following:-

a. The new Tax Return is in itself much larger than before. The basic return comprises of only six foolscap pages but there may be a number of additional schedules that need to be completed. Although the first new Tax Returns will be issued in April 1997, if you wish the Revenue to calculate your tax liability, they must be submitted by 30th September 1997. However, if the individual wishes to do the calculation himself, the deadline is 31st January 1998.

b. If a tax return is not submitted by 31st January, there will be an automatic penalty of £100 (even if once the Tax Return is submitted there is no additional tax liability). If the Return is still outstanding six months later, the Inspector of Taxes may even seek a penalty of up to £60 for every days delay in sending in the Return.

c. At present if tax is paid late, interest will be charged. The Collector of Taxes will in future be entitled to make surcharges.

d. From 6th April 1996, it will be necessary for taxpayers to retain records to back up their Tax Return for at least five years after it has been filed. Failure to comply with this will result in a penalty of up to £3,000. Whilst it has always been necessary for records to be retained, this is the first time that you can be fined for non-compliance.

e. The Revenue are now allocating more resources to tax investigations and cash businesses will become likely targets. With self-assessment, the Inspector of Taxes no longer has to have reasonable grounds for opening up an investigation into an individual's affairs and may now challenge returns entirely at random.

f. Employers face an extra burden as they will be given fixed dates by which they must provide their employees with certain specific information about their pay, benefits and tax liability.

Obviously the above is not intended to be an exhaustive list of points as each individual's circumstances should be considered on its own merits.

HOT COMICS

A Personal Opinion by STANLEY RIIKS

LAST YEAR'S biggest TV hit was adapted in the hottest comic of the year. X-Files #1 was an under-ordered comic and at the first mart after the launch the comic was already selling for double its price and was working its way up to the £5.00 mark. Within a month issue #2 came out and it just wasn't seen at normal cover price. Orders for this issue were far less than for #1 and it disappeared even more quickly. And issue #1 was selling for around £15.00.

Issue #2 soon caught up with its predecessor and the series had continued to increase in price, the second issue now out-stripping the first and reaching upwards of £20.00. Issue #3 was the last issue of the first story arc and is now worth somewhere in the region of £5.00 in most areas of the U.K. But I have seen it for over a tenner and at the relatively cheap price of £4.00, both at the same mart.

Orders rose significantly for issue #4 and subsequent issues but those X-philes continue to grab up copies in the hope of speculative gain. The second story arc in issue #4 has long since moved at above the cover price but the rapid increase in sales means that later issues are in good supply and not so collectible. The series will no doubt continue with its success for the near future anyway.

Charlie Adlard's artwork is suitably moody and dark. The characters are recognisable but only just. The stories are the strong point of the comic as with the series and packaged beautifully with some great covers by Kim. The general disdain for the comic from most reviewers hasn't stopped the price rising and does seem a bit envious. The comic is not great and doesn't really deserve the amount of speculative attention it has received but with the various reprints available the early issues are quite easily accessible at reasonable prices and well-deserving of your cash. Just don't splash out on those first printings expecting to get a great comic! But the quality of both artwork and writing is improving. The current price for X-Files #1 seems to be up to about £30.00 in the U.K. and about $50.00 in the U.S.

Other hot titles of the past year with an X in the title include Marvel's X-family. The whole series of titles went through a major revamp-type cross-over with the After Xavier: The Age of Apocalypse storyline. The first book of this huge summer cross-over was selling over its cover price the day it was shipped! X-Men Alpha has steadily increased in price since it came out and now reaches in excess of £5.00. Almost the entire cross-over series is seeing increases. The Alpha issue is highly sought after and continued increases are expected due to availability of the title. At the UK Comic Art Convention '95 there were only three copies on sale in the Dealer's Room.

The cross-over series produced what will probably be the top selling book of 1995 with the final chapter in the story: X-Men Omega. These books owe their success much more to hype and dedicated X-fans than quality or significance of story: after it was all over not a great deal had really changed as the alternative X-universe returned to virtual normality and Xavier was alive again. Probably the most blown out of proportion cross-over in history (so far!)

Also the Generation X book seems to have got the attention of comic fans everywhere, voted the second best book by the reviewers of Comics International. As drawn by hot artist Chris Bachalo, the book is beginning a slow but steady price rise and this is a book to watch in 1996. The best of the X-titles without a doubt, this is a book that deserves a little more interest than the others and is beginning to get it

The success of that huge cross-over also spawned an increase in back-issue sales of the X-Men titles after a slump in all back-issue sales. The only other back-issues moving were Spawn and Spiderman. The latter's back-issue sales were bumped into action by the Clone storyline. This was a story revealing that Peter Parker hasn't been Spiderman since the first appearance of the Clone way back in Amazing Spiderman #149 and many feel that more upheavals in the Spider-family will confuse continuity even more. The price of the early appearances of the Clone rose quickly, peaking at up to £100 for Amazing Spiderman #149 but have since dropped just as dramatically to settle at about £50.00.

Spawn however did not lose the price increase it gained and its first spin-off, Angela, written by our very own Neil Gaiman, is rapidly increasing in price and this will almost certainly continue. The ongoing series of Spawn, the toy collection and numerous other Spawn projects will keep the popularity of the character and related characters in the Top 10.

Spawn had two spin-off mini-series in 1995 with the Alan Moore written Violator and Badrock and Spawn: Bloodfeud. Good sales for both have been instrumental in the price increase in early issues of the ongoing series but as yet no movement in the later mini-series. Watch them for the coming year though!

Another Gaiman-written project, The Sandman, is coming to an end with issue #75 and Vertigo's top-selling title – and probably the most acclaimed in comics history – has been steadily increasing in price and will continue to do so. The first issue varies tremendously in price and has been seen for as much as £30.00. And such success will probably continue as Gaiman says he will be working on Sandman one-shots and a second Death mini-series is in the works. The Sandman is one of the best comics to come out for many years and its back-issues are relatively cheap for such quality. Highly recommended are issue #19's Midsummer Night's Dream story and the Seasons of Mist storyline from issues #21-28

Talking of Death, the mini-series has been increasing along with the Sandman on-going series. With the issues reaching as much as £7.00 in some areas of the U.K., it's one to watch.

Another Vertigo title that has proved to be a big hit is the brilliantly written and drawn Preacher by Garth Ennis and Steve Dillon. This is one of the best comics to appear since Sandman and is the logical successor at the top of Vertigo's line-up. Sales are picking up for this title and prices on the first four issues are constantly on the move with the first issue being regularly seen for £8.00. The comic is going to increase in price for a while as long as the quality is maintained and more acclaim is likely to follow as and when graphic novels and trade paperback collections of the series are produced.

Babe comics have been hot in the last year Vampirella, Shi and Lady Death have all been increasing in value and will continue to do so for as long as this current fad will last. First issues of Vampirella are reaching the £20.00 mark, Shi #1 as much as £25.00 and the first issue of the first Lady Death mini-series has been seen at £50.00

Glory, a reasonably good babe book from Image in the capable hands of Mike Deodato, is another hot book with the alternative cover version of issue #1 selling for about £5.00. Dark Horse's Ghost by Adam Hughes is another of the better babe books around. This will be moving in the future and is one to watch. But some of the worst comics in the last year have been following the current craze and producing rip-offs like Double Impact and the Barbi Twins If this at best mediocre material continues to find an outlet, it will be the most significant factor in the ultimate demise of the genre.

Glory artist Mike Deodato's run on Wonder Woman is increasing in price as he becomes more of a "hot" artist although his story-telling abilities have been called into question. The first issue of his run, #88, is particularly sought after and is seeing sale prices of £5 00. His run on the title has established the character as a force to be reckoned with in the DC universe after years of poor sales

1994's Gen 13 mini-series has given rise to a very successful on-going series with issue #1 of the mini-series fetching up to £30.00 and all the other issues increasing in price right up there behind it. The thirteen alternative covers of issue #1 from the ongoing series were a nightmare for collectors and a positive boon for dealers with all the rarer alternative covers reaching prices of between £15.00 and £20.00 in a fairly short space of time. The on-going series Gen 13 #2 is also fast rising in price as it was part of the Wildstorm Rising storyline

The alternative or variant cover trend continues with most examples immediately bringing a price of £5.00 or thereabouts. And there seems to be no sign of collector's reluctance to part with their cash

The last year has been mixed with regard to back-issue sales largely owing to the interest in new material (and some exorbitant cover prices) - there is just not enough money to go round. Prices have remained static on lower grade issues and even gone down Increases are generally only on the top grades. There is some hope for back issues with publishers now cutting back some of their lesser titles and putting some proper thought and arranging good creative teams on even standard titles. Perhaps then hot books will be created for the right reasons – not gimmick covers or bikini babes with big guns but the simplest formula of all: good stories told well

REFLECTIONS OF A COMIC COLLECTOR

by Ian G. Holmes

IT'S A LONG TIME since November 1959, a date that's of great historical importance to many comic collectors in the U.K. Some would refer to it as the birth of the Silver Age in this country

My introduction to the hobby of comic collecting was some 18 months later thanks to a school friend who had the June 1961 issues of Action, Adventure, Lois Lane, Jimmy Olsen and Superman

Within days of this first encounter Superman became my reason for living and Clark Kent had the job that I was going to relieve him of when I left school. I quickly extracted from my friend the source of these little gems and the mad rush was on to get to the market stall newsagents as soon as the Saturday morning matinee credits began to roll.

The fact that my mum gave me more pocket money than his mum gave him, coupled with his craving for pop-corn, ice-cream and chocolate during the interval definitely gave me the edge when it came to buying power. Within a few months you can imagine the scene of a little 10 year old proto-comic book dealer supplying his school mates in the playground although in those days we all referred to it as "swaps" (one to him, two for me was my particular angle). I must admit though that when he picked up a Superman Annual #4 from the second-hand comics stall (sorry, "back-issue") it blew me away so much that I actually gave him 5 comics for it!

I noticed that it didn't have a thick cardboard cover like my Dandy and Beano annuals and I saw for the first time the actual covers of the stories within on the back cover. I could spend hours looking at these classic covers of issues that I thought at the time I could never hope to own. The one where Superman has a mysterious new power radiating from his finger-tips, where a knight in armour had wounded him and Superman's arm was bandaged or Superman's future wife where her head was blanked out and you had to guess who it could possibly be (it could only be Lois). DC were very good at provocative covers depicting a situation that could not possibly happen if you knew the circumstances and powers of the heroes and the relationships of the supporting cast concerned. The company also had a habit of listing partial covers and story headlines inside in a feature called Coming Attractions and invariably there was always one that you couldn't get. A couple of years after my first Superfamily encounters (this would be early 1962), my newsagent's pile got noticeably bigger. It seemed there was a second bunch of books from another company called Marvel sitting next to the regular pile of DCs. At first I would just flick past these and pay no attention whatsoever (I have a recurring nightmare of the issues of Fantastic Four #1 and Amazing Spiderman #1 that I must have passed up in my quest to find my favourites. Come to think of it I remember trading back some odds 'n sods like Amazing Fantasy #15 and Hulk #3 not realising they were Marvels…). But one day I thought "I'm feeling flush, let's go check out these Avengers and X-Men. After all they must be worth reading for only 9d each" The rest, as they say, is history. Everything in sight was purchased. Saturday became a day of hunting for those missing issues (I biked for miles) reading them in the safety of my room and reflecting on what it might be like to be one of the super heroes. Many years later, pressure from my friends stating that 20 year olds don't read comics and the fact that it's now 1971 and distribution of current titles seemed to have dried up made me put the lid on my hobby and also on the chest that I stored them in until early 1989

All of a sudden Superman, Batman, Spiderman and the Hulk are characters that everyone has heard of. There were articles about them in the daily newspapers and they even had their own TV programmes and movies.

(Another favourite!)

Time to visit the loft and lift that lid I thought. You often see a seasoned Silver Age collector sniffing a comic. Well I got 10 years worth all in one go. A touch of acid in the odd issue but what a rush!

After a bit of investigative digging and delving I was soon the owner of a Steve Rock Grading Guide, a Justin Ebbs sales catalogue and a Duncan McAlpine British Price Guide, the one with Batman on the cover.

The next choice was very difficult and I'm sure it's one that other collectors have faced when they re-discover their old comics. Do I try and fill in the many gaps in my collection at the overwhelming prices before my very eyes (I mean, Showcase #4 was a whopping £750!) or do I sell the lot for a percentage of the same? After all none of the 1500+ books in my collection had cost me more than 10d each.

During the pondering period a friend of mine who was aware of my dilemma mentioned that he knew of a shop that actually sold nothing but comics and it was only 30 minutes drive away. Within four months I was an equal partner in this comic retail store and owned half of an inventory of twenty five thousand books. Most items from 1971 to 1989 that I never knew existed were all of a sudden there to be read. A new trade paper called Comics International had recently been published and comic marts were being advertised around the country. At that time I thought to attend each of the 5 or 6 venues on offer throughout the whole year would be quite a workload but worth the effort if it meant that the shop would make a profit and I could sell some of my comics quickly.

The first one in Birmingham was a real eye opener. I carefully blue-tacked my Avengers #1 and Daredevil #1 to the back wall and sold both within 10 minutes for £85 and £95 respectively. Both had suffered grade wise from poor storage and multiple readings but I still felt guilty at the fact that I had just made £179.90 clear profit. An observant dealer opposite assured me that it's perfectly okay to buy books, sit on them for 25 years and sell them for guide price. He then commented "You actually read them?" I didn't get the joke at the time.

Alas the speculator boom quickly educated me to the fact that even this wonderful hobby of ours has its darker side.

Mart dealers who had already forked out for their tables (prices rising as marts became more popular) appeared to be forced into displaying these so called "hot items" as these were what seemed to be selling. The multiple purchasing of some speculators left supplies short resulting in the poor old customer who was actually buying the book to read paying over cover price for it. Back issue sales suffered as a consequence. Dealers were buying from dealers and all because profit was the name of the game at the end of the day.

Without wishing to go into great detail as this is neither the time nor the place, I myself could speak as a victim of what I have come to regard as the appalling word and concept called "speculation". As a dealer and collector I found that when such speculation was at its height both shop and marts sales suffered equally. This along with the continual feeling in my head of wanting everything that came into the store for myself forced me to sell my half to avoid a clash of interests. It turned out to be a wise choice as like so many aspiring outlets no profits means no store hence it now ceases to exist. Some good came out of it though by way of an observation of the behaviour amongst dealers. As part of "the gang" in some instances I saw and heard some dreadful back-biting and gutter-press politics. Yet at other times there seemed to be an unwritten law and an unquestioned trust within the ranks. If a book was reported stolen the entire network would act as one to identify the item if offered for sale to enable a safe return to their fellow dealer so he was not out of pocket for too long.

Eventually, books are sometimes offered to you for approval prior to payment. Likewise, dealers are trusted with customers books to sell on consignment and everyone can work together. This scenario may be idealistic but it exists.

The suggestion of obtaining a second opinion prior to finalising a purchase is something I would highly recommend in my experience. This will clearly benefit the highly respected dealers and send the less considerate ones to the back of the queue. On the other hand when you hear of a collector who is ready to sell his books to (hopefully) make a profit and he's told that "This book has been restored" or "This has been trimmed" and that old favourite "There's a colour touch and new staples in this one". All well and good if he and the buyer knew all this from the onset and the collector paid accordingly and is willing to accurately report these grade considerations on to a prospective purchaser. Not quite such good news if original collector and potential purchaser discover something after close inspection. Such situations can either make or break friendships, make or break dealer/customer relations. With so many key books coming from the States purchased through the mail or as a last minute trade at the end of a mart, a weary head and a tired eye can sometimes lead to a lapse in concentration and book scrutiny. I am of the opinion that there are more restored books in the U.K. market than most people realise.

I can only end this personal trip down memory lane in perhaps the way I should have started it. We have all purchased this price guide because we have a common interest—comic books. If you are spending or thinking of spending considerable sums of money on the hobby you love, read price guides, seek professional opinions, do your homework and learn as much as you can about grading and prices, restoration techniques and the way local and global markets work. Everyone at one time or another has made a bad deal or suffered one. It's when it keeps happening that the love of your hobby becomes extinguished.

SIGNED & NUMBERED LIMITED EDITIONS

BY GRANT RYMER

With a grateful assist from Geoff West of Conquistador

WELCOME AGAIN to the most unique section of the U.K. Price Guide and especially to all the new American readers.

The editions listed here are not of the kind currently being produced by certain American companies which are ordinary copies of the comics except for the signature and a Certificate of Authenticity Rather, the editions listed here are those which have been specifically printed in order to be signed. There is a strictly limited print run, most commonly between one and two thousand copies. Many have new covers, a new art plate for the signature and new editorials.

The books in this Signed and Numbered Limited Edition Hardbacks section are also different from their respective trade paperback or previous hardback editions. Almost all have a new plate set in the frontispiece and in some cases a slipcase, expanded stories, sketch pages and text pages by the artist and author respectively. The plate is usually a unique piece of art with spaces specifically for signatures, the number of the copy and the total number of copies printed.

Currently, the two main publishers of Signed and Limited Editions are Graphitti Designs and Dark Horse Publishing. Dark Horse only publish editions from work already previously published by themselves either in comic or trade paperback format. Graphitti on the other hand publish a wide variety of material from companies ranging from DC to Epic, Pacific Comics to First Publishing. Graphitti publish no comics in their own right.

In the past a significant number of editions were also published by Eclipse and Kitchen Sink

The Signed and Numbered Limited Edition Hardback represents the very pinnacle of production in the comics industry. They are produced very much for the connoisseur and in general feature the finest material the comics medium has to offer.

As investments they are not for the recent breed of "comics speculator". They tend to hold their value well but owing to the high initial cost and with few exceptions they tend to appreciate slowly. That said, once sold out from the publisher, prices can vary greatly owing to what some fans will pay for an edition they particularly want.

Also included in this section are Signed and Numbered Limited Edition trading cards, portfolios, trade paperbacks and prints. Both the prints and portfolios sections should be regarded as only a small sample of what is a vast body of work.

MARKET OVERVIEW

During the time since the last U.K. Guide (just over a year and a half ago at the time of writing) the comics indistry has suffered something of an implosion, greatly affecting the output of most companies.

However the highly specialised production of Signed and Numbered Limited Edition hardbacks has suffered relatively little with both the major players (Graphitti and Dark Horse) producing new material and even Marvel entering the high priced hardback market with its Marvel Limited Books The Marvel Books will not be listed in this section however as they chose not to do them as signed editions.

Hardbacks
Fairly static although the retail price of new editions is increasing dramatically

Prints & Portfolios
Very static. Virtually nothing of interest produced outside the big names such as Olivia.

Trading Cards
The trading cards market is generally very strong but there seems to be very few signed and numbered ones around. Any information would be greatly appreciated

Comics
There are still very few companies producing truly worthwhile signed editions. However, any Cry For Dawn signed and numbered limited editions are on fire!

General rule of thumb – buy only what you really like. See you next time

NOTES ON THE GRAPHITTI SECTION

1) All of the Hellraiser volumes have two versions. Version 1 is signed by various creators who worked on the series and is limited to 1,500 copies (except Volume III which is 1,000 copies). Version 2 is signed by various of the creators plus Clive Barker. It is leather-bound and is limited to 500 copies.
2) Although all volumes of Akira are officially listed as unsigned, there are very limited quantities (between 12 and 15 copies) of Books 1-3 which are signed. Apparently Otomo did not want to get involved in the "commercialism" of signing all the copies.
3) Strange Adventures was delayed owing to the death of Harvey Kurtzman and although he has not signed all the copies, Graphitti say that he has signed "enough" and it should have been released in late 1994.
4) Stray Toasters has been indefinitely delayed and, as yet, no release date has been announced.
5) Graphitti's first ever edition The Rocketeer had a "sub-set"; as well as the books numbered 1 - 1,000 there were 26 additional copies numbered A - Z. These were created as artists' proofs and gifts for people involved in the production of the book.
6) Mythology of an Abandoned City is Graphitti's 43rd edition, however the number does not actually appear anywhere in the book. It is a boxed set which, as well as containing the book, comes with a CD featuring music composed by artist Jon J. Muth to accompany the story.

GRAPHITTI/DC CO-PRODUCTIONS

Number/Title	Print Run	Value
(NN) BATMAN: THE DARK KNIGHT RETURNS	4,000	£225.00
(NN) HISTORY OF THE DC UNIVERSE	2,000	£ 25.00
(NN) ENEMY ACE: WAR IDYLL	1,000	£ 50.00

NOTES ON THE GRAPHITTI/DC SECTION

1) Although the plates in Enemy Ace: War Idyll are numbered to 2,000 a last minute decision was taken to produce only 1,000 copies. It is also of note that the volume itself is designed to be a replica of the diary kept by the main character of the story.
2) Batman: The Dark Knight Returns also has a "sub-set" which again is numbered A – Z. These copies are additionally signed by Lynn Varley and Klaus Janson.

GRAPHITTI/IMAGE CO-PRODUCTIONS

Number/Title	Print Run	Value
1. SHADOWHAWK	5,000	£ 45.00
2. SAVAGE DRAGON	5,000	£ 45.00

NOTES ON THE GRAPHITTI/IMAGE SECTION

1) Owing to the splintered nature of the various studios publishing under the Image Comics banner, there is no "official" agreement between the two companies. It does however seem likely that there will be more editions following the two already released.

NOTES ON THE ECLIPSE SECTION

1) Some of the above limitations have yet to be verified so the above list should not be taken as 100% accurate. The majority of Eclipse's signed editions are clothbound.
2) Alex Toth's Zorro is a two volume set in one slipcase.
3) The Hobbit volume comes boxed.

NOTES ON OTHER COMPANIES SECTION

1) The Complete Robert Crumb is an on-going series and the ten volumes published so far cover his work up to the mid 1970s
2) The remarkable thing about the Ray Bradbury Chronicles is that as well as being signed by Mr Bradbury himself, barring death the five volumes are each signed by every creator who ever worked on them.
3) No Man's Land is a companion volume to Graphitti's Enemy Ace book, containing the research, background material and sketches produced by writer/artist George Pratt in the making of Enemy Ace War Idyl
4) There are two different signed and numbered editions of Quadrant.
5) Geof Darrow's Comics & Stories is a French edition and there is very little text. It also contains a magazine.

NOTES ON THE COMICS SECTION

1) Cry for Dawn #8 is the "fan club" edition, available only through the fan club and almost impossible to find in this country. Cry for Dawn #6 is the only issue of the title, in both the regular and signed & numbered editions not to feature Dawn on the cover

2) Copies of Omega #1 were recalled and destroyed by Northstar following threatened legal action by Marvel Comics over copyright infringement. The initial print run was 1,900 but it is unknown how many of these survived The comic eventually reappeared as The Omen.

3) All of the Image ashcans are are "mini" comics with coloured card covers and black and white interiors.

4) The twelve issues of Vampire Lestat come in a slipcase which also contains The Vampire Companion #1 and 2.

5) Dawn is in a signed envelope with a sketch on it. Both editions of Dawn #1 are signed on certificates but have totally new covers

THE HISTORICAL AGES OF COMIC BOOKS

With the wide variety of comics available, this Guide has a listing that is necessarily selective in its starting points as collecting markets determine the viability of exactly what to spend time according values to. Throughout the American comics section, reference is made to titles and comics outside the listing scope of this book for the time being, particularly those comics of the Golden Age which have a vastly greater functioning market in America than in this country. It is hoped that in the not too distant future a complete main title Golden Age listing will be possible. For a more complete listing of Golden Age material, we recommend the Overstreet Guide currently in its 26th year.

AS WITH MOST OTHER HISTORICAL LEISURE INTEREST HOBBIES comic book collecting has its own set of generally accepted ages that separate different groups of comics to give some sort of historical perspective. British comics are generally referred to in time spans governed by actual dates and/or decades which need little explanation of the actual terms involved. Victorian, Edwardian, Twenties, Pre-War, War, Post-War, Fifties, Sixties, Seventies, Eighties and Nineties mean what they say though it is hoped to explore what exactly appeared when in a future article, as there are certain periods which are more complex than others. But American comic books have their own set of distinctive terms and phrases which are used in preference to simply naming the decade

THESE HISTORICAL AGES ARE BY NO MEANS SET IN STONE AND INDEED VERY OFTEN OVERLAP.

Significant dates prior to the establishment of the American comic book are as follows:

1876 – Humorous story and political cartoon magazines "Puck" and "Judge" appear.

1895 – The Yellow Kid by R.F. Outcault appeared as a regular cartoon in the New York Sunday World and The Sunday Journal, reprinted as a collection of strips in 1897

1911 – The Chicago American newspaper issues a number of books containing reprints of Sunday newspaper cartoon characters such as Mutt and Jeff The print run was about 50,000

1929 – The Dell Publishing Company issues a newspaper size collection of comic and cartoon strips called "The Funnies", reprinting material from what was affectionately known as The Funny Pages being a specific section inside the Sunday papers of the 1920s "The Funnies" ran for 13 issues and most of the strips were four-colour rather than black and white or red on white

1933 – Small, squat, hardcover books appeared called Big Little Books featuring characters from The Funny Pages newspaper sections and more significantly from film and film serials such as Tarzan and Flash Gordon. The format consisted of a full page of text next to a full page illustration alternating throughout the entire book

At this point the established terms of American comic book collecting come into play

Thus for the purposes of easy classification, the history and evolution of American comic books from 1933 on may be broken down into these ages:

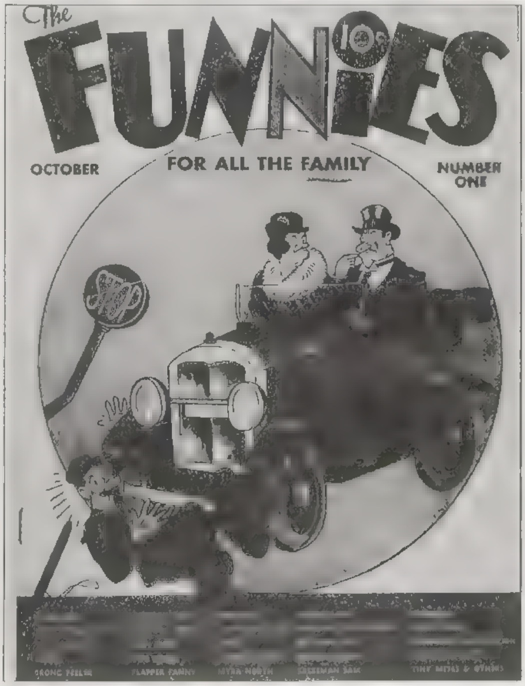
1933-1937 THE PRE GOLDEN AGE

Sometimes referred to as the "antediluvian" era, it dates from the first recognisable comic book, Funnies on Parade This was given away as a sales or radio premium. Famous Funnies #1 was the first comic book to be sold on the news-stands in the early part of 1934 It sold for 10 cents and had 100 pages of strips, puzzles and games. Only by issue #7 did it make money for the Dell Publishing Company and thus the comic book industry had begun. This age is characterised by non costumed heroes, usually police, secret agents and adventurers towards the latter half of the age with funny animals and slapstick characters in the earlier part 1935 saw a number of other companies and products come to prominence: King Comics produced by King Features, Tip Top Comics by United Features and Popular Comics by M.C. Gaines to name three of the most influential. 1936/37 saw the rise of Centaur Comics which produced Funny Picture Stories and Detective Picture Stories. The publishing group went on to produce much super hero material in the 1940's as Quality Comics

One publisher in particular went on to become the most well established

In February 1935, New Fun #1 was produced by Donenfield and Co in a format measuring 10" x 12", larger than the more standard format that the company went on to produce in comics like NEW FUN, MORE FUN, ADVENTURE and DETECTIVE COMICS, the latter from which the renamed National Periodical Publications took their modern intials DC Comics that today publish two of the most well known comic book characters, Superman and Batman. Most of these comics are very scarce and very rare in the U.K and very rare worldwide in anything approaching high grade condition. It is thought that less than 1% of comics published in this age remain today in any condition

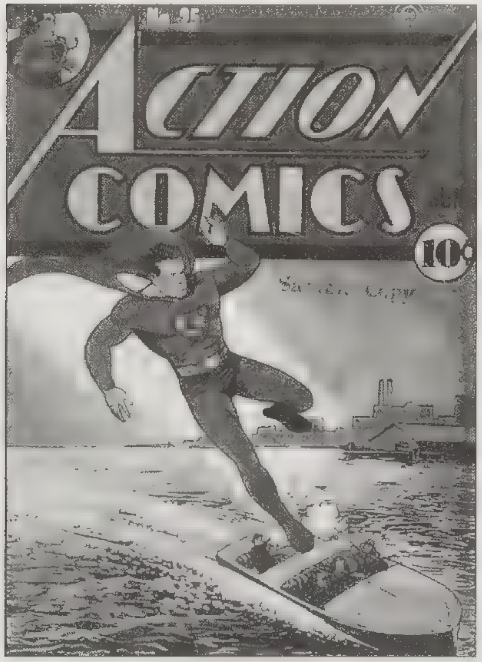
The rarest published comics are thought to be New Fun #2 (March 1935) which was the 2nd DC comic published and New (Adventure) Comics #7 (February 1937) also from DC. There may be fewer 6 copies in existence though these figures are difficult to verify. The most valuable comic from this period is Detective Comics #1 and its current U S and estimated U.K. value may be checked on the Top 50 Rarest Comics table elsewhere in this book.



The Funnies #1

1938-1945 THE GOLDEN AGE

Traditionally dating from Action Comics #1 which saw the first appearance of the archetypal costumed hero Superman and coinciding with the end of the Second World War, this was the age of the most famous costumed super-heroes of today Batman (1939), Sub-Mariner (1939) Human Torch (1939), Wonder Woman (1940), Flash (1940), Robin (1940), Green Lantern (1940), Captain Marvel (1940), The Spirit (1940) and Captain America (1941) all came to prominence during this period along with a host of successful and unsuccessful imitators. Some of these early comics may have come over to this country with the establishment of the G.I.'s and U.S.A.F. bases but they were not generally distributed and available. They are prized among collectors today as the most valuable items in terms of financial worth and historical significance. The two most valuable would be Action Comics #1 from June 1938 and Detective Comics #27 from May 1939 featuring the first appearance of Batman A copy of Detective #27 sold in 1994 for $135,000 (or £90,000 depending on which side of the Atlantic you stand) and though relatively high grade, it was by no means the best copy available. Superman #1 came out in the summer of 1939 and reprinted the first four Superman stories from Action Comics #1-4 in this one volume with some extra introductory pages. It is a comic that is thought to have been shipped over to the British mainland in an effort to test the viability of the market as there seems to be more copies of this comic in British collectors hands than other significant late 1930's comics. The massive paper drives of 1941 and particularly 1942 in America destroyed millions of comic books for the War Effort and comics dated before this time are generally in much scarcer supply than all others



Action Comics #25

1946-1949 THE LATE GOLDEN AGE

This period saw the beginning of a decline in the popularity of the super-hero and the establishment of a much wider variety of genres from movie and television comics to crime, horror and mystery titles. For example, 1947 saw Timely (later to become Atlas then Marvel) introduce its first crime comic called JUSTICE which prided itself on the fact that the stories were based on fact while 1948 saw TWO GUN KID from the same publisher as the first all Western comic The exception to this variation from the super-hero genre was the phenomenally successful story of Fawcett's CAPTAIN MARVEL which saw sales recorded in the millions per month rather than the hundred thousands. Encouraged by this and the steady sales of SUPERMAN at around the one million mark per month Superboy #1 was published in 1949 though the same year saw SUB-MARINER COMICS falter with #32 and the great MARVEL MYSTERY COMICS end with #92 to become MARVEL TALES.

1950-1954 THE PRE SILVER AGE

More comic titles were published at the beginning of this period than at any other time (estimated to be a staggering 74 million individual copies per month at its height) though in one sense these years are often thought of by some as "The Dark Ages" of comics as paper quality and paper rationing meant slimmer comics which do survive today in the best of condition but in much smaller relative percentages. For sheer depth in diversity, this period is unparalleled. One comics' historian has noted that there were over 50 horror titles per month published between 1951 and 1954. While genre comics flourished, super-heroes like Sub-Mariner and Captain America finally saw the sunset. The rise of the horror comic and in particular the line published by EC Comics lead to a series of Congressional Hearings in 1954 which sought to prove a direct correlation between comics and rising juvenile delinquency. The net result was the establishment of The Comics Code Authority in 1955 to which all comics were morally obliged to subject themselves. In many cases this established a generally safe formulaic approach to story and character. A notable exception are the "monster" comics like Journey into Mystery Strange Tales, Tales of Suspense and Tales to Astonish with the bold art styles of Steve Ditko and Jack Kirby to name but two. Concerns with a post nuclear age global divide and faltering exploration of space became characterised in the mid and late 1950's by an array of fantastic monsters with names and story titles to match the best B movie cliches: "Groot, The Monster from Planet X", "Fin Fang Foom" and "Gigantus The Monster That Walked Like A Man"

1955-1965 THE SILVER AGE

The Silver Age relates to the Golden Age in that this period saw the re-launch of a number of costumed heroes in an up-dated form. Traditionally dating from Detective Comics #225 (Nov 1955) which introduced the first significant new hero The Manhunter from Mars for some years (since Captain Comet in Strange Adventures #9 in June 1951), it has since become more widely associated with Showcase #4 which introduced a new realisation (though essentially a revival) of The Flash. The mid point of this age saw a panoply of successful remodellings from a new Green Lantern in Showcase #22 (Sep/Oct 1959) through Aquaman in Showcase #30 (Feb 1961), Hawkman in Brave and the Bold #34 (Mar 1961) to Atom in Showcase #34 (October 1961) More significantly however was the appearance of Fantastic Four #1 in November 1961 which ushered in what has become known as "The Marvel Age" which saw the rapid introduction of Spiderman, Hulk, a re-discovered Sub-Mariner and Captain America and, not ashamed of besprinkling their epithets the"mighty" Thor For many collectors in this country this sub-age is the most revered and fondly remembered, particularly because most Marvel comics were officially distributed in this country and continued to be distributed in generally good supply. Thus complete sets were possible from first issues and fan involvement meant that there was more scope for having one's name mentioned or even a full letter to the Editor in print (look for the many letters submitted by U.K. though U.S. born radio DJ Paul Gambaccini when he was a young fan in Fantastic Four #7 for example). The Silver Age will continue to expand as it includes comics that are roughly 25 years old or more

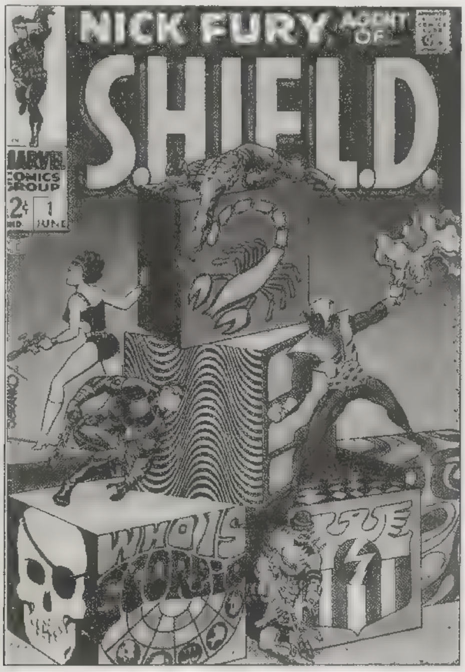
1966-1969 THE LATE SILVER AGE

This period is gradually being swallowed up by the advance of the Silver Age. Some collectors and dealers already accept the Silver Age as lasting right up to 1969, particularly in America. However, what characterises and makes this small period unique is a flourish of re-launched characters in their own titles, particularly from Marvel Comics. Hulk #102 (April 1968) continued the numbering from the anthology title TALES TO ASTONISH while Captain America #100 (April 1968) continued from TALES OF SUSPENSE. Iron Man #1 shortly followed in May 1968 and perhaps the most important mainstream publishing event came in August 1968 with Silver Surfer #1. At DC Comics there was a short-lived attempt to cash in on the energy of the hip and groovy youth with TEEN BEAT in December 1967 and BROTHER POWER, THE GEEK in October 1968. A chequered design ("go-go checks") found its way along the top edge of DC comic titles from February 1966 to July 1967 that sought to identify the company with a zappier image as well as being a marketing aid to find the comics more easily in the newsstand racks. Perhaps the most significant example of colourful camp came with the Batman television series that lasted three seasons from 1966 to 1969. Well remembered are those famous fight-scenes with pop art word sound effects splattered across the screen which found their way into the comic.

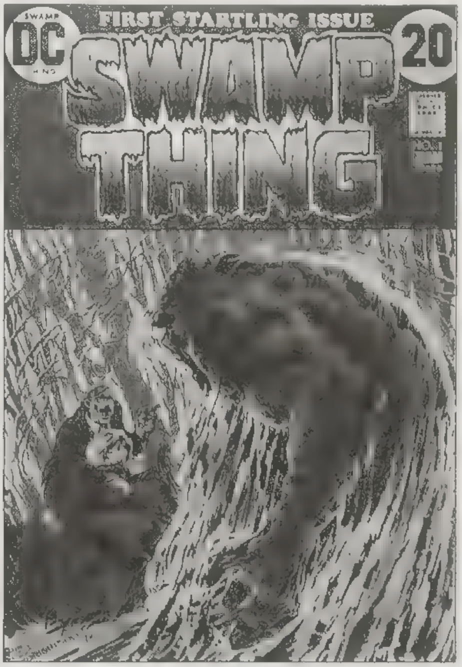


Nick Fury #1

1970-1979 THE SEVENTIES

This period is now becoming recognised in its own right as it is now twenty years removed and had a particular feel about it. In some cases that meant change with a revamp for Superman who had remained largely unchanged for over three decades. Clark Kent became a television reporter and that gruesome green chunk of rock called kryptonite transmuted to harmless lead. Supergirl got a wide variety of less than flattering costumes and Jack Kirby established his own unique art style in his "Fourth World" series including NEW GODS, FOREVER PEOPLE and giving Superman's pal Jimmy Olsen a few things to think about. Marvel Comics introduced Giant Size comics and multi-cross over annuals, some interesting characters like Killraven and Howard the Duck and hard, calculated market manipulation with endless reprint titles. For the first time, significant amounts of Marvel and a few DC comics were Non Distributed in the U.K. at the time of publication, leading to price differentials and new business opportunities for U.K. dealers. An air of uncertainty as to where comics were going lead (partly) to the DC Implosion of 1978 in which titles were cut back or cancelled after a period of steady exploration and the unquestioned establishment of Marvel as market leaders. Characters such as Deathlok and Wolverine, Ghost Rider and Punisher were all established in this period without any huge effect at the time but once re-introduced to modern audiences in new forms and formats, they enjoyed something of a renaissance through to the mid 1990's. In the current market, even these once extremely popular characters are subject to intense scrutiny for story quality and can easily become out of favour virtually overnight. This age is also referred to by some (mostly American dealers/collectors rather than U.K. ones) as "The Bronze Age" and traditionally it takes as its starting point the comic Green Lantern #76 which featured new dynamic art by Neal Adams and a more down-to-earth and human story-line by Denny O'Neil. Quite when this Bronze Age is supposed to finish is unclear, so much so that the term "Lead Age of Comics" has been known to crop up on U.D. dealer lists which is perhaps the jaundiced view by some older dealers and collectors on today's output of material. The Bronze Age may be established more fully in time but for now the use of the actual decades will suffice.

Indeed The Seventies may well prove to be an important era of character-rediscovery and potential financial investment as prices are still within most people's reach as Golden and Silver Age prices continue to soar.



Swamp Thing (1st) #1

1980-PRESENT THE MODERN AGE

Never before has the medium of comic books gained so much widespread exposure through film and television. Films like Batman, Dick Tracy, The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles and Judge Dredd have grossed hundreds of millions of dollars at the box office in the last 15 years and plagued youth market pockets with their merchandising. Television has yet to find its own comic book hero but Star Trek - Voyager, Deep Space Nine and Babylon 5 may at least herald a new wave. There are something like 150 comic and cartoon characters under developmental consideration so the staple diet of screen entertainment for the next few years is not hard to fathom. Comic companies have been at once bold and bland in their efforts to cash in on such media awareness. The Independent Explosion in the early 80's saw hundreds of small presses spring up to produce some interesting material, champion creator rights and artist royalty payments but sadly the duopoly of Marvel and DC has all but re-established itself as cold hard economics count in the world of comics. The graphic novel became an accepted art form and concomitant catchword to be pilloried. While the age may be characterised by new formats/high production value packages, media exposure as to the literacy and ultimate worth of comics has seen the inevitable backlash. Somewhere along the line someone forgot to mention that comics are still at root an escapist form of entertainment foremost with skillfully rendered art and fine story-telling making the most of the genre that for many still has its best potential to be realised. In spite of a world-wide market recession at the start of this decade, the future looks very bright for comics. More titles than ever before are being published with new experiments in story, art and subject. British artists and writers are held in the highest esteem on both sides of the Atlantic which is something that cannot be said of many industries in this country. Back issue collecting has never been more popular and record prices are being realised for comics in the best condition possible. Already several comics have passed the $100,000 mark and another is rumoured to be available soon at an unprecedented $200,000. But the real pleasure of the hobby is in the constant reading enjoyment and stimulus for thought that comics can bring, whether reading the latest in sociopolitical observations or fondly remembering a tale from one's childhood. After over 60 years of the American comic (and well over a hundred of the English variety), the genre is only now being recognised as something more than "kids stuff"

THE COMIC BOOK PRICE GUIDE INVESTMENT GUIDE

TO INVEST OR NOT TO INVEST, THAT IS THE QUESTION

by

DARRYL JONES (Silver Acre Comics)

EVERY MONTH it seems new comics are being shipped out and within weeks are selling for £5.00 to £10.00 or more, usually owing to "hot" artists, writers or characters. Then only a couple of months later they are back selling at or just above cover price again. Most collectors would have paid the inflated value for the one month old comic because they believed they were buying an investment, certain to appreciate in value. Let us face the fact that most comics with very few exceptions are produced in the hundreds of thousands and even millions of copies. As such they are unlikely to bring you a high return for your money for many years, if ever. In order to substantiate the chances of investment potential in a comic, I suggest investing in books which are at least 20 years old or more. An "un-hyped" 20 year old comic will very rarely, possibly if ever, drop in value. When buying new issues, buy them for the enjoyment of reading and if they go up in value, consider it a bonus.

The following are personal suggestions in no particular order of merit of comics to keep a close watch on as particularly undervalued comics at the present time in this country and reasons why they may prove to be good investments:

GOLDEN AGE PRE-1950

1. ACTION COMICS #23
   (1st Lex Luthor 1st Daily Planet)
2. SUSPENSE COMICS #3
   (classic L.B Cole)
3. CAPTAIN AMERICA #74, #75
   (Rare high demand Weird War tales)
4. DETECTIVE COMICS #26
   (1st appearance of Batman in advert)
5. MORE FUN #101
   (1st appearance Superboy)
6. BATMAN #47
   (1st detailed origin)

SILVER AGE 1950-1969

1. WONDER WOMAN #105
   (rare origin issue)
2. BATMAN #181
   (1st Poison Ivy – look for the centrefold pin-up of Batman and Robin)
3. GOLD KEY MOVIE TITLES
   (great investment potential)
4. AVENGERS #57
   (1st Vision. Major character)
5. METAL MEN #1
   (scarce in VFN or better)
6. SGT. FURY #1
   (stupidly cheap)
7. MARVEL TALES ANNUAL #1
   (scarce in the U.K. and over-looked)
8. OUR ARMY AT WAR #81
   (1st Sgt. Rock)
9. STAR SPANGLED WAR STORIES #90–137
   (dinosaur covers are red hot)
10. SHOWCASE #60
    (1st Silver Age Spectre)
11. STRANGE TALES #1
    (try finding a copy)
12. SUPERBOY #68
    (1st Bizarro a classic!)

1970s MODERN 1970-1985

1 AVENGERS ANNUAL #10
(1st appearance of Rogue)

2 FANTASTIC FOUR #126
(over-looked origin issue)

3 STAR WARS (MARVEL) #107
(scarce final issue and remember, the films are on their way)

4 ALL STAR SQUADRON #49
(1st modern appearance of Dr. Occult the Superman prototype)

5 WOLVERINE MINI-SERIES #4
(scarce in the U.K., Frank Miller work)

6 GIANT SIZE X-MEN #1
(price still rising)

7 SPACE 1999
(rare Byrne classics)

8 PHOENIX – THE UNTOLD STORY
(to complete the story)

9 CAPTAIN AMERICA #193
(Jack Kirby returns)

10 INVADERS #1
(Golden Age heroes return)

11 LONGSHOT
(Arthur Adams X-Man)

12 2000AD #1–100
(Britain's finest)

RECENT 1986 to date

1 SANDMAN #69
(death of Sandman. 1st new Sandman)

2 AZRAEL LIMITED SERIES
(1st appearance. Great art)

3 FORCE WORKS
(quality new material)

4 SPIDERMAN ALPHA
(high demand – scarce)

5 X-MEN ALPHA/OMEGA
(high demand – scarce)

6 INFINITY GAUNTLET #1–6
(high density character X-overs)

UNDER-VALUED COMICS

by JOHN PIRES of VAULT COMICS

Below is a list of Silver Age comics that I consider to be under-valued in today's U K market and concomitant reasons The comics are not placed in any particular order other than alphabetical/numerical. Any comments are invited via the new editorial address.

AMAZING SPIDERMAN ANNUAL #1 Marvel 1964

Very scarce in high grade. Copies that have perfectly bound square spines are almost impossible to find, particularly in the U K

ATOM #1 DC 1963

Under-rated early Hawkman appearance as well as the first team-up with Atom. Great cover by Murphy Anderson

AVENGERS #1 Gold Key 1968

Rare TV related comic. Being a British comic (a one shot) generates higher interest in this country than in the States However, seldom seen in either country.

AVENGERS #3 Marvel 1964

X-Men appear, same cover-date as X-Men #3. Dark cover

BATMAN #171 DC 1965

1st Silver Age Riddler. Pink cover that tends to fade. Scarce in NM

BATMAN #179 DC 1965

2nd Silver Age Riddler. Rare in almost any grade. Black cover makes it even tougher in NM

BLACKHAWK #108 DC 1957

With popularity in war comics on the increase in the U.K., this 1st DC issue is rarely seen and considering it came out at the same time as Showcase #6, it seems comparatively cheap.

CAPTAIN AMERICA #111 Marvel 1969

Classic Captain America cover by Jim Steranko. Most copies have off-white rather than pure white cover. NM copies very difficult to find.

DAREDEVIL #1 Marvel 1964

Still greatly undervalued in NM. Cover must be white not off-white or translucent. Top left corner a rich, dark green.

DAREDEVIL #57 Marvel 1968

Black cover featuring Dr. Doom. Copies in NM are scarcely found.

DELL GIANT #48 Dell 1961

1st Flinstones appearance is fast becoming the one to look for as the movie gets underway Unfortunately, this is easier said than done. Note: not listed in this Guide until actually studied by the author

DETECTIVE COMICS #327 DC 1964

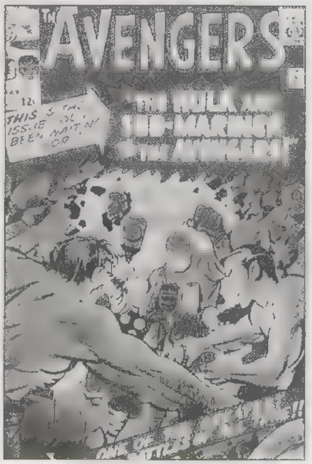
Undervalued and very scarce minor key Cover must be white in NM

DOUBLE LIFE OF PRIVATE STRONG Archie 1959

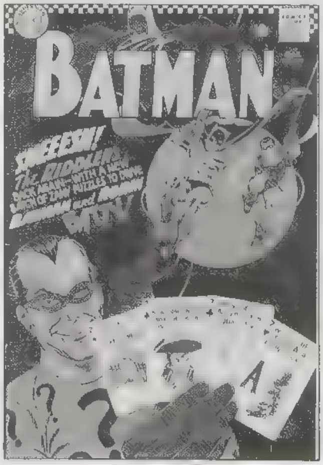
Kirby collectors are constantly on the lookout for this one. An extremely difficult key issue to find containing the origin of The Shield and actual 1st appearance of The Fly (1/2 a page)

FANTASTIC FOUR #25 Marvel 1964

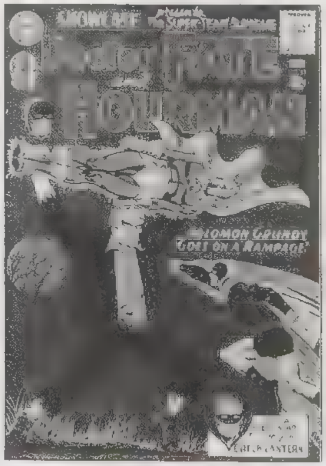
Key issue featuring Thing vs. Hulk Over-looked as the 2nd Silver Age appearance of Captain America. Dark cover making high grade copies hard to find.



Avengers # 3



Batman # 179



SHOWCASE
SOLOMON GRUNDY GOES ON A RAMPAGE!

Showcase # 55

FANTASTIC FOUR #52 Marvel 1966

The 1st appearance of The Black Panther - 1st black superhero. Interest and speculation is rising in this issue on both sides of the Atlantic and the dark cover will make it hard to find in high grade (VF+ or better)

FANTASTIC FOUR #112 Marvel 1971

Scarce comic. Black cover makes it tough to find without even the slightest stress marks along the spine.

FIGHTING AMERICAN #1 Prize 1954

An extremely scarce 1st issue in the U.K. from a run of 7. Most of these issues are found on plenty of Kirby fans wants lists but not at marts or on dealers sales lists

GREEN LANTERN #8 DC 1961

One of the best Silver Age DC grey-tone covers. Very hard to get in VF or better. This cover stands out well from all the surrounding issues of the title and should do so in price as well

HOUSE OF SECRETS #92 DC 1971

Greatly undervalued in NM. 1st Swamp Thing. Classic Bernie Wrigtson grey-tone cover.

IRON MAN #1 Marvel 1968

JUSTICE LEAGUE OF AMERICA #3 DC 1961

Probably the most difficult early issue to obtain from this title in any grade. A black cover makes it even harder to obtain in top shape.

MAGNUS ROBOT FIGHTER #1 Gold Key 1963

MILLIE THE MODEL ANNUAL #1 Marvel 1962

A very undervalued early Marvel annual. Strange Tales Annual #1 has always been thought of as the first Marvel annual. Millie came out in the same year and is by far more rare than S.T. Annual #1 in any grade, particularly in the U.K

MYSTERY IN SPACE #53 DC 1959

A very sought after painted (grey-tone) cover of Adam Strange which is hard to find above a Fine. A NM copy should bring around 1.75 times Guide, even in the U.K.

NICK FURY AGENT OF SHIELD #1 Marvel 1968

A great Steranko cover makes it a must for all who admire his art. Highly sought after but not often offered for sale in true NM in the U.K.

NICK FURY AGENT OF SHIELD #5 Marvel 1968

As with Captain America #111, even high grade copies copies tend to have off-white covers. A true NM is hard to come by

SGT FURY #1 Marvel 1963

Nick Fury has been around now for 33 years! His recent death highlights this issue even more. This issue contains his first ever appearance and actually pre-dates the first Daredevil, Dr. Strange and X-Men. Rarely seen for sale in any grade in the U K.

SHOWCASE #54 DC 1964

This is the 3rd Silver Age appearance of The Spectre and possibly the most scarce. It has a deep purple cover which shows up all the typical stress marks. Copies in NM are near impossible to find

SHOWCASE #55 DC 1965

Rarely offered for sale in the U.K. Dark purple cover makes it a true rarity in high grade

SHOWCASE #57 DC 1965

Black Joe Kubert Enemy Ace cover Very scarce in the U.K., rare in NM

SPECTACULAR SPIDERMAN MAG #1 Marvel 1968

Larger size format than #1, makes it tough to keep let alone get in top shape It has a black and white interior printed on a darker, lower quality paper. Although not as desirable as #2, still undervalued and scarcer than the 2nd issue

SPECTACULAR SPIDERMAN MAG #2 Marvel 1968

A greatly undervalued late Silver Age comic. Colour. Original Green Goblin story. This magazine size square-bound comic makes it very difficult to find in NM.

SUB-MARINER #8 Marvel 1968

As with F.F. #112, this comic has a black cover making it very scarce in anything better than a VFN

SUPERMAN #200 DC 1967

Rarely found in collections. This issue is nearly 30 years old and still cheap at U.K. Guide prices - if you can find one!

TALES OF SUSPENSE #32 Marvel 1962

"The Man in the Beehive". Issued 7 months after "The Man in the Ant- Hill" (Tales to Astonish #27) and 1 month before the first costumed Ant-Man. Could this have been the 1st "Bee-Man"? As with most dark cover pre-hero comics, this issue is scarcely seen and undervalued in high grade.

TALES OF SUSPENSE #49 Marvel 1964

Immensely undervalued early Avengers and X-Men appearance (same date as X-Men #3) has made this issue rise in demand but supply is low

TALES TO ASTONISH #60 Marvel 1964

This is the first Steve Ditko Hulk since the original Hulk series. It is often overlooked and overshadowed by the battle issue of #59

TIME TUNNEL #1 Gold Key 1967

A very under-rated TV series (the 1960s version of "Quantum Leap"). This first issue (of 2) is not easy to locate and extremely scarce in high grade owing to its black cover

X-MEN #18 Marvel 1966

A classic "floating heads" cover featuring Magneto. High grade copies are very difficult to locate owing to the dark cover

THE TOP 50 RAREST COMICS

Below is an excercise that I carried out to determine the Top 50 rarest comic books. It is based on personal observation with some advice from a few friends and collectors. The numbers are "best guesses" at the time of going to press. I recently noticed another Action Comics ashcan advertised by Pacific Comics Exchange, citing only three copies in existence

Therefore more information, particularly from American dealers, would be most welcome.

POS./TITLE/NUMBER — DATE — COPIES KNOWN

1) AMAZING MYSTERY FUNNIES 1940? 1

Discovered by Mark Wilson in America, it has the same cover as Amazing Man #23 from Centaur Comics but it has no number The reason is unclear

1) ALL STAR COMICS (ASH CAN) 1940 1

This comic was discovered by Jon Warren in America. It is an "ash can" copy or a publisher's in-house facsimile of a proposed new title and used to secure the name and design of the title. Most ash can comics have black and white covers stapled to an already existing coverless comic. Some ash cans are completely black and white throughout This particular ash can shows what was to be the cover for DC's Flash Comics #1 (January 1940)

1) BLOOD IS THE HARVEST 1950 1

This was issued by the Cathetical Guild as less than a comic and more of an illustrated pamphlet against Communism It is known in three forms and this is the black and white un trimmed version

[4) IS THIS TOMORROW? 1947 2]

Issued by the Cathetical Guild, a forerunner to Blood is the Harvest and the theme of Communists taking over America. This is the black and white advance copy. It is more of an educational pamphlet than a recognized comic book

5) ACTION COMICS ASHCAN 1938 3

This is the black and white ash can comic that was used to secure the title and design of Action Comics that was to feature the first appearance of Superman The cover shows a pirate type figure in head and shoulders close up brandishing a cutlass. This cover was eventually used in full colour for Action Comics #3, August 1938 A copy was on view for sale at the 1991 San Diego Comicon

5) SYNDICATE COMICS FEATURES 1937 3

Discovered by Mark Wilson in 1990, this comic was designed to promote the character Dan Hastings to all the newspaper comic sections. Dated November 1937, this 4 page comic has artwork by Fred Guardineer who did much work for other major companies. Look for his cover art on early issues of Action Comics.

POS./TITLE/NUMBER — DATE — COPIES KNOWN

The front is done in green and red ink, the interior is black and white. The size is much larger than normal comic size at 17" by 11" All three known copies are in VG condition

5) THRILL COMICS 1939 3

Fawcett Publications came up with an idea for a comic called Flash Comics starring Captain Thunder in 1939. The race was on to secure copyright. DC Comics (or National Periodical Publications as they were then known) beat Fawcett to it by publishing their own Flash Comics #1 cover dated January 1940 This Thrill Comics is an in-house ash can comic. re-titled from a second ash can Fawcett Flash Comics (same cover illustration of Captain Thunder snapping free from chains – see 19) to try and salvage the character of Captain Thunder Unfortunately in December 1939 Better/Nedor Publications filed for a title which was to appear cover dated February 1940 called Thrilling Comics so Fawcett had to change to Whiz Comics which eventually came out in February 1940 as wel

5) FEATURE BOOK (POPEYE) 1937 3

Issued by David McKay Publications, this hundred page comic had no number on the cover but was later issued as number 3, same interior but a different cover. It featured black and white newspaper reprints but unlike the ash cans, it is more of a recognized, proper comic. of the three known copies in existence, one is high grade and the other two are much lower grade

9) SLAM BANG COMICS 1940 3 TO 4

An ash can black and white produced by Fawcett to secure the title which appeared in 1940 (cover dated March). There is no cover illustration but the announcement "Featuring the episode adventures of Ibis the Invincible.." Estimated number of copies is difficult to confirm. The 1st Sotheby's catalogue for the sale dated Wednesday December 18th 1991 had an example on offer and claimed it was the only copy in existence which seems unlikely. Further research is obviously needed though it does seem to be the rarest of this type of ash-can

10) IF THE DEVIL WOULD TALK 1958 4

Issued by the Cathetical Guild, it treats of the threat of worldly temptations This is a black and white, small size version of the original colour version. More of a pamphlet than a comic.

11) FLASH COMICS VOL 1 1 1939 4 TO 5

This was the black and white ash can copy produced by DC to secure the title in the race with Fawcett (see 5). It is cover dated December 1939 and reprints the cover from DC's Adventure Comics #41 with an underwater scene of a shark attacking a drowning man

11) FLASH COMICS 1939 4 TO 5

This was the first (of three) black and white ash can copy produced by Fawcett in the race to secure the title (see 5 and 8). The cover has no illustration but rather the announcement "..featuring the episode adventures of Golden Arrow..". A copy was offered for sale at the 1st Sotheby's auction in December 1991. Other characters included Captain Thunder, Ibis and Dan Dare (not the British one!).

11) FIVE CENT COMICS 1940 4 TO 5

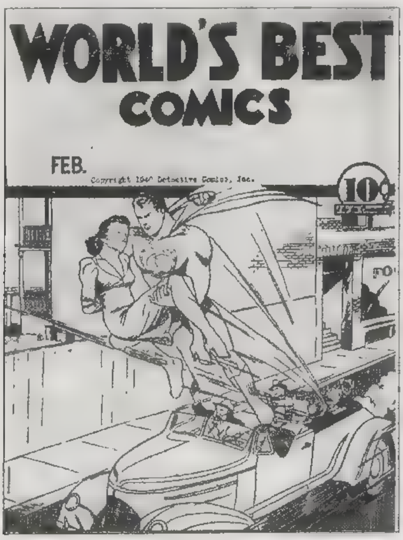
An ash can black and white produced by Fawcett cover dated February to secure a title which appeared in May 1940 as Nickel Comics featuring Bulletman. This copy has no cover illustration, only the announcement "Featuring the episode adventures of Dan Dare, brilliant young free-lance detective..". A copy was offered for sale in the 1st Sotheby's auction in December 1991

11) NICKEL COMICS 1940 4 TO 5

An ash can black and white copy produced by Fawcett to secure the idea of comics sold at 5 cents and indeed that title (see 10). There is no cover illustration but an announcement of "Featuring the episode adventures of Scoop Smith, daring young newspaper reporter..". A copy was offered for sale in the 1st Sotheby's auction in December 1991

11) WORLD'S BEST 1939 4 TO 5

This is another ash can comic cover dated February 1941 in order to secure copyright for the title of World's Best Comics which appeared in Spring 1941 and became World's Finest Comics with issue 2. The cover is a black and white reprint of Action Comics #29 showing Superman rescuing a bound and gagged Lois Lane from the back of a gangster's car. The interior is also made up from stock reprints from DC's inventory at the time.



16) WOW (1ST SERIES) 2 1936 4 TO 7

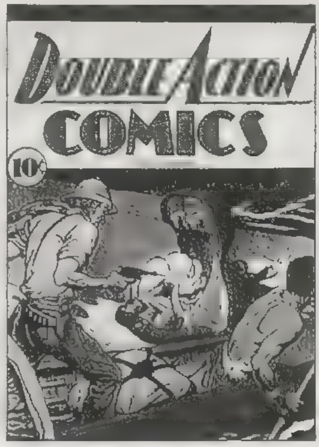
Sub-titled What a Magazine, this 52 page comic is magazine size and features characters like Fu Manchu and Popeye and artwork elsewhere featured is by Will Eisner. All copies of this four issue series are very rare but this is the rarest.

17) BLOOD IS THE HARVEST 1950 5

Issued by the Cathetical Guild announcing the impending threat of Communism, this is the black and white version of the original colour issue More of a pamphlet than a comic One of these has surfaced in un-trimmed condition (see entry #2).

18) DOUBLE ACTION COMICS 1940 5 TO 7

Dated January 1940 with a black and white interior, the colour cover is a reprint of Adventure Comics #37. It is not an ash can comic ie. it was distributed on the news-stands though issue 1 is thought to exist as an ash can as an experiment for Action Comics #1 that appeared in June 1938 (see Action Funnies - entry No 5 above) The style of the words "Action" and "Comics" is very similar to what actually appeared on the comic that launched Superman

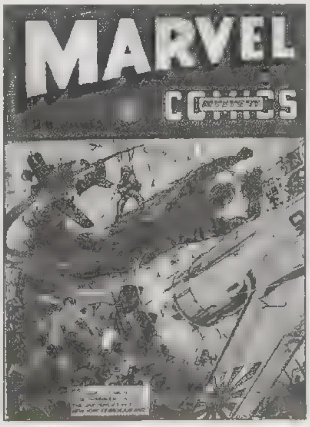


19) FLASH COMICS 1939 8

This was the second (of three) black and white ash can copy produced by Fawcett in the race for the title (see entries 5,11,11) Thinking that they had secured the title, a cover illustration of Captain Thunder was drawn, snapping free from chains whilst being attacked by two thugs When the existence of DC's own ash can Flash became known (see entry 11), Fawcett hastily re-drew the title to Thrill Comics (see entry 5). A copy was offered for sale at the 1st Sotheby's auction in December 1991. A copy was also sold in the U.K. in early 1994 for £18,000 in a cash and trade deal it was apparently the best surviving copy

20) MARVEL MYSTERY COMICS 1943/44 9

This 128 page comic was published during the classic Marvel Mystery Comics run which ended at issue 92 in June 1949 The interior is black and white. reprinting two Captain America stories and two other Marvel Mystery stock stories It has the colour cover of Marvel Mystery Comics #33. It was possibly an experiment to produce some kind of annual to accompany the series cover priced at 25 cents. One estimate of known copies puts it as low as three



20) FEATURE BOOK (DICK TRACY) 1937 9

Like the other no number Feature Book with Popeye (see no. 5), this was later reprinted as Feature Book #4 with a new cover dated August 1937. It is 100 pages long.

22) ALL NEW 15 1947 9/10

Smaller than standard comic size, it was distributed through the mail only (see Stuntman #3) Joe Palooka and Black Cat appear. Black and white cover and interior. Estimates vary between 4 and 15 copies in existence.

23) FAMOUS FUNNIES (SERIES 1) 1 1933 10

This was the first recognisable comic book sold. Funnies On Parade and Famous Funnies A Carnival of Comics were given away. It was reprinted from a combination of these latter two comics and historians estimate about 35,000-40,000 were printed to be sold in chain stores throughout the U.S. Estimates vary between 8 and 12 copies in existence with 1 in strict NM condition which would bring at least 50% more than Guide values.

23) COMICS MAGAZINE 1 1936 10

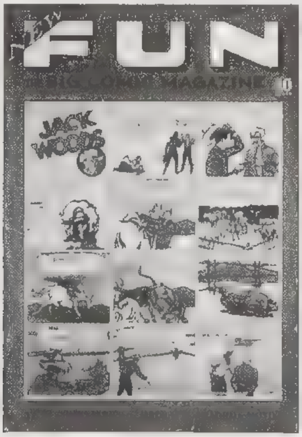
Cover dated May 1936 this much under-rated comic contains Dr Mystic, The Occult Detective by Siegel and Shuster as the inventory for this comic was sold by DC Comics from the pages of their magazine More Fun Comics. This first ever origin of a super-hero continues in the pages of DC's More Fun Comics #14 Dr. Mystic is a Superman prototype as his costume resembles Superman's and he can fly. Even though Superman appeared in 1938, the idea had been evolving as early as 1934

23) NEW COMICS 2 1936 10

Cover dated January this comic is thought to be one of the rarest DC comics though others would disagree citing anything from 21 to 50 copies. Federal Men by Siegel and Shuster begins, a strip that went on to feature in Comics Magazine

23) NEW FUN 2 1935 10

Cover dated March this is the second DC comic published and it is thought to be the rarest; certainly it has the tradition of being the hardest to find



23) STUNTMAN 3 1946 10

This comic is smaller than standard comic size at 5" by 8". It was distributed through the mail only rather than sold on news stands It was only discovered to exist a few years ago

23) DANGER TRAIL 3 1950 10

Cover dated November/December this comic is only very recently thought to be the rarest pre-Silver Age comic The whole short-lived title (5 issues) is hard to come by in any condition. It is unusual for being the most recent comic book in this listing

23) FAMOUS FUNNIES 2 1934 10

Published by Eastern Colour Printing Company, these comics contain all reprints from the Sunday funny pages like Mutt and Jeff and Joe Palooka.

23) FAMOUS FUNNIES 9 1935 10

Same as above All these early Famous Funnies are very difficult to come by in any grade, let alone anything approaching high grade

31) COMICS MAGAZINE 2 1936 10 TO 12

Cover dated June 1936 this comic features Federal Men by Siegel and Shuster. It is thought to be as rare as issue #1 but unlikely. These are only educated guesses by those that know

32) MORE FUN 9 1936 12

This is the first comic sized issue of the title as the previous issues 7 and 8 were a slightly larger 8" by 10" Issues 1-6 were New Fun Comics before title changed with issue 7. Cover dated March

33) BLOOD IS THE HARVEST 1950 13

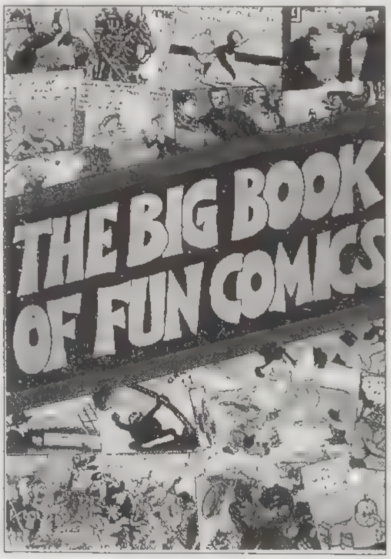
This is the original educational pamphlet as published by the Cathetical Guild. A black and white version became available (see entry No. 17) and un untrimmed version as well (see entry No. 1)

33) DETECTIVE COMICS 3 1937 13

Considered the rarest of the pre-Batman Detective Comics (#1-26), this is cover-dated May, exactly two years before the first appearance of Batman. Lovely cover by Creig Flessel of an escaped convict caught in a yellow search-light. Estimated copies vary from a lower value of 6 to an upper value of 20

35) BIG BOOK OF FUN COMICS 1936 14

The 1st ever DC annual dated Spring 1936. Estimates very from as little as 5 copies to 23 copies which goes to show how difficult it is to calculate exactly the number of extant copies of any of these books. 1 is known in strict NM condition which would bring at least 50% in addition to the estimated value given here



THE BIG BOOK OF FUN COMICS

36) NEW FUN 6 1935 15

Cover-dated October, this is the first appearance of the Superman prototype Dr Occult by Siegel and Shuster

37) GREEN GIANT 1 1940 16

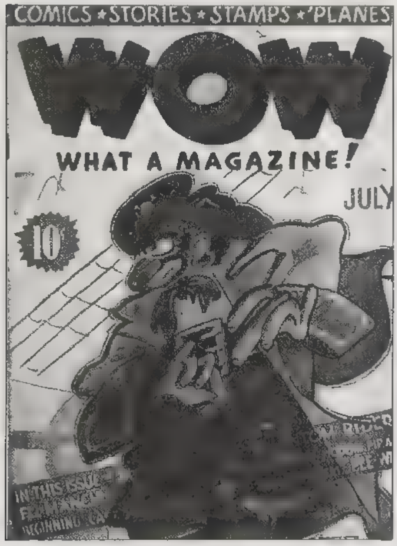
An experimental comic published by Moreau Publications to utilize a printing press of theirs. With no price on the cover it probably never got as far as the distribution stage. Estimates vary from 12 to 20 copies in existence. 3 are known in strict NM condition which would bring at least 50% more than any Guide values

37) NEW FUN 1 1935 17

Cover-dated February, this is the first DC comic ever published The title became More Fun with issue 7. Estimates of copies in existence run between 10 and 24 hence the average value of 17. There is one (1) known copy in Very Fine to Near Mint condition and it could bring double the current Guide value.

37) WOW COMICS 1 1936 17

Dated July, this is the magazine format from Henle Publishing sub-titled What a Magazine! (see No. 16) Estimated extant copies vary but only slightly from a lower limit of 15 to an upper limit of 20. The tightness of the range suggests that this comic is fairly well documented in its rarity value.



40) MORE FUN 8 1936 18

A slightly larger than standard comic (as was More Fun 7) at 10" by 12". Estimates of rarity vary from 15 to 20 copies but with another report citing parameters 21 to 50 though this is thought to be questionable. More information is obviously needed

41) WOW COMICS 3 1936 20

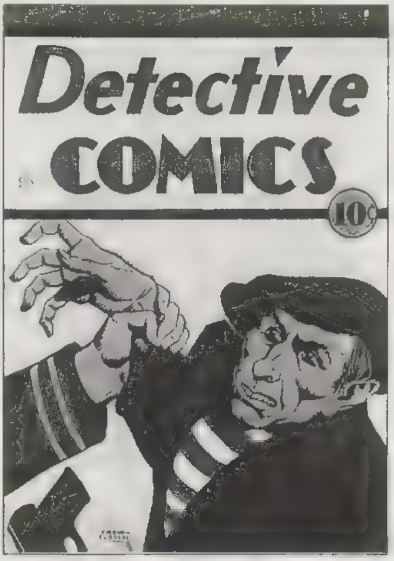
Another in the short-lived magazine format series sub-titled What a Magazine! The only reliable estimate at the moment suggests 20 copies though further research is needed.

42) DETECTIVE PICTURE STORIES 1 1936 22

One of the experts asked cites this as an extremely important comic as The Comics Magazine Co. and DC Comics raced to publish a comic devoted to a single theme An ad appeared in New Comics #11 (December 1936) that Detective Comics #1 was appearing but it actually appeared three months after Detective Picture Stories #1, dated December 1936. Estimates vary from 15 to 30 copies in existence from three sources while another source seems way off the mark citing anywhere between 50 and 200 copies

43) DETECTIVE COMICS 2 1937 23

Dated April 1937, another very rare pre-Batman Detective comic Very distinctive cover illustration of a ugly thug's face in close up. Estimates of rarity vary tremendously from as few as 6 up to 35 copies though both of these seem extreme. A middle ground figure has been chosen.



44) NEW ADVENTURE COMICS 13 1937 25

One reliable source puts this at about 25 copies and this is the figure chosen for now. Another source claims it to be much rarer at under 5 copies but this seems a little extreme

44) IF THE DEVIL WOULD TALK 1950 25

Educational pamphlet rather than really a comic book from the Cathetica Guild Estimates run from between 20 to 30 copies so 25 has been chosen. The 1958 version is much rarer at 6 known copies and the black and white at 4 known copies

46) MORE FUN 7 1936 26

Slightly over sized comic at 10" by 12" as was More Fun #8. Estimated copies from as low as 7 to as high as 45. One estimate went as high as 50 but in view of one estimate of 7 and one of 10, the figure of 50 is discounted for now. 2 copies are known to exist in strict Near Mint and would bring at least 50% more above the suggested value here. Title was previously New Fun Comics #1-6

47) BOY EXPLORERS 2 1946 27

Like Stuntman #3 and All New #15, this was a small size black and white comic distributed through the mail only and not on sale at news-stands. The only estimates available ranged between 20 and 35 copies so a middle figure has been chosen

48) DETECTIVE COMICS 1 1937 30

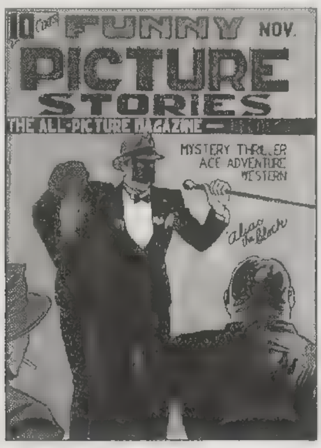
The comic that gave DC its initials and in the race for the first comic with one theme (see entry No 42). Estimates from sources said 20,25,30 and 35 copies respectively with one not so committal at 21-50 copies. A mid range value of 30 has been chosen for now Sporting a beautiful Fu Manchu chinaman cover, probably by Creig Flessel, only one (1) known copy exists in Near Mint condition and could bring double the current Guide value. One more copy in this country came to the author's attention at the end of 1993, though the total estimated number has been left alone

48) FAMOUS FUNNIES 1 1934 30

Not to be confused with Famous Funnies (Series 1) #1. This comic was the first regular monthly news-stand comic as number 2 came out one month later and so on. Two sources independently agreed on 30 extant copies while another went as low and as vague as 6 to 10 copies. For the moment the figure of 30 has been chosen Two (2) copies are known to exist in Near Mint condition and would bring at least 50% above the current Guide value

48) FUNNY PICTURE STORIES 1 1936 30

From The Comics Magazine Company a funnies anthology that was taken over by Centaur Publications with issue 6 Two estimates put extant copies from 25 to 35 copies so 30 was chosen. A third unconfirmed estimate suggests 21 to 50 copies



OTHER RAREST COMIC BOOKS JUST OUTSIDE THE TOP 50 ARE:

DETECTIVE COMICS 4

has been suggested from 11-20 copies

FLASH GORDON 5

at about 30-40 copies as it was distributed through the mail like Stuntman #3, Boy Explorers #2 and All New #15

NEW FUN 3

which could be anywhere between 11 and 45 copies

NEW FUN 4

could be anywhere between 21 and 50 copies

MORE FUN 11, 15, 22 AND 23

may have anywhere between 11 and 50 copies

AND

NEW ADVENTURE COMICS 12, 14, 16, 18, 19, 22 AND 23

have been suggested by one source at 11-20 copies

CAPTAIN MARVEL THRILL BOOK has been cited at 25 copies but as yet unconfirmed

NEW BOOK OF COMICS 2

at a possible 35 copies

NEW BOOK OF COMICS 1

at about 42 copies

JUMBO COMICS 1, CENTURY OF COMICS AND WOW COMICS 4

at a possible 40 copies each

FAMOUS FUNNIES (CARNIVAL OF COMICS), JUMBO COMICS 7 AND NEW COMICS 1

at a possible 50 copies each

ALL AMERICAN COMICS 16

at about 50–60 copies

All the above information is at best mostly speculation based on observation by myself, what I have in my own collection, what I know for a fact are in other people's collections both here and in the America and informed guesses by a number of top American dealers, all of whom I credit and thank for their participation. No doubt when more information becomes available, positions in the Top 50 will alter.

THOSE AMERICAN DEALERS WHO ASSISTED IN THIS SURVEY WERE:

Even though many of the comics are very rare items indeed it does not necessarily make them the most valuable comics. Indeed only two (Detective Comics #1 and New Fun #1) feature in the Top 50 Rarest and Top 20 Most Valuable The Top 20 most valuable comics in the U.K market are valued according to those known to have been sold or offered for sale. A Near Mint price has been calculated on extant copies, known popularity of the characters and comics and educated guesses. Please note that the order may differ from that generally accepted in America as certain characters are less popular here than there The values may be subject to variations of up to 20% either way

Very high grade copies (Very Fine or better) of this Top Ten from "named" collections (Note: these are the only fully recognised and well documented "named" or "pedigree" collections: Mile High, San Francisco, Larsen, Allentown, Denver, Kansas City) may bring up to 50% more. Unrestored Near Mint copies from named collections may bring 100% more. Thus if ever the Mile High Action #1 or the Larsen Detective #27 ever came on the market, a genuine six figure sum in cash could easily be achieved. The continued success of the most recent Sotheby's and Christie's auctions in New York reinforce this belief

Market Reports

DARRYL JONES & MELLONEY MARSHALL – SILVER ACRE COMICS

Greetings and hello from Wales

MARVEL RECENT

The X-Men: Age of Apocalypse story was Marvel's success of 1995 for us and still is, to date, one of our best sellers with high demand across the complete collector board. Maximum Carnage/Clonage sell well and Wolverine's regular series is HOT! HOT! HOT! Keep an eye on issue #82...?

DC RECENT

As back issues, all of the Superman titles sell well if priced cheaply. The real DC movement is in the Vertigo titles especially Sandman, Hellblazer and Shade. Wizard Price Guide #53 at the beginning of 1996 listed Sandman #1 at $68.00! But in the U.K. it sells slow (for me) at £14.95.

INDEPENDENTS

I tend not to deal in the hot recent books Gen 13 did not work for me Spawn, Miracleman. Grendel Dark Horse Star Wars and old Classics Illustrated are all selling well at present and yes, Aliens is still asked for on a regular basis Gold Key movie related titles are in great demand and we can sell Four Colors in any grade as soon as they come in

1970s

Anything from the 1970s in high grade is in demand All of Jack Kirby's work is hot especially New Gods, Forever People and Mister Miracle. Avengers issues between #87 and #185 have always sold well but now better than ever. Also, keep an eye on DC horror and ghost titles: an increased interest is noticeable And be warned - prices on Giant Size X-Men #1, X-Men #94 and Hulk #181 are soaring in the States. Buy now or regret later.

SILVER AGE MARVEL AND DC

1995 was a fantastic year for us in this field We have always been a major force in the buying and selling of high grade Silver Age books but in May of 1995 we reached new heights by managing to outbid fierce American competition on two of the highest grade collections sold that year. Issues in the collections included NM/NM- copies of Amazing Spiderman #1, #3, #5, #6, #7, #9, #10, #12, #13, #14, #16, #18, #19, #21 and X-Men #1-20 in grades between NM- and Mint excluding #17 which was a VFN. There was a very large selection of other issues which graded between VF- and upwards, averaging VF/NM. These issues sold very well at and above U.K. Guide. A small sample of recent sales would include: Avengers #1 in VF+ at £995.00, #1 Fair- at £39.95, #4 NM- at £1,400.00, Amazing Spiderman #1 in NM at £9,000 00, #1 in Good at £565, Amazing Fantasy #15 in FN+ for £2,700.00, 3 copies in varying VG ish grades for between £800 00 and £950 00 and multiples of most other Silver Age issues in mixtures of grades. Expensive keys in very low grade were in high demand.

GOLDEN AGE

Demand for Golden Age issues is growing in the U.K. but it is still in its infancy compared to America. 75% of our sales are made to American collectors who have placed Wants Lists with us. Recent sales in the U.K. include: Captain America #59 in Fine at £600.00, #75 in FN+ at £525 00, Detective Comics #19 in Fine- at a stupid £650.00 - why did I do it? More Fun #102 in FN+ at £452 00, Batman #1 VG restored at £5,500.00 Superman #23 in VF+ at £450.00. Recent purchases include Detective Comics #1 and an unbelievable run of More Fun Comics including issues #8, #14, #52, #54, #57, #59, #61, #62, #63 and #65 in nice shape.

INTERESTING SALE OF THE YEAR

In 1995 I came across an original Superman colour press proof from 1941 in as new condition. It was signed by and came from Jerry Siegels personal collection. This sold within 24 hours of purchasing it

Well that's about it for another year. I would like to thank Duncan and John for giving me this chance to contribute and Melloney for her hard work and dedication.

All the best for now anyway.

ALAN SCOTT – ADVENTURELAND Inc.

Welcome to the new Price Guide. Firstly let me introduce myself, Alan Scott of Adventureland Inc (Adventure into Comics Inc USA).

Established over ten years ago in Florida we have been trading in the U K market for some seven years covering mail order, comic marts and retailing through our store. What we are covering in this report should give you an average guide to sales the past year. General sales have been good overall with all the major publishing houses pushing new lines and titles.

MARVEL

Marvel's line of comics has grown again this year with a range of old characters being re-launched i.e Captain Marvel and Doc Samson plus a poor range of new titles i e Green Goblin, Genesis 2099 etc

General sales of Marvel have been steady on most regular titles Noted sales have been the Spiderman Clone saga crossing all Spiderman titles as well as the Age of Apocalypse storyline and Generation X (in fact all mutant titles).

DC

Distinct improvement in DC sales this year with good quality writing and improved artwork on most major titles. Vertigo line of books - steady sales maintained throughout the year. Superman/Batman sales as strong as ever, some improvement in Justice League of America, Green Lantern and Flash Some interesting comics in the pipeline with the World's End mini-series.

Generally good performance from DC this last year – very encouraging

INDEPENDENTS

Again, generally good year for most Independents: Image, Dark Horse, Harris, Tekno, Crusader Dramatic increase in sales of Image with the introduction of many new titles this last year Noted sales are the very popular Gen 13 series, good sales on Spawn (also back-issues!) Pitt and WildC.A.T.S.

Good year for the smaller companies with the popularity of Bad Girl books Improved regular sales of new and back issues of Dawn, Vampirella, Shi, Lady Death, Angela and Razor. For books in high demand reflected in their market prices, look at all Dark Horse's Star Wars books.

DC/Marvel cross-overs this year were awaited with great anticipation Generally good sales in DC vs. Marvel and the Amalgam line of books Slight improvement in the Silver Age market, especially Spiderman and X-Men. Key Silver Age Marvel books are still in demand in high grade (and cents copies too).

DAVID BRAYSHER – ALTER EGO

The comic market as a whole still seems unsettled as people wait too see the full implications of the Marvelution and a corporate mentality in the marketplace This has caused retailers to become very conservative in their ordering with an agenda aimed at selling out. Such tactics have caused a very buoyant recent back issue market. This situation is most extreme with Marvel books as poor reordering methods leave their most popular titles, such as X-Men and Spider books, in high demand

The main hot titles of the moment seem to be Preacher, Wonder Woman (Mike Deodato), X-Men, DC vs. Marvel, X-Files, Gen 13, WildC.A.T.S. and Spawn. One gets the impression from the comic marts that the profiteer has left the scene and that comics are once again being bought to read by people who really want them.

Things that are not hot must be lead by Acclaim; it's surely only a matter of time before they give up the ghost. The same could be said for Big Entertainment (Tekno Comix). As back issues I find these comics almost unsellable. No new mainstream titles from DC or Marvel seem to be setting the world on fire and fans appear to be sticking to old favourites. However sales of both Superman and Batman families seem to have dipped owing to a lack of direction in the books although Robin and Catwoman are holding their own. Image books do very well with the exception of the Extreme Studios line which is poor. Dark Horse continues to sell on its Aliens, Legends and Star Wars material but little else. Not much this year from the Indies but Stray Bullets and Cerebus are much asked after.

If you want something to watch, keep an eye on Thor and maybe Supergirl and Dreaming when they come out. In summary, look for quality comics which I'm glad to say finally seem to be sought after. Even if they're not worth anything, at least you can enjoy reading them.

RICHARD EMMS – CHAOS CITY COMICS

Over the past four and a half years that we have been in business I have never seen this market to be as stable and as encouraging as others I have encountered.

SILVER AND BRONZE AGE

Over the past year of so we have sold an amazing amount of key silver and bronze age books in mid to high grades.

It seems that as soon as we get an X-Men #1, it will be snapped up within a few weeks. In the last few months we have sold three X-Men #1s FN £1250.00, FN- £1150.00, VG/FN £1050.00. It seems with the X-Men film just around the corner, fans want these books more than before.

Other books that have sold over the past year or so include Giant X-Men #1 (VFN) £200.00, X-Men #94 (VFN) £200.00, Daredevil #1 (FN) £300.00 and (G+) £150.00, Detective Comics #45 (VFN) £995.00, Conan the Barbarian #1 (VFN) £80.00 and others too many to mention.

It seems that although the silver age market is quite volatile at present there are buyers out there who want key books and are prepared to pay decent money for them.

NEW COMICS

What can we say? Too much competition has made new product pretty poor when it comes to quality. Too much hype, too many variant covers spoil what I think should be readable and most of all enjoyable. But hey, those Bad Girl "nude covers" don't half sell well!

MARVEL

Marvel's books sell particularly well. The top books at present being the X-Men family (apart from Excalibur), Captain America, Daredevil, Avengers and the Spidey titles.

X-Men is by far the best selling group in the shop and need no promotion to sell off the shelf, although the quality has started to dip in the artwork and story telling. Wolverine #100 was a bit of a let down with not even a hint about the return of the Adamantium Skeleton.

Spiderman seems to be in ever decreasing circles with the question of "Is it the real one or not?" looming over the book's head.

MARVEL & DC

It has to be said that Marvel vs DC was one of the biggest let- downs of all time. The Amalgam series had its ups and downs, but a few of the books were what I would call amazing.

It goes to show how big companies can sell large amounts of rubbish. But I'm afraid it was the same old case of "they sold well" scenario which I can't groan about after all I do own the shop.

DC – THE STEP FORWARD FOR COMICS.

The books that DC produce are still the best around when it comes to storytelling. Batman and the related books are far better than they have ever been.

Vertigo has to be the best thing that has ever happened to DC in a long while. Books such as Preacher, Invisibles and Death are simply milestones whenever produced.

And the new books that this company produces seem to be a bit more daring then any other publisher has ever produced.

IMAGE COMICS

Forget Extreme and Rob Liefeld - they are doomed. Not even Stephen Platt could save him and his dire comics. But when any Top Cow, Wildstorm and McFarlane related books hit the shelves they are sure to sell out.

21 #1 was massive and Weapon Zero even bigger. And books like Witchblade and Blackops seem to be picking up more readers every month.

Still at the top slot is Spawn but even this comic has started to lose a bit of momentum with readers but still it sells like hot cakes with readers and so do the spin-off titles such as Spawn/WildC.A.T.S. and Angela etc.

INDEPENDENTS

Remember those days when Magnus the Robot Fighter #12 was selling for thirty quid. Remember when Harbinger #1 was at an astonishing sixty quid (or sometimes more if you had the coupons still attached). What a shame about Valiant. Fancy selling a pretty average comics publisher for 60 million dollars? They did. And what do they publish now? About two of the surviving comics namely X-O Manowar and Solar Man of the Atom.

Acclaim seem to be putting on a brave face offering comic related versions of Magic The Gathering character cards – which are not bad when you get a free rare card inside the package as well. Apart from the Magic series, Acclaim do not offer much in the way of readable material – let's hope Sliders does well for them.

Independents in general seemed to have picked up more readers than ever before. Titles such as Dawn from Sirius and David Lapham's Stray Bullets seem to have great reader potential as well.

MAGIC THE GATHERING AND OTHER CARD GAMES

It has to be said that these card games are amazing sellers. Magic The Gathering and its expansions were the first popular game to lift off but now it surprises even me the amount we sell.

The most popular card game so far this year has been the Star Wars Premiere Edition of which we have sold cases. In fact in January we sold more Star Wars cards than we did all other comics put together. If you are a retailer who is still wondering about the above all I can say is get them in quick.

Anyway I am going to draw a close to my words of wisdom. I would like to say a few thanks to a few people who make this industry worth being in. Also thanks to Dave Gibbons, Derek Watson, Duncan McAlpine, John Skoulides, Duncan McMillan and all the Chaos staff.

All the best for 1996.

JOHN, MARTIN, DUNCAN, ALEX, PETER, PAUL, JON, ANDREA – MIGHTY WORLD OF COMICANA LTD

It is a great pleasure to be asked to contribute to this year's Price Guide as we have just settled into our new shop and offices and look forward to the next year with tremendous anticipation.

Another strange year in the industry, (aren't they all?) so let's start with…

NEW PRODUCT

From Bad Girl to Worse Girl, it has been the year of the Lady. Yes Lady Death, Lady Rawhide, Vampirella, Double Impact, Shi, Angela, Dawn, Avengelyne and many more. Hey what about all those Nude editions, rude editions, lewd editions. Naked lady with sword cover A or of course Big breasted girl with axe, includes foil cover and coupon to get your free velvet cover for only £30.00. What do mean cynical, who me? Look if you like it we will supply it and if you think the story quality is good then you at least bought an unbagged copy. Seriously though, a lot of high quality material surfaced in amongst the dross, Tucci, Linsner etc. Preacher is great and did you like Ash? And how about Gen 13? The award for most sought after and hottest title? X-Files comics of course. We like most of our competitors were CULT out by the demand (very little joke).

The most pleasing thing was the attention and availability of the new product lines, so keep up the good work Diamond.

I suppose I can't let the New Product year pass by without making reference to Amalgam. Yes, Marvel and D.C working together to make the world a safer place. Nuff said.

GOLDEN AGE, SILVER AGE AND OLD AGE

I am not going to bore you with all the big sales we made this year like the near mint Daredevil 1#, the Batman 1# etc as you already know that we are the best for back issues and make more effort than most to offer the keenest grading and pricing. I want to ask you to look very carefully at the Golden Age and Silver Age market and look for trends. Find the trends and find the bargains. Watch out this year for Wonder Woman and Batman. Also X-books will continue to be hot. It was again the year of low and high grade book sales with middle grades falling between the devil and the deep blue sea. Very few restored books surfaced this year. Look for more Movie titles and watch out for Archie Comics as you the reading public have finally noticed that they are Wolverine free.

SUMMARY

Just a brief summary as I don't want to disturb your sleep any longer. We can look towards a similar year as far as new material is concerned with numerous new titles and several artists and writers growing in popularity. Back issues will return to their former glories if you can find fair and honest traders who understand how to grade and more importantly understand the difference between the American and U.K. markets.

For us as a company it has been an interesting year, what with moving into the old Stateside building and employing some of their staff.

I hope that we have been able to help some of their old customers and we are going to try some new and exciting things in future and hope that you will enjoy a great year. Thanks to the old grey one for allowing us this time and space and in the words of Alfred E Neuman, what me worry?

DAVE FINN AND SUSAN FOORD – INCOGNITO COMICS

Once again I would like to thank Duncan for letting me vent my spleen upon the comic world once more. It seems such a long time since our last market report for the UK guide, and so much water has passed under the bridge in the world of the four colour comic book, that I'm almost at a loss as to where to start.

As I write this report, its early 1996, and the comic world remains in turmoil.

Anyhow, here's how it is with us.

THE GOLDEN AGE

The UK Golden Age market, has really taken an upturn in the last couple of years. Many collectors, especially DC Silver Age collectors are reaching further back in time than ever to expand their collections. Most books from the late forties and early fifties are a lot more affordable than the majority of the DC Silver Age key books, and this is reflected in the increased popularity of comics such as Batman 50-100, Superman 60-130 and Worlds Finest 60-110. Availability is much more of a problem with these books that affordability though.

The biggest increase in demand has definitely been for Golden Age Timelys. Copies of Captain America Comics, Sub-Mariner and Marvel Mystery Comics are particularly hard to keep in stock. This of course, affects the prices of these books. Compare the prices in this, the new UK guide, with the prices in the last one, and see. Life would be a lot easier for a lot of us, if more of these books were available in the UK. Now as in the past, most of our Timely issues have to be purchased from collectors and dealers in the States.

Copies of Timelys are selling in almost every grade. Even very low grade copies of relatively scarce books are selling well.

Sales of Golden Age comics include; Superman #1 (1939) in VG+ restored; £7000. Submariner #1 (Timely) VF- £3200. Submariner #3 VG+, £600. Captain America Comics #2, VF, colour touched £2900. Amazing Man #5 (Centaur) VF, light restoration, £4000. Marvel Mystery Comics #15, Fine, £450.

SILVER AGE

The Silver Age comic book market, has remained one of the most consistent, since the last British Price Guide was published. Interest is still strong in most titles, but the main Marvel and DC titles are still the most popular, especially Amazing Spider-Man, Avengers and X-Men. All grades are selling well, especially very high grade books, as has been the case for as long as I can remember. Low grade key books also sell extremely well, at the right price. Recent sales of these books include Tales Of Suspense #39 (Fair), £100 and Avengers #1 (Fair), £75. There has also been a noticeable rise in interest in mid-grade books, particularly the key ones – if the price is right. We are selling more VG to Fine comics than ever before, which is surprising in that there is certainly a lot more mid grade collections surfacing, and there has never been so many on the market.

Sales of note, include Incredible Hulk #1, VF, trimmed, £3200; 1, Good, £495. Amazing Fantasy #15, Good, £995. Amazing Spider-Man #1, VG £1495; 1, Good+, £650; 2, Fine+, £695, 3 VF-, £425, 4, VF, £450; 14, VF, £350. Avengers #1 VG+, £340. Fantastic Four #1, VF , £3200; 3, VG, £395; 4, VG, £425. X-Men #1, Good+, £275. Tales Of Suspense #39, VG, £495. Showcase #13, VF-, £1200, 17, VF-, £450. Action Comics #252,VG, £175. Showcase #22, VG+, £525. Green Lantern 1, Fine +,£550. Flash #105 Fine+, £795. Justice League of America #1, VG, £395.

Since the last UK guide, we have sold copies of almost every single Marvel and DC Silver Age key book, in one grade or another.

RESTORATION

The professional restoration and the amateur repair of comic books, has never been so commonplace. The number of excellent restorers in the USA has increased over the last few years, as has, consequently, the number of restored books in circulation. It becomes increasingly more difficult to spot really professional work, though the more restored books handled, the easier it becomes to spot the restoration. A friendly word of advice – always check that the book that you are buying is really what you think it is? Amateur restoration is much easier to spot, but still, care must be taken when buying.

CENTS VERSUS PENCE

As this is the first UK price guide to include US prices, I thought it appropriate that I might mention the great Cents versus Pence debate.

Over the years, there has been much discussion over the American Cents copies of comics being much more desirable than the UK priced Pence copies or the Cents priced books with the Thorpe and Porter "TP" ink stamp. Yes, it is nigh on impossible to sell a Pence book anywhere outside the UK, but collectors in the UK each have their own personal preferences. I have just as many customers for Pence/Stamped copies of Silver Age comics as I have for Cents unstamped copies. Not surprisingly almost all of the Cents copies are sold to collectors who look for high grade copies.

Collecting should always be a personal thing. If you are happy with a Pence or stamped copy, that is your prerogative. After all, it is your collection, not anybody else's. Why should you be told which version of a comic to collect? Just enjoy!

BRONZE AGE/1970s

The seventies have always been a bit of a doldrums for back-issues. Every now and then, there is a flurry of interest for a while, and then it quietens down again. When the Silver Age market became too expensive, some collectors decided to concentrate on the cheaper 70s comics. It was generally thought that this exodus would cause a rise in prices. This has happened, but not at the alarming rate that many thought. As in everything, there are exceptions. Most ND comics from the early to mid seventies are indeed very popular, especially the key first appearance issues (Hulk #181, X-Men #94 and Giant Size X-Men #1). Most early issues of the Marvel comic runs, also sell very well. There are some surprisingly hard to find comics from this time period – Defenders #10, and copies of Avengers #93 (without sticker damage) are good examples.

Notable sales from this period include Incredible Hulk #181, VF+, £265; 181 Fine, £150. X-Men #94 VF+, £185. 94, Fine+, £125. Giant Size X-Men #1, VF, £170. House Of Secrets #92, VF, £195. Other notable sellers include the ND Amazing Spider-Man issues, especially #121 and #122. Spidey #129 (first Punisher) along with the clone issues #149 and #150 have gone off the boil though. One small word of warning. Marvel had the annoying habit in the seventies of sticking their Marvel "Value" stamps in some very key issues. These value stamps were to be cut out of the comic and could be redeemed for various goodies. Incredible Hulk #181, the first full Wolverine story is one good example. When buying a copy, always check that the value stamp is still intact. Most of the stamps are on editorial pages, which are sometimes totally removed, to further confuse. Once again, let the buyer beware.

MODERN COMICS

I could use this report as a soapbox to comment on the lamentable state of the Direct Market, but I think I'll leave that to everyone else mostly... The Buyouts and Exclusives. The Distributor Wars and Title Cancellations. Does our industry really need all this upheaval? All businesses must adapt to survive. Can our industry react fast enough to all this change without collapsing in on itself? In America, the market for new comics appears to be shrinking drastically, while the American economy appears to have taken a general upturn. On a recent visit to Florida, one of the local comic shop owners told me that the new edition of his local Yellow Pages had just been published. In the last edition approximately 35 shops were listed. In the new one – just 18! Ouch. This doesn't appear to be happening in the UK – at the moment. In the last year, shops have opened, and shops have closed, but the number appears to be reasonably stable.

Very few Publishers have expanding markets. Those that have bucked the trend are generally speculator driven (yes, there are a few left) and a few have held their own. How long before publishers begin to fold? Collectors are a lot more discerning these days. With the huge increases in cover pricing, few can collect everything that they would like, so titles are being cut by the customers. Shops then amend their orders, as do the distributors. Sales drop, and titles are cut. Some publishers just cannot survive.

I hope and pray that the comics industry survives these troubled times, and that we're all here to tell the tale.

What can I say... Always look on the bright side of life

JULES BURT/GEORGE LESSITER – PURPLE HAZE

Hello from the West Country! Well, what a year. After outgrowing our old shop we have had to move to a new one, this time with even more space. We've had a definite upturn in business with more and more Standing Orders from new customers. This can only be healthy and we hope that it's a similar story for everyone else. New readers are the lifeblood of the hobby and without them the back issue market would be in a very sorry state. Let's hope it continues.

CURRENT TITLES/YEAR IN REVIEW

MARVEL

X-books have continued to dominate throughout the last year. The "Age of Apocalypse" storyline creating various mini-series spin-offs was a huge success with most books selling out almost immediately. The Alpha/Omega Prime books were an instant success and are still in demand.

X-Men, Uncanny X-Men, X-Force, X-Factor and Generation X continue to sell in vast quantities. The exceptions in X-books seem to be X-Men Adventures and the dreadful Professor X and the X-Men. The latter rehashing old X-Men adventures in a 1990s style doesn't really work. Check out the reprints of the original Lee/Kirby stories – they're still a much better read.

Wolverine remains one of our hottest sellers and Cable along with the new X-Man title have gained further ground with back issues being constantly sought out. Storm and Askani's Son mini-series are selling well.

Sales of the Spiderman family have remained healthy despite the ongoing Clone storyline which has stretched the patience of even the most ardent Spidey fans. Marvel have come up with this idea that the last 250+ issues of Amazing Spiderman, 200+ issues of Spectacular Spiderman and the entire run of Web of Spiderman have all been about a completely different character!! Come to think of it that also includes all the Marvel Team-Up stories and every appearance since around 1975. Hah! Still, Peter Parker, Ben Reilly AKA Scarlet Spider or whoever, these books have sold well throughout the past year. The Scarlet Spider spin-off series sold moderately well although nowhere in the same proportion as the X-Men mini-series. Other Spidey mini-series have fared well.

Spiderman Adventures has done well owing to the excellent animated TV series shown on Saturday mornings. Amazing Spiderman #400 with its tombstone cover must rate as one of the worst gimmick covers ever. It was almost impossible to tell what the book was!

Integrating the New Warriors title into the Spiderman family of books has not helped it. Sales of this title have always been lousy and it will no doubt soon be joining Force Works, War Machine and various 2099 titles in that great bargain box in the sky.

Venom mini-series have continued to do well with extremely healthy back issue sales. Amazing Spiderman #300 (1st Venom appearance) continued to be in demand and easily sells for £30 around here. Watch out for early Carnage appearances as these are now being steadily sought after.

Other Marvel titles? Well the recently re-vamped Warren Ellis/Mike Deodato Thor was just what this title needed. Many fans missed these when they first came out and #491 and up are now creating a minor stir and being snapped up. Hopefully the rumours abounding that this title is shortly to be cancelled after 34 years will not come true.

2099 titles – X-Men 2099, Spiderman 2099 and Doom 2099 sell okay. All the others are a waste of shelf space and do not sell.

Punisher books have taken a massive downturn. Interest in the latest series has waned after the first few issues. The only Punisher books that still seem to be of interest are the original mini-series and the first few issues of the second series. Even so these are only fetching around 50% of last year's Guide prices.

The same goes for Ghost Rider with the current and original series having lost a great deal of interest.

Poor old Conan! This once great 1970s book is still not selling, even after various face-lifts and regenerations. Maybe it's time Marvel put this one out of its misery once and for all.

Some books which have picked up in sales recently are The Avengers and Captain America. The Timeslide storyline in Avengers #395 with the death of Tony Stark (Iron Man) and replacing him with a younger version has sparked further interest in the Avengers and given a fresh input into the Iron Man title which had become rather stale and jaded in recent months. Captain America is now being picked up once more by former fans who had dropped this title previously.

Daredevil remains a constant seller as do the Fantastic Four. Peter David's Hulk continues to attract a strong following with strong monthly sales. The forthcoming Lee/Liefeld take-over of certain Marvel books seems to be causing more apprehension than excitement. Time will tell.

Humour books such as Ren & Stimpy and Beavis & Butt-Head have slowed down during the year.

Marvel vs. DC has been a huge success with #1 being a complete sell out. The initial batch of Amalgam comics have just arrived and are selling like hot cakes!

ULTRAVERSE - the integration of the Malibu/Marvel Universes has produced two sets of books. Modest sales on those books with X-character appearances being picked up by X-Men fans and very poor sales on all other books with characters such as Mantra, Night Man etc. The only exception here is Rune.

Malibu's Deep Space Nine continued to sell well until Marvel stopped all UK imports.

DC

Superman and Batman titles have slowed a little during the past year. When DC come up with a good storyline like "Death of..." or "Knightfall" then there's no stopping these books. "Contagion" and "Underworld Unleashed" have hardly set the world on fire. Spin offs, however, such as Azrael, Catwoman and Robin have sold steadily.

JLA and related characters such as Flash and Green Lantern have showed no dramatic increases during the year.

Starman was an unexpected hit and the Ostrander/Mandrake Spectre remains a classy but neglected-by-fans book.

Good solid sales on Star Trek and related books.

VERTIGO

As always Sandman leads the pack with strong healthy back issue and current sales. Shame that it's ending. Hellblazer, after going through a short slump, seems to be picking up again.

Sandman Mystery Theatre and Swamp Thing have shown steady sales.

Back issues of Preacher and Invisibles are hot and in demand and the new Death – Time of Your Life mini-series is selling like crazy!

IMAGE

Spawn remains our current biggest seller now closely being challenged by Gen 13. All Gen 13 back issues are hot especially the first series and the 13 cover variations of the second series.

Astro City was a huge hit and sold extremely well. Sad to see Sergio Aragones Groo title finally bite the dust after all these years. It's one of the finest humour books on the market and will be missed around here.

"Babe" books such as Avengelyne, Glory and Witchblade have all sold well, mainly to adolescent (and a few older!) males.

Maxx and Pitt books have remained steady throughout the year. However many Image books have taken a sharp downturn over the past twelve months with some fans giving up on them altogether.

DARK HORSE

All Alien and Predator back issues continue to sell well. Big Boy and Rusty the Boy Robot was an unexpected gem. With its large format it caught many people's attention. Check out Geoff Darrow's detailed artwork on this one. Superb!

Star Wars mini-series remain extremely hot. The Mask sold initially but interest seems to have petered out. G.I. Joe was a complete flop.

VALIANT/ACCLAIM

What can we say? The only books left that sell in any small quantity are the former Gold Key characters Magnus, Solar and Turok. All back issues are extremely slow moving to stagnant. The days when a Harbinger #1 had a £50 price tag on it are long gone. Dealers are struggling to get a tenner on this one now. Titles such as Archer & Armstrong, X-O Manowar and Bloodshot are stone dead. To be honest we can't really see this company surviving in the long run.

TOPPS

X-Files #1. What more needs to be said. The biggest comic hit in the last couple of years. Topps' low print run and the astronomical demand for this book sent it spiralling to around the £50 mark in no time. We have sold around a dozen issues at this price and could sell more if we could get hold of them. Later issues are also heavily in demand with #2 fetching around £30 and #3 around £20. These books have certainly not peaked as yet.

Mars Attacks, the cult card classic, continues to gain ground and is attracting a firm following. The forthcoming Tim Burton film will either make or break this series. We shall have to wait and see.

TEKNO COMIX

Don't sell at all. Straight into the 25p back issue racks with these!

OTHERS

The "Bad Girl" books are hot, hot, hot! Chaos Comics' Lady Death, Harris Vampirella, Sirius Dawn and Crusade's Shi are what the fan boys want. Early issues of all these are rocketing with demand outstripping supply.

Bongo Comics' Simpsons remains a firm fan favourite. A great fun read. And as always we have to mention Knockabout's Fabulous Furry Freak Brothers. They just keep selling and selling.

U.K. MARKET

2000AD, once a superb seller has taken somewhat of a downturn over the past year. The Judge Dredd film, which in the end was a bit of a let down, seems to have done more damage than good. Many former fans have given up buying this comic completely. Back issues are plentiful with little demand for them. The only ones of interest seem to be pre prog 100. Early issues with free gifts are still in demand by more serious collectors. Our #1 with Space Spinner recently went for £50. Low sales on other Dredd related comics.

Likewise with Tank Girl. The appalling film seems to have killed off whatever cult interest there had been in her previously.

U.K. X-Files editions are red hot. Many fans are picking this one up alongside their U.S. editions. As with the U.S. copies, the earlier ones are in demand. Our #1 with free badge gift has just sold for £35.

Marvel's Essential X-Men and Astonishing Spiderman are very popular with these again being picked up alongside the U.S. editions.

Viz, once one of our best sellers, seems to have been in a tailspin for the last couple of years. Not as popular as it used to be. Perhaps the jokes are beginning to wear a bit thin.

Steady sales on U.K. edition Manga comics.

BACK ISSUES

MARVEL

All back issues of mutant related books sell well. Uncanny X-Men still being the most popular. Wolverine is proving to be a title which we have trouble keeping in stock. All issues and particularly the original mini-series are hot. Back issue Cable, X-Force and Generation X books still shift easily. Early issues of New Mutants have slowed down however the later Cable related books, post #87, have picked up again during the past year.

Amazing Spiderman is as hot as ever, by far the most popular of the Spiderman family of books. Average sales on Spectacular and Web books. All gimmick/hologram covers are still selling extremely well.

Hulk sales are on the up with the McFarlane and Keown issues still going well.

Steady back issue sales on Fantastic Four, Daredevil, Avengers and Thor. Slow back issue sales on Iron Man and Captain America.

The original series of Silver Surfer remains heavily in demand with no signs of slowing down. Our #1 (VFN) and our #4 (VFN) both recently sold for £240 each.

Many once popular 1970s books have slowed down or become stagnant. A good example of these would be the Astonishing Tales Deathlok books or Marvel Presents Guardians of the Galaxy which now only fetch a small fraction of their former guide prices. Ghost Rider, Punisher, Sub-Mariner and Shield books are virtually at a standstill. All early Silver Age Marvels from the 1962/63 period are still shifting well in any grade.

DC

Silver Age: Mid grade copies of most Silver Age books are selling very well. Batman, Detective, Action and J.L.A. being the best. Very high grade copies are slow movers. Recent sales include J.L.A. #34 (VFN) for £25 and Swamp Thing #1 (1st series) (VFN+) at £35.

Current titles fare much better in the back issues sales market. Most Vertigo titles are selling well with the exception of Animal Man – £12 for #1 seems way too high. Sandman and Hellblazer lead the pack. Recent sales include Sandman #1 (NM) at £30 and Hellblazer #1 (NM) at £20. All other issues at above previous U.K. guide price. Recent Batman issues are pretty slow with fans having enough trouble keeping up with new product let alone back issues. Generally not much action on the main super-hero lines. Babylon 5 #1 was a definite sleeper and now commands at least £5. Invisibles #1 is impossible to keep in stock as are all issues of Preacher.

INDEPENDENTS

Silver Age: the only thing selling are Gold Key comics. High grade copies are not turning up but when they do they'll sell at any price. Recent sales include Star Trek #1 (VFN) for £200.

Modern comics: Spawn leads the way closely followed by The X-Files. Other Indies that move are Gen 13, Razor, Star Wars, Ghost and Sin City. Recent sales include Spawn #4 (with coupon, NM) for £11 and Star Wars: Dark Empire #1 (NM) for £20. Early copies of "Bad Girl" comics are still much in demand.

TRADING CARDS

Another busy year with these. Massive demand for The X-Files series 1 & 2 as well as all Star Wars cards. Star Trek cards have slowed down a little however the gaming cards are as hot as ever. Recent film tie-in sets have fared poorly this year, the best being Batman Forever. Comic related series are not so hot with the best being the Shi Chromium. The Marvel Overpower card game started well but has now petered out. Generally gaming cards are selling reasonably well with the best being Star Wars.

MERCHANDISE

Current action figures available in the U.K. are selling okay. New figures from the States that aren't going to be released over here are red hot. Examples are Star Trek, Spiderman The Animated Series and certain Star Wars figures. The U.K. action figure market is growing with more and more collectors getting into the hobby. However trying to sell a rare figure at American prices is very difficult. Most figures sell at about three quarters of the U.S. price.

Older figures sell a lot more easily. All Star Wars figures and accessories sell well in any condition, loose or boxed. Minimal interest in older Star Trek figures. Most other lines (Black Hole, Battlestar Galactica, Indiana Jones etc) are stagnant with virtually no collector interest.

Well there you have it for another year. See you in twelve months!

IVOR DAVIS – RED HOT COMICS

Hello again. Two years have flown by since the last Price Guide and although it's difficult to cover all thats been happening, I'll try to cover some of the important trends.

First off, I do not run a shop but rather a mail-order business which brings me into contact with customers the length and breadth of Britain as well as Ireland and Europe too. I regularly take stalls at marts in Newcastle, Manchester and Liverpool as well as Glasgow and Leeds this gives me a good perspective to talk in general terms about the market we operate in. Over and above my Advance Import Service most of the stock which I deal with is 1970s to modern day, increasingly Independents.

MARVEL

Still the market leader in terms of overall sales and Market Share but no longer the House of Ideas. Marvel have reaped a terrible harvest from the speculator seeds they sowed in '92-94. I think the galling thing for people as I write this, however is that just when my customers were beginning to say complimentary things about Marvel and buy more comics, Marvel have not only moved the goal posts but relaid the turf as well. By that I mean Thor and Captain America for example went from selling 1 or 2 copies each a year ago to 15 or 20 now The Avengers has increased from about 4 copies to 12 or 16. Fans were enjoying the writing and the art – I've heard Mark Waid's stint on Captain America compared favourably with Steve Englehart's run on Cap in the 1970s – and who is taking over the reins this summer? Rob Liefeld. However, all is not yet lost. Bob Harras seems to know where he is going. In the short term, Lee and Liefeld's tenure on various Marvel books will at least maintain orders at current levels but I'm not sure that the quality will be sufficient to launch the new era that Calabrese and Co. hoped for

The best selling new books that Marvel have launched in the last couple of years are both X-books: Generation X and X-Man The "Phalanx Covenant" storyline and the "Age of Apocalypse" from last year were both extremely good sellers and Generation X and X-Man seem to have maintained a high quality of writing and artwork since then. Sadly the "Send in the Clones" shenanigans in the Spidey books has resulted in a downturn in orders in all the Spiderman family with the exception of Untold Tales which has to be one of the best buys around just now Marvel's revamping of the Ultraverse was keenly anticipated and the Infinity issues, including the variant covers, flew off the shelves but sadly the books were already directionless before Black Wednesday signalled the end was nigh.

Hindsight is a wonderful thing and if I was to pick out a couple of Marvel books which I wish I'd over-ordered on at the time then I guess it would have to be Warren Ellis Ruins from last year and Star Trek: Deep Space Nine #30-32 though for different, distributive reasons.

DC

Of all the major publishers DC seem to have come through the maelstrom of the past couple of years in the best shape. I've seen healthy increases in orders and on back issues sales for Batman Superman, Flash and Green Lantern titles. However the most spectacular difference has been in orders and sales on Vertigo books. Sandman has continued to be a very good seller but it's the "new wave" of Vertigo titles – Preacher and The Invisibles – which appear to have caught the imagination Preacher sells higher for me than all the Batman titles and runs the top three X-Men titles close. Not to be outdone the new Gaiman/Bachalo Death mini-series topped my chart with orders on #2 exceeding 50 copies. The most puzzling DC event of last year was the cancellation of the Babylon 5 comic. After a slow start sales steadily picked up and orders for the final issue were higher than Superman Wherever Babylon 5 comics appear next, the publishers will have a sure-fire hit on their hands (Hey, how about a Hulk/Babylon 5 cross-over – get Rob Liefeld to do it. He's done such a good job with Battlestar Galactica don't you think?!) As I write this Hitman #1 has just come in and sold out Methinks fans are going to scour the country looking for his appearance in Batman Chronicles #4.

IMAGE

The best selling Image books are Spawn, Gen 13 and WildC.A.T.S. in that order. Remember that hindsight thing I mentioned a couple of paragraphs back? The Gen 13 mini-series has been one of the sales phenomena of the last couple of years. The last #1 sold for £27.95 and as for the 13 variant covers...! Just when you think interest is cooling down in Spawn, along comes a customer who demands that you find him the first 10 issues of the series oh and Angela too while you're about it. And what would you like for an encore, sir? The Gen 13 mini-series perhaps?

DARK HORSE

Orders for Concrete, Sin City, Hellboy and Madman have all steadily increased over the past couple of years – Dark Horse seems like a natural home for the Legends creators Star Wars titles too have thrived and Dark Horse's sensitivity to the market was confirmed a few months ago when they announced that there would be no more than three titles solicited each month so as not to saturate the market (and fleece the loyal fan – Marvel take note) Back issues of Ghost and the various Manga titles sell well for us with Appleseed, Ghost in the Shell and Dominion growing in demand all the time

TOPPS

The truth is in here! Little did we know when Topps released #1 of The X-Files just over a year ago how strong a seller it was going to be. #1 has been selling for us recently at £45 and orders for numbers #13-17 stand at 50 to 60 copies We also managed to get copies of the Topps Edition of the magazine and they have been flying off the wall boards at marts in the North of England. Although the title is one of the most erratically published there's no sign of this phenomenon abating. The fun is trying to predict what's going to take off next (Independence Day – that's my tip!)

INDIES

The market is so diverse that it's difficult to lump everything together as if it was an homogenous group. Amongst the true gems of the last couple of years are Stray Bullets, Bone (doing well with Image now), Strangers in Paradise Poison Elves, Strangehaven and Tyrant We pride ourselves on keeping a very large stock of Indies and it's books such as these that fans are hunting for at marts Worthy of a mention for frenetic sales activity too are Lady Death, Shi (will #7 ever come out?), Verotika Satanika and Penthouse Comix. There was a real boom in the sales of "bad girl" comics for several months but it's showing signs of slowing down now even though the number of Lingerie and Nude editions being solicited seems to be on the increase! Indies which I'm most asked about are first prints of Stray Bullets and early Poison Elves although Dawn manages to (ahem) hold her own with #1 selling out at £5 00

SUMMARY

Although there's no doubt that the industry as a whole has gone through a very difficult period in the last 18 months my business has gone from strength to strength enabling me to devote myself full time to it now. As primarily a mail-order business I find that there are an awful lot of fans and collectors out there who for various reasons do not go into comic shops or attend marts and conventions. Despite hefty price increases too (which we have managed to mitigate) over the past year or so, support for the core titles from Marvel and DC remain strong and there is a growing readership for many of the self-published works and the more innovative titles produced by Dark Horse, for example. With a positive attitude, sound marketing and comics which are well written and drawn (which we're getting back to!) the industry can recover to former heights. See you next Guide.

ANTHONY ADDISON / SHEILA ANN DUXBURY – STARTLING COMICS

A big hello to everyone from sunny Bradford! Firstly we would like to thank John and Duncan for inviting us to write our first market report. For those not familiar with our name we attend nearly all the major marts up and down the country and we also offer a friendly mail order service

GOLDEN AGE

There is definitely a strong following for these books at the moment, especially the main super-hero lines. Recently we acquired a large collection of Golden Age and we have had some good sales throughout the last two months. Recent sales include Superman #3, All Star Comics #4,12,18 and 36, Batman #62 plus a Near Mint Batman #4

SILVER AGE MARVEL AND DC

Massive! Demand for high grade VF+ and above unstamped cents copies with some key books selling at U.K Guide and a half, double in some instances. There's still a healthy demand for lower grades but not at Guide. We're constantly fighting to keep certain issues in stock especially high grade Spiderman's and all 10 cent DC copies Recent sales include Avengers #1-10 (FN), X-Men #1 (VG+), Fantastic Four #5 (FN) Tales of Suspense #50-66 all being Near Mint Flash #105 (VG), Superman #100 (FN+) and a whole host of Spiderman's

1970s

This era is selling very well at the moment All ND issues are flying out of stock A few surprises over the last few months with sales on titles like Eternals, Jungle Action, Ghost Rider Nova and Werewolf By Night, comics that you could find in most dealers' cheap boxes a few years ago. Bat titles are very popular at the moment; Neal Adams issues are always in demand Biggest scare of recent times has been the jump in price and demand for Giant Size X-Men #1 and X-Men #94, especially in high grade.

RECENT DC

Over the last six months we have seen a large leap in sales on quite a few titles. This has been most noticeable on all Vertigo titles, The Flash, Impulse, Green Lantern, Hawkman and all the Superman titles and one pleasant surprise was Batman Adventures becoming very popular

RECENT MARVEL

We tend to sell a lot of Marvel, right across the range of titles, with anything X-title outselling everything else! Issues always in demand: X-Men #266, Wolverine #1,#10 and #75 and Spiderman #300. With Incredible Hulk picking up as well, Hulk #340 has been disappearing from boxes.

IMAGE

Can this company do no wrong? Gen 13 (both series) always sell well, Spawn still as popular as ever including all spin-off titles. Cyberforce is picking up again but pick of the moment has to be Witchblade #1 with an excellent cover and the variant covers seem too be going if sensibly priced.

INDEPENDENTS

X-Files, Shi, Razor, Cry For Dawn, Double Impact, Creed, Lady Death, Avengelyne and Ash – just a selection of titles that have emerged through 1995/96, these seem as popular as the X-titles. Bad Girl books are in heavy demand, notably the early issues of Cry For Dawn. Shi is always selling, even more so with the introduction of the Tomoe character. All variants and special editions sell well.

The biggest hit this last year has to be X-Files. We are constantly selling out of all issues and at the time of writing we have just received the very elusive X-Files 1/2. Given the notoriety of Wizard's comic book productions and irrespective of any low print runs we can foresee demand far outstripping supply. Indeed the few copies we managed to acquire are already fetching prices around £25.00. How long will it be before this comic fetches more money than X-Files #1 which at the moment is hard enough to keep in stock at £34.95?

Once again thanks to John and Duncan and all our customers. We hope to hear from more of you soon.

MANNY AMARIO – WHATEVER COMICS

It's been two years since my last Market Report and what a busy two years it's been. We have now opened our second retail store in Maidstone and I am happy to say it is doing very well. All in all we seem to be very healthy in a shaky climate. Now, on with the report…

MARVEL

Marvel titles continue to sell. I have however noticed a slight drop in sales on X-titles but an increase in all Spiderman titles. The Spiderman Batman team-up sold very well when you consider the $5.95 cover price. In fact all the Marvel/DC crossovers have sold well. The Hulk holds its own as does The Avengers, Silver Surfer, Captain America and The Fantastic Four. The 2099 line does well with the best being Spiderman 2099 and X-Men 2099. The new X-Nation 2099 sales look good too. The new 99 cents line sells well with the best being Spiderman: The Untold Tales which is a fine little comic. Low sales reported in both stores on Ghost Rider, Conan, Dr. Strange and Ultraverse titles. One little gem that I have read lately is the T2 Comics which are very good. While on the subject of Marvel, what bright spark thought of giving Captain America to Liefeld? Cap's been around since 1941 and deserves to be treated with respect. Mark Waid's writing on this comic has made it a very readable title and sales have increased steadily over the months. I really don't see how Liefeld's outfit can improve on that.

DC

All Batman and related titles continue to do well such as Robin, Catwoman and Azrael. I have noticed a slight decrease in sales on Superman titles. Most other DC super-hero titles are selling steadily. Low sales recorded on Firebrand, Green Arrow and Milestone titles. Vertigo titles continue to do well with the best being Sandman, Hellblazer, The Invisibles, Books of Magic and Preacher. The Horrorist sold very well for me boosted by the signing hosted at my Canterbury store by Jamie Delano and David Lloyd who were great and signed anything and everything that was put in front of them. Thanks chaps.

Goddess has done well as has Egypt but Chiaroscuro is faltering. Death II has just arrived and looks great. Sales on Swamp Thing are down.

IMAGE

Most Image titles sell well, the best being Gen 13, Spawn, WildC.A.T.S., Cyberforce and Witchblade. The best new titles have been Weapon Zero and 21. The Spawn and WildC.A.T.S. mini-series has done very well while comics like Casual Heroes and Crush have flopped. Image seem to be putting out a lot of new titles, some of which are good and some of which are not. On the company cross-over front, Spawn Batman/Batman Spawn sold very well indeed and continues to sell and sell. The Cyblade/Shi team-up also did very well as did the Avengelyne/Glory team-up. It seems that the different company cross-overs always do well and we have had a few to be getting on with over the last year or so.

DARK HORSE

The Dark Horse licensed titles on Star Wars continue to do very well, the best being Heir to the Empire and Empire's End. Also the Boba Fett Bounty Hunter one shot sold very well but sales on Jabba the Hutt and Droids are slightly down. The Dark Horse Manga titles have a loyal following with Oh My Goddess, Dirty Pair and Gunsmith Cats doing well. Also 3x3 Eyes and Legend of Mother Sarah are good sellers. The Legend line still shows promise with Sin City always selling well and Martha Washington not far behind. The Big Guy and Rusty the Robot sold well even if the comic was the size of a house. The Dark Horse heroes line does okay, the best being Ghost, the worst being Mask.

TOPPS

What can I say about X-Files? A huge hit with both Topps and U.K. editions selling well and making money. Star Wars Galaxy Mag does well and Jason and Leatherface was a surprise hit.

MAXIMUM PRESS

Both Avengelyne and Battlestar Galactica have been huge hits for me.

BROADWAY COMICS

All titles doing very poorly. I don't think I'll be ordering these for much longer.

OTHER INDEPENDENTS

The Dawn mini-series has been a huge hit with all issues selling fast, Dawn #1 already selling for £5.00. Lady Death and Evil Ernie comics seem to do well as do Double Impact and Hellina. Bongo Comics are holding their own and Strangers in Paradise is a gem - read it! Titles like Eightball and Hate have a very solid audience and the Crow Deadtime sold out. Tekno titles sell poorly as do all Valiant/Acclaim titles with the exception of Magic comics.

COLLECTIBLE CARD GAMES

Not strictly comics I know but we have seen a rise in the sale of these card games. The latest Star Wars card game has been a huge hit with record sales reported from both stores. Star Trek Next Generation continues to sell and all the Magic cards are doing well with the best being Ice Age.

BACK ISSUES

Sales on back issues have not been too bad with Spiderman, X-Men, Batman, Spawn and Vertigo being constant. Older comics picking up with recorded sales on Conan #1 in VFN at £90.00, Tomb of Dracula #1 in NM at £35.00, several copies of Wolverine #1 in NM at £12.00, loads of early Spidermans between #3 and #100 with #3 in a very solid FN+ pence copy selling for £450.00. Some very early issues of Fantastic Four, too many to list here, have been selling at U.K. Guide prices. Other comics of note have been many pre-Code horror titles and some pre super-hero Marvels. We have also sold many pieces of original art ranging from #£35.00 to £250.00. Some other items have been Star Wars U.K. edition #1 with gift at three times U.K. Guide and also #2 in NM with gift at three times Guide.

1970s Kirby comics seem to be in demand with sales on New Gods and Forever People back issues on the up. Batman #155-181 have been sold as well as Detective Comics #387-410.

TRADING CARDS

Sales on trading cards have been good with popular sets like X-Files and Star Wars doing the best.

All in all the last year has not been too bad for us. The industry has seen many shake-ups but we seem to survive as long as the product finds its way into the store in a timely fashion – the customer is then happy and I'm happy.

Well this is the end of my report and if you've read it all, I thank you for your time. I would also like to thank everyone in the industry that makes it happen – publishers, distributors, artists, writers, creators and most of all the customers.

See you later.

It will be noticed that the value range is very generous with an upper limit of the Guide price in this book. While it is very likely that an individual may reasonably expect to pay more than the Guide price stated, one must take into consideration the size of the market in the U.K. for this sort of material and that deals and discounts would be expected by a purchaser with serious money. The market in the U.K. for these books is almost exclusively driven by the U.S. market and as such the popularity of books may differ. For example, Adventure Comics #40 is not such a popular [illegible] in the U.K. as it may be in the U.S. so [illegible]

P[illegible] myself personally. There may be others [illegible]. The high grade copies known to me are a mixture of unrestored and restored copies. THE VALUES GIVEN ARE FOR UNRESTORED COPIES ONLY. RESTORED COPIES WOULD BE LESS VALUABLE DEPENDING ON THE AMOUNT OF RESTORATION AND (INCREASINGLY NOW) THE PERSON RESPONSIBLE FOR THAT RESTORATION AND THE DOCUMENTATION THAT GOES WITH THE COMIC. A RESTORED COMIC WITHOUT DOCUMENTATION WOULD OBVIOUSLY BE LESS VALUABLE.

We are in the process of putting together a Restoration Guide for key books which will feature in the next U.K. Price Guide.

[illegible] of known availability should anyone suddenly decide to invest that sort of money and the very rare actual sale in the U.K. Necessarily there are very few known collectors aspiring to such heights at the present time so such prices may be treated with due consideration.

[illegible] professionally and (unprofessionally) restored [illegible] into a super-league of its own.

[illegible] apart from condition [illegible] the factor of the fame of the character coupled with rarity [illegible] secondary. Detective #27 shows that comics do not necessarily need to be first issues though this is a contributory factor. In any event such comics are highly prized as remarkable pieces of popular art and cultural consciousness and one [illegible] for future generations to enjoy.

BUBBLE GUM CARDS

(with grateful thanks to Ron Hall of First Choice Trading Cards for the extended information First Choice Trading Cards 11 Keith Avenue Liverpool L4 5FL Tel (0831) 765 811).

INTRODUCTION

Bubble Gum cards are usually manufactured in 2 sizes 88mm x 63mm and 80mm x 55mm. The most prolific company in the 1960's was American and British Chewing Gum Ltd (A & BC GUM), owned by Topps Gum Inc., USA. Broadly speaking, US equivalent sets copyrighted Topps have a higher value. Other gum card companies included. Anglo Chewing Gum Ltd Bubbles Inc. Chewing Gum (a subsidiary of A & BC Gum), Donruss (USA), Monty Gum (a Dutch company mainly active in the 1970's) and Somportex Ltd UK.

Sweet cigarette cards are normally, as tobacco cards, manufactured to the regimental size of 35mm x 65mm. An example of an exception to this rule is (Fireball) XL5 by Como Companies that have issued popular sets include Barratt & Co. Ltd, Cadet Sweets, Como Confectionery Products Ltd and Primrose Confectionery Co. Ltd A point to mention is that in this politically correct age, "Sweet Cigarettes' is now not allowed to be used as product terminology On the occasions a product appears now, they are called "Candy Sticks".

Some sets, in particular A & BC Gum cards, vary in "finishing' ie. matt or shiny fronts. In normal circumstances this is of no consequence to collectors as differences are slight. However some sets do have obvious differences to their backs with strong distinction on colour. This is more important so colour matching sets are the order of the day!

Most card sets were/are manufactured in 2 separate sheets. Uncut sheets can command high prices although they are generally not in great demand Cards that have been cut off-centre eg wide border at the top of the card and picture pushed to the bottom edge of the card can detract from the price Any card that has the picture incomplete with an adjacent card illustration showing is of very low value (note the difference to printing errors on comic books which can have a much higher value sometimes).

A first and foremost ..you read it here! Also included here is a Price Guide to individual wrappers and packets that the cards were sold in Bubble gum cards were usually sold in "wax packs" (an average of 6-8 in a packet) and a pack could be opened without damaging the wrapper. However, Somportex for example did issue most card sets in paper wrappers that were sealed at the edges so the packet had to be torn to remove that cards. A mint wrapper would therefore have to be an unopened pack: This would command a price 2-4 times that stated

Sweet cigarette packets contained 1 card Today's packets have the card printed on the box itself no comment

A few sets had an album exclusively produced Prices stated for these is for Mint and Unused The value of an exclusive album with the card set stuck down can vary widely depending on desirability of the set, the neatness of the sticking and personal choice. Cards that have been adhered to anything else or show clear signs of having once been, are of low value It should be noted that card dealers usually charge double for Mint end numbers eg. Champions #1 and #45 at £4.00 each This is because a large number of cards collected would be kept in number order with the end numbers being handled constantly and usually the cards were held together with an elastic band thus putting a strain on the edges

Finally, the years stated are, where available, copyright dated on the card or packaging. Values for cards and sets are for those graded in EXCELLENT condition or NEAR MINT condition, that is, cards without any creases dents, marks or rounded corners, nearly perfect in every way

While some sets (Stingray (Cadet Sweets) or UFO (Barratt) turn up in MINT condition fairly regularly, most of the sets listed below (and particularly the older ones) can command more than the listed price should they be found in genuine MINT condition

ADDAMS FAMILY

PRODUCER: DONRUSS
ISSUE YEAR: 1964
CARD SET: 66
COMPLETE SET: £250.00
SINGLE CARDS: £3.50
WRAPPER: £35.00

Important Notes: With the success of the Addams Family movies, this rare set is now sought after Issued in USA only Fronts are black and white photos and backs are photo composites.

BATMAN (Pink Back, Fan Club Panel)

PRODUCER: A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR: 1966
CARD SET: 55
COMPLETE SET: £80.00
SINGLE CARDS: £1.50
WRAPPER: £25.00

BATMAN (Pink Back, no Fan Club Panel)

PRODUCER: A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR: 1966
CARD SET: 55
COMPLETE SET: £55.00
SINGLE CARDS: £1.00
WRAPPER £25.00

BATMAN A SET

PRODUCER: A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR: 1966
CARD SET: 44
COMPLETE SET: £55.00
SINGLE CARDS £1.25
WRAPPER: £25.00

Important Notes: the letter A appears after the number on the back which, like the B set, makes up a larger jigsaw picture of Batman, Robin and other characters

BATMAN B SET

PRODUCER: A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR. 1966
CARD SET: 44
COMPLETE SET: £110.00
SINGLE CARDS. £2.50
WRAPPER £25.00

Important Notes: This B set is much scarcer than the A set. Backs also make up a larger picture composite.

BATMAN (Black Back)

PRODUCER: A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR: 1966
CARD SET: 38
COMPLETE SET: £75.00
SINGLE CARDS: £2.00

Important Notes: A secret decoder was included in each packet, used to decipher the Riddlers Riddles on the back. These are very rare and can fetch £10-£12 each for an excellent condition example. The fronts show colour photos from the 1966 feature film.

BATMAN (Black Back, Dutch)

PRODUCER A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR. 1966
CARD SET; 38
COMPLETE SET: £115.00
SINGLE CARDS. £3.00

Important Notes: As with the above, the cards featured scenes from the feature film. Backs of cards different to UK issue (different Riddler drawing, no Decoder message)

BATMAN (Number on front)

PRODUCER: A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR. 1966
CARD SET: 55
COMPLETE SET: £110.00
SINGLE CARDS: £2.00
WRAPPER: £30.00

Important Notes: These cards show scenes from the Batman TV series and the Batman 1966 movie including the famous rubber shark and anti-Bat shark repellent! Backs comprise of separate picture composites. The printing on this set often shows colour imperfections Note also a BATMAN ALBUM which could house any of the above Batman sets, valued at about £40.00 in Near Mint unused condition

BATTLE

PRODUCER: A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR: 1966
CARD SET: 73
COMPLETE SET £75.00
SINGLE CARDS: £1.00
WRAPPER: £20.00

Important Notes: As with the Civil War News set, these were particularly violent and occasionally brutal cards and are highly collectible This set had a check card which listed all the numbers of the set and they are often filled in or ticked off. Unmarked check cards are very scarce and would add £10 to the value of the set There are two variations of the check cardas #32, 39, 42 and 44 were eventually withdrawn owing to excessive torture and violence. There are 2 variations of backs, the common being dark brown borders, the scarcer being light brown Backs contain Headline Reports

Note also:

MILITARY EMBLEMS. Set of 24 stickers (card size), one available in each packet
COMPLETE SET: £60.00

ISSUE YEAR:	1964
CARD SET:	60
COMPLETE SET:	£150 00
SINGLE CARDS:	£2 50
WRAPPER:	£35 00

Important Notes: black and white photos with individual signatures Although this set was produced in large quantities, mint sets are not common

BEATLES (2nd Series)

PRODUCER:	A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR:	1965
CARD SET:	45
COMPLETE SET:	£225 00
SINGLE CARDS:	£5 00
WRAPPER:	£45.00

Important Notes: This set carried on the numbering from the 1st Series as card numbers 61-105

BEATLES (Colour)

PRODUCER:	A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR:	1965
CARD SET:	40
COMPLETE SET:	£200 00
SINGLE CARDS:	£5 00
WRAPPER:	£45.00

Important Notes: new series of colour photographs Odds are not to be confused with the Top Pop Stars set of 50 from 1964 which includes 1-22 of The Beatles which state "in a series of 50 photos"

BEATLES (Yellow Submarine)

PRODUCER:	ANGLO CONFECTIONERY LTD
ISSUE YEAR:	1968
CARD SET:	66
COMPLETE SET:	£420 00
SINGLE CARDS:	£6 25
WRAPPER:	£60.00

Important Notes: Picture back composite. A very rare and collectible cult set particularly as it was unissued in the USA.

BEATLES (Yellow Submarine)

PRODUCER:	PRIMROSE CONFECTIONERY LTD
ISSUE YEAR:	1968
CARDS SET:	50
COMPLETE SET:	£115 00
SINGLE CARDS:	£2.25
PACKET:	£35.00

Important Notes: sweet cigarettes set. Variation on the above gum card set, backs of cards containing a storyline

CAPTAIN SCARLET & THE MYSTERONS

PRODUCER:	ANGLO CONFECTIONERY LTD
ISSUE YEAR:	1967
CARD SET:	66
COMPLETE SET:	£115.00
SINGLE CARDS:	£1.75
WRAPPER:	£20.00

Important Notes: This set is becoming more and more collectible with the current screening of the TV series The cards are a mixture of scenes from the series and line drawings. The backs of the cards made up a giant collage picture of all the characters and machines. This composite picture could be obtained as a poster made of card via mail order It is very rare and valued at £70.00

CAPTAIN SCARLET

PRODUCER:	BARRATT & CO. LTD
ISSUE YEAR:	1967
CARD SET:	50
COMPLETE SET:	£55 00
SINGLE CARDS:	£1.10
PACKET:	£15.00

Important Notes: a sweet cigarette set which is rising rapidly in price.

CAPTAIN SCARLET

PRODUCER:	EDWARD SHARP & SONS
ISSUE YEAR:	1970
CARD SET:	20
COMPLETE SET:	£75.00
SINGLE CARDS:	£3 75

Important Notes: Re-issue of the character photos taken from the Barratt set. Also include 5 vehicle cards which are drawings which are not so sharp unlike the producer! 3 sides of the card are serrated as these were given out separately from the toffee Although a scarce set, it is for completists only

CHAMPIONS

PRODUCER:	A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR:	1969
CARD SET:	45
COMPLETE SET:	£90 00
SINGLE CARDS	£2 00
WRAPPER:	£25.00

Important Notes: These cards show colour photos from the TV series The female star Alexander Bastedo adds to the desirability of this set. As with the Batman Black Backs, each pack had a secret decoder in order to answer the general knowledge questions on the back. Slightly different, these are harder to find and in top shape can fetch £20 or add £20 to the value of the set

CIVIL WAR NEWS

PRODUCER:	A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR:	1965
CARD SET:	88
COMPLETE SET:	£110.00
SINGLE CARDS:	£1 25
WRAPPER:	£20.00

Important Notes: As these cards were particularly gory, they were banned in some parts of the UK.

The backs contain headline reports from 1861 –1865. One of 15 Civil War Bank notes were also available in certain packets and these fetch £3.00 each. The denominations were as follows: 2 x $1.00, 2 x $2 00, 2 x $5.00, 2 x $10 00, 2 x $20.00, 2 x $50.00, 1 x $100.00, 1 x $500.00 and 1 x $1,000 00

CLIFF RICHARD

PRODUCER:	LEAF SALES CONFECTIONERY LTD
ISSUE YEAR:	1960
CARD SET:	£50 00
COMPLETE SET:	£115.00
SINGLE CARDS:	£2.25
PACKET:	No price available

Important Notes: Black and white photos. Company and copyright not stated on the cards

COMIC BOOK FOLDEES

PRODUCER:	A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR:	1968
CARD SET:	43
COMPLETE SET:	£65 00
SINGLE CARDS:	£1 50
WRAPPER:	£25 00

Important Notes: Originally produced as a 44 issue set, one featuring the Queen was banned but it occasionally turns up. This one fetches up to £20. They were not cards as such but two comedy pictures and one DC Super-hero and each outer picture folded in half with the third to form weird and wonderful combinations. Near Mint condition would mean that they would have to be unfolded and completely flat Also, the original display box tends to turn up with reasonable frequency, some think after a quantity warehouse find

COMBAT

PRODUCER:	SELMUR
ISSUE YEAR:	1963
CARD SET:	66
COMPLETE SET:	£100 00
SINGLE CARDS:	£1 50
WRAPPER:	£20.00

Important Notes: Black and white photos from TV series. Issued in the USA only. A 2nd series in the same year was also produced

DANGER MAN, JOHN DRAKE

PRODUCER:	SOMPORTEX LTD
ISSUE YEAR:	1966
CARD SET:	72
COMPLETE SET:	£180 00
SINGLE CARDS:	£2 50
WRAPPER:	£20.00

Important Notes: A very scarce set with scenes from the TV series starring Patrick McGoohan. Black and white

DOCTOR WHO ADVENTURE

PRODUCER:	T WALL & SON
ISSUE YEAR:	1966
CARD SET:	36
COMPLETE SET:	£65 00
SINGLE CARDS:	£1.75
WRAPPER (Ice lolly):	£65 00
ALBUM:	£75 00

Important Notes: Colour art. This set was being produced at the time of Patrick Troughton taking over from William Hartnell in the TV series. The drawings of Hartnell on the front were changed at the last minute but the backs with Hartnell headers are unchanged!

DOCTOR WHO AND THE DALEKS

PRODUCER:	CADET SWEETS
ISSUE YEAR	1965
CARD SET:	50
COMPLETE SET:	£125 00
SINGLE CARDS:	£2.50
PACKET:	£45.00

Important Notes: Although this set does not depict William Hartnell but rather a non descript grey-haired character, the superb artwork which is compatible with the subject makes this set very desirable so expect a steady increase

DOCTOR WHO AND THE DALEKS
PRODUCER: GOODIES LTD
ISSUE YEAR: 1968
CARD SET: 50
COMPLETE SET: £200 00
SINGLE CARDS: £4 00
PACKET: No price available
Important Notes: Much scarcer re-issue set of the Cadet Sweets series

DOCTOR WHO
PRODUCER: WEETABIX
ISSUE YEAR: 1977
CARD SET: 24
COMPLETE SET £48 00
SINGLE CARDS. £1.50
SOURCE: issued inside the cereal packets
Important Notes: Double-sided: colour photographs/art

DOCTOR WHO, THE AMAZING WORLD OF PRODUCER. TYPHOO TEA
ISSUE UEAR: 1976
CARD SET: 12
COMPLETE SET: 24
SINGLE CARDS £2.00
Important Notes: Colour photo portraits of Doctor Who and assorted villains. The cards were hexagonal! Reprint imitations have been known.

ELVIS PRESLEY
PRODUCER: A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR. 1959
CARD SET: 66
COMPLETE SET: £630.00
SINGLE CARDS: £9.50
WRAPPER: £100.00
Important Notes: Hand coloured photographs

FIREBALL XL5
PRODUCER: COMO CONFECTIONERY PRODUCTS LTD
ISSUE YEAR: 1964
CARD SET: 26
COMPLETE SET: £260 00
SINGLE CARDS: £10.00
PACKET. £35.00
Important Notes: Square cards measuring 65mm x 65mm. The cards were titled simply "XL5" while the packets were fully titled "Fireball XL5"

FIREBALL XL5
PRODUCER: COMO CONFECTIONERY PRODUCTS LTD
ISSUE YEAR: 1965
CARDS SET: 26
COMPLETE SET: £290 00
SINGLE CARDS: £11 00
ALBUM: £100 00
Important Notes: Very scarce, especially as a set. The numbering continued from the 1st series as #27-52. The format size is the same as the above. XL5 was not a big seller as the cards were issued after the initial screening of the TV series thus all the XL5 cards are very scarce Note also, a smaller card of the above two series was issued in bags of "dolly mixture" type sweets. They are very scarce and single cards and sets would be valued at approximately 10%-15% more than the sweet cigarette prices

ISSUE YEAR:	1968
CARD SET:	66
COMPLETE SET:	£115.00
SINGLE CARDS:	£1.75
WRAPPER:	£20.00

Important Notes: Colour photos/art. A scarce set that may rise in value as the TV series is now being repeated on cable/satellite. The composite picture on the backs of the cards like the Captain Scarlet set by Anglo could be purchased as a poster made of card and is similarly valued at £70.00

JOE 90

PRODUCER:	PRIMROSE CONFECTIONERY LTD
ISSUE YEAR:	1968
CARD SET:	50
COMPLETE SET:	£45.00
SINGLE CARDS:	90p
PACKET:	£20.00

Important Notes: Sets produced on paper-thin card are much more common than the standard thickness cards. These inferior sets were probably produced after the initial release

KUNG FU

PRODUCER:	A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR:	1974
CARD SET:	£60.00
COMPLETE SET:	£33.00
SINGLE CARDS:	55p
WRAPPER:	£6.00

Important Notes: Colour photos of David Carradine series which may experience renewed interest with the updated new TV series in USA about to air in the U.K. Nos. 1-44 have two different composite pictures. Picture A and Picture B. Other backs have the history of Kung Fu, references to the TV series and diagrams on the art of Kung Fu which state: "CAUTION. Do not use Caine's combat techniques without professional training"

LAND OF THE GIANTS

PRODUCER:	A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR:	1969
CARD SET:	55
COMPLETE SET:	£165.00
SINGLE CARDS:	£3.00
WRAPPER:	£25.00

Important Notes: A scarce set that has risen in value owing to the recent screening of the TV series on cable/satellite. The check card is often marked or ticked and an unmarked one is vakued more highly. The backs depict a small cartoon strip and a small composite picture

LEGEND OF CUSTER, THE

PRODUCER:	A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR:	1965
CARD SET:	54
COMPLETE SET:	£40.00
SINGLE CARDS:	75p

MAN FROM U.N.C.L.E., THE, (see U.N.C.L.E.)

PRODUCER:	A & BC GUM
ISSUE YEAR:	1966
CARD SET:	55
COMPLETE SET:	£55.00
SINGLE CARDS:	£1.00
WRAPPER:	£20.00

Important Notes: This set features black & white scenes and publicity stills from the series, "signed" by Robert Vaughan and David McCallum on the front. Composite picture backs. These cards were produced on 2 different types of card, one was more yellowy, giving an "aged" look and one was white, giving a "fresher" look. The yellower cards would be valued as a set at about £40.00

MARS ATTACKS

PRODUCER:	BUBBLES INC
ISSUE YEAR:	1965
CARD SET:	55
COMPLETE SET:	£825.00
SINGLE CARDS:	£15.00
WRAPPER:	£175.00
REPRINT SET	(copyright TOPPS) £30.00

Important Notes: A very rare set and infamous in the 1960s for being particularly gory and consequently banned. The check card is often filled in. An untouched one would make the complete set worth in the region of £850.00

MONKEES, THE

Flash #123 – The comic that introduced the concept of "Earth 2" to the DC Universe

An Introduction to DC COMICS

DC COMICS have been published and distributed in America since February 1935 with New Fun Comics #1. For many years, the company was known as National Periodical Publications until it changed simply to D.C. at the beginning of 1977, the letters traditionally taken from the long running (since 1937) Batman title, Detective Comics. The Golden Age that saw the appearance of the main characters Superman in Action Comics #1 in June 1938 and Batman in Detective Comics #27, May 1939, technically runs up to 1955 but the high point which saw the great plethora of costumed heroes ran from 1938 to 1942. What is known as the Silver Age runs from about January 1955 up to about 1965, in which a second age of costume heroes began more officially with an updated version of The Flash in Showcase #4, cover dated Sept/Oct 1956. There are many who cite the Martian Manhunter in Detective #225, November 1955, as the first significant costumed hero within the correct dates (some affectionately remember and would claim for Captain Comet from Strange Adventures #9, June 1951). In any event, many characters from the 1940s were updated and revamped by the then Editor, Julius Schwartz, like Hawkman, Atom and Green Lantern. D.C. Silver Age comics are in great demand in the current market, especially 10 cents cover-priced issues and especially in high grade.

In 1955, the Comics Code Authority was formed in response to Dr. Frederick Wertham's book "The Seduction of the Innocent" that decried the moral and sexual downslide of some comics that were available at the time, most notably the horror and mystery titles from E.C. (or Educational Comics) and its many, usually inferior, imitators. Although Code approval is not compulsory, most D.C. comics are still submitted for approval by the C.C.A. in order to ensure the widest distribution. Some comics have been submitted in the past but failed to gain Code acceptance; where applicable and of importance, this has been noted in the Guide. The introduction of the C.C.A. is another indication of the start of D.C.'s Silver Age.

Official distribution of D.C. comics in the U.K. began in very early 1960 with cover-dated issues November 1959, although there was some extremely limited distribution of romance and funny titles and the occasional super-hero title before this date. D.C. comics in the 1960s and 1970s were distributed through Thorpe and Porter who ink-stamped the front cover with their price. As they were not imported on a sale or return basis, any excess copies were further shipped abroad, resulting in an intrinsic scarcity of early 1960s D.C.s in this country. D.C.s (and especially Marvels) often came across on ships as ballast, so many issues have emerged as being water-damaged in some way; the varying degrees of damage greatly and proportionately devaluing a comic.

As they had remained unchallenged since the late 1930s, D.C. tended to rest on its laurels in spite of producing some excellent super-heroes stories and science fiction art up to the late 1950s. When Marvel Comics appeared in November 1961, with Fantastic Four #1, their rapid success meant that for the first time in 25 years, D.C. could no longer rest on its laurels. They did seem, however, to be quite content with their position and in January 1962, did what seemed to be the unthinkable of putting the cover price up from 10 cents to 12, compounded by a letter of apology in their comics explaining rising paper costs. However, top D.C. titles continued to out-sell Marvel comics throughout the 1960s with Superman reaching sales of 800,000 and Batman at one point close on a million.

In May 1964, Batman and Detective Comics were revamped with a new look at art by Carmine Infantino and stories that did not pit the Caped Crusader against pink or green aliens. Batman reached new heights of popularity with the screening of the networked T.V. show in 1966 and another sign of the swinging Sixties was the appearance of the "Go Go Checks" at the top edge of the covers. This collectible quirk appeared from February 1966 to July 1967, but the story and art content of some D.C. titles were at an all time low.

June 1969 saw another cover price rise to 15 cents and in January 1971, Superman had his first update in over thirty years. All Kryptonite was turned to harmless lead and Clark Kent became a T.V. news reporter and anchorman rather than the Daily Planet's ace newshound. Superman also lost about a third of his powers as it was felt that he was getting too omnipotent, but he gradually returned to normal without anybody noticing throughout the 1970s. In August 1971, the cover price went to 25 cents and the pages from 32 to 48. D.C. reprinted much classic 40s and 50s material in this expansion but it only lasted until June 1972 when comics reverted to normal page count but were up to 20 cents. "All New Stories Best in Comics", it said.

D.C. giants had always been popular since the first Superman Annual in 1960. Thereafter, annuals and 80 page giants featuring mainly reprints of the Superman and Batman family of stories, appeared with increasing frequency. As they were thicker comics, fewer were sent over to the U.K. in the regular packets, so they are generally scarcer. Very often the spines are crinkled owing to the way the glue dried, so perfectly flat and therefore near mint or mint copies are very rare. D.C. comics of the 1960s are generally of a higher quality than comparative Marvel comics in the paper stock they used, although it may be noticed that Marvel comics often retain the whiteness of their pages better and particularly their cover gloss owing to the composition of the papers used. Marvel comics from about 1964 onwards are in generally greater supply than D.C.s. Media coverage in America meant that dealers went around buying up vast stocks for a ready-made back issue market and it was also noticed that Marvel comic readers tended to save their comics more as stories and often referred back to previous incidents and characters, so there was more of an idea of a set of comics. Indeed, sets were more possible to collect as the numbers were not so astronomically high as D.C. titles seemed to be.

In 1973, a comic fan and dealer, Theo Holstein, paid $1,800 for a good copy of Action Comics #1 and as news spread across America over the next year, the emergence of rare comics and the upward spiral of the sums they commanded began. The publication in 1970 of the Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide and its rapid acceptance as a monitor of market values contributed to public awareness of the potential value of comic books. The 1973 Overstreet mint price for Action Comics #1 jumped from $1,000 to $2,800 in 1974. Such a percentage rise would be unthinkable today. D.C. reprinted a number of "Famous First Editions" facsimiles in an oversized format which further popularised the appeal of the top comics like Action #1, Detective #27, Sensation #1, Whiz #2, Batman #1, Wonder Woman #1, All Star #3 and Flash Comics #1. In that same year, D.C.s went up to 25 cents and in August 1975, the unprecedented collaboration between Marvel and D.C. brought M.G.M.'s Marvelous Wizard of Oz. There followed in 1976, the confrontation between Superman and Spiderman which was the same year that Jenette Kahn was appointed Publisher after having edited such magazines as "Smash" and "Dyna Mite". D.C. were however, steadily declining in the face of the unstoppable, untoppable Marvel. Just as there had been a set-back to expansion in 1971, in 1978 came the "D.C. Implosion". Warner Brothers Communications who had taken over D.C. drastically cut back the number of monthly titles by 40% in an effort to halt declining sales. After only three months, the new 50 cents/44 pages format was cut back to 32 pages for 40 cents and most of the newer titles were cancelled. Among the casualties were All Star Comics, Black Lightning, Kamandi, Firestorm, Steel, the relaunched Showcase and The Witching Hour. New comics like The Vixen and The Deserter never saw print at all. The official reason was a revamped distribution process which sold larger quantities of proven sellers rather than risk and bombard the retailers with newer unknown titles. Marvel were at their strongest, still holding out on a 35 cent cover price and Spiderman being a runaway best-seller with the revamped X Men not far behind.

In 1980/81, the advent of "Direct Sale" comics revolutionised the whole structure. Some comics were distributed only to specialist shops and the publishers who got their orders direct from the Direct Sale distributor were able to print a more exact number of the copies they needed with no unprofitable over-print runs. As more comic shops open, so the Direct Sale market expands. However, in 1981, increased paper costs and the fuel crisis forced the cover price of D.C. comics to 60 cents but in November of that year, D.C. followed the lead from the Independent comics group, Pacific, and offered royalty payments to artists and writers on the basis of sales (back dated to July). Marvel were soon to follow suit. D.C. underwent a steady period of growth with quality products like George Perez's New Teen Titans and Crisis on Infinite Earths which simplified and re-defined the D.C. Universe. They celebrated their 50th year in 1985 by introducing a "Superman for the 80s" in a six part mini-series called The Man of Steel, by the British-born John Byrne. Wonder Woman was similarly updated by George Perez.

In 1986 there occurred a piece of comics and publishing history with Frank Miller's apocryphal Batman tale, The Dark Knight Returns, which set new standards of excellence in story and art and introduced comics to a far wider range of people than ever before. It remained on the New York Times Best Seller list for 38 weeks. With Alan Moore's revitalised Swamp Thing, Howard Chaykin and Bill Seinkiewicz on The Shadow, and Alan Moore and Dave Gibbons on The Watchmen, D.C. went on to regain the lead of the comic market share from Marvel in early 1988 for the first time in more than 10 years but this was very much in terms of revenue earned rather than volume sold and it only lasted for a couple of months.

In 1987, D.C. announced a labelling policy which would display "For Mature Readers Only" on comics that were deemed to be unsuitable for universal readership. Many artists and writers felt this to be a judgement constraint akin to censorship and their disagreements became resignations, most notably Alan Moore and Frank Miller. While labelling still occurs, all other disagreements seem to have been ironed out.

The dating of comic books has long been the system of advance where the cover date is three months ahead of sale. This was thought to give a comic a longer shelf-life in comic shops and in newsagents. Towards the end of 1988 D.C. announced that they would suspend cover-dating for three months from October to December and either simply put "Winter", "Holiday" or nothing at all. Then in January 1989, the cover date would match the real date at which it was on sale. It was felt that this would be less confusing and more in keeping with other magazines available on the shelf, so that people would know it was "this month's".

1989 was also remarkable for the unprecedented media and cultural phenomenon surrounding the long-awaited release of the Batman movie starring Michael Keaton and Jack Nicholson. Shattering all previous box-office records the film has taken over $300 million worldwide to date. Although something of a backlash necessarily developed, this was almost entirely against the merchandising over-kill. The values of Batman and Batman-related comic books sky-rocketed. It seems that the Chinese menagerie has been added to with what has become "The Year of the Bat".

The end of the decade saw the continuation of quality products like Batman, The Cult, The Killing Joke and The Prisoner and other comics like Invasion, Black Orchid, Catwoman, Gotham by Gaslight, Hawkworld and the Arkham Asylum hardcover graphic novel. D.C.'s policy of revamped titles, high quality formats and mass market trade paperbacks seemed designed less to wrest the existing market-share lead from Marvel Comics than to attract a larger market from outside the usual comics readership.

The Batman boom dissipated during 1990 as was seen by the luke-warm reception given to Batman: Digital Justice which boasted a new era of computer-generated graphics and a colour palette of over sixteen million combinations. Traditional comics are best it seems. Interest was kept alive by the new Robin, Tim Drake and his own mini series and Batman celebrated his 600th appearance in Detective Comics #627 featuring a painted cover by Norm Breyfogle based on the original back in 1939. Flash celebrated his fiftieth year in 1990 with a number of specials including a hardcover collection of "The Greatest Flash Stories Ever Told". Coupled with the success of the Flash TV series on CBS-Fox in America, Showcase #4 featuring the first appearance of the Silver Age Flash consolidated its position as the most valuable Silver Age comic. Superman titles generally received a new injection of interest with Lois Lane finally getting her man after 52 years of courtship while Superman's arch foe, Lex Luthor, "died" in a plane crash, re-emerged as an Australian, died of kryptonite poisoning and has lately made a remarkable recovery!

For the start of 1991, comeback seemed to be the operative word with the return of the cult duo Angel and the Ape, the 1st super team in comics The Justice Society of America, the Challengers of the Unknown and a little-known Golden Age character called Kid Eternity given the Grant Morrison writing treatment though this and Bryan Talbot's The Nazz suffered from production delays which plagued D.C. even more towards the end of 1991. A follow up to the successful Green Lantern: Emerald Dawn mini-series epitomised D.C.'s attempts to launch a two-pronged attack of commercially successful projects and more specialised high-quality packages on the runaway success that Marvel Comics have enjoyed in recent times. However, D.C. slumped at one point in the latter half of 1991 to a market share of less than 20% while Marvel peaked at 68% largely through the marketing success of X-Men and other mutant titles. D.C.'s answer to all of this was another Robin mini series in more permutations than one could imagine and the release of a line of comics based on old Archie Comics heroes like The Web, The Jaguar, The Fly and The Shield. It was greeted with cynicism from the retailers and little enthusiasm from the fans. The line was cancelled in 1992.

The last couple of years have seen mixed fortunes of the company off-set with the occasional flashes of brilliance. Much hope was pinned on there being a repeat of the Batmania of 1989 with the release of the second film in 1991 but back-issue and current issue sales barely blipped. The absolute nadir for D.C. Comics came with the news in 1992 of their market share falling to an all-time low of 18%, in third place behind Marvel Comics and the new young upstart Valiant – new and forbidding territory for the giant publisher knocking 58 years old at the time.

The flashes of brilliance have been there more increasingly however. Some would say the most cynical of marketing ploys but others would argue one of the most successful for D.C. was the Death of Superman which recorded sales of 4 million for the issue of Superman #75. True to comic book fashion, he's back but it all showed that he was missed. More creatively, D.C. collected their horror and mystery titles under the generic banner of Vertigo with its own look and promotional push. Given that Swamp Thing, Hellblazer, Sandman, Shade and Animal Man feature some of the best in (British!) writing and drawing talent, it is a very strong base from which to launch spin-offs and one-shots which they have duly done.

D.C. had a good year in 1993 with the interest in Superman and Batman surprisingly catapulting these characters into some of the top selling comics slots. In 1993/94 D.C. increasingly took the lead in innovative ideas with re-vamps for Superman and Batman followed by one for Green Lantern in issue #50 of his 2nd series. The 1994 mini-series Zero Hour tidied up many inconsistencies and loose ends much in the same way as Crisis on Infinite Earths did and has supposedly established one consistent time line for the company. No doubt there will be another revision in ten year's time.

1995 saw the release of Batman Forever which critics hated but audiences loved. Judge Dredd did not fare so well at the box office and D.C. cancelled both their Judge Dredd titles. And fans everywhere mourned the horrific accident that befell Superman actor Christopher Reeve that left him paralysed from the neck down. An ironic mirroring of the Death of Clark Kent storyline that ran for a while throughout the Superman titles. At the end of the year D.C. Vs. Marvel #1 appeared, pitting selected heroes from one company against another in fights that fans could vote on the outcome. Such inter-company co-operation was extended by a series of Amalgam Comics featuring amalgamated D.C. and Marvel characters like Spider-Boy and Dr. Strange-Fate.

DC COMICS MARKET REPORT

This Market Report for D.C. comics examines the last twelve months or so of activity, looking particularly at value trends and reasons for increased or decreased collector interest. It is very generalized and regional variations should be taken into account. For titles and comics not mentioned, one may assume relatively stable values and collector interest not significantly differing from the last Guide.

ACTION COMICS

The listing starts from issue #1 to include those classic Golden Age comics and information. Though the market is small in the U.K. for these earlier comics owing to their generally being over the £500 mark, it is growing slowly as the fashion is often to possess at least one comic from Superman's hey-day of the 1930s and 1940s though probably in lower grade condition. Calculating values for these issues in the U.K. becomes virtually instinctive as copies of really early Action Comics are rarely offered for sale in the British market but if someone wanted to invest in them, they couldn't go far wrong with unrestored mid to high grades. It has been increasingly noticed at comic marts that lower grade copies of comics over 40 years old are popular sellers.

Reasonable increase on #242 again, increases on early Legion appearances (not around in high grade) and increases as ever on the 80pg giants (#334, #347 and #360 in particular) and annuals which are generally snapped up as good reading value for those that like early '60s reprints. Action Comics Weekly continues to occupy the bargain bins and will probably do so forever more. While interest in the Death of Superman and Reign of the Supermen issues stabilized owing to the Trade paperback versions becoming available (and rattling good reads they are too), Superman as a character has surprised many dealers in the U.K. by sustaining sales in the last couple of years. One reason for this may be the "Lois & Clark" Superman TV series screened on a more prime time Saturday evening slot in the U.K. and also that there are now five Superman titles continuing to interweave their soap opera-like storylines very successfully.

ADVENTURE COMICS

The listing starts from #1 when it was known as New Comics to give more information on these rare Golden Age issues. In some cases they are so rare that existing copies in any condition worldwide can be counted in tens. While there is a very small (if any) market in the U.K. as yet for this material, in low grades it is quite possible to purchase some of these antediluvian comics, to see how it all began. Interesting to think that New Comics #1 was the first ever comic published by D.C. Could they have had any inkling what it would lead to? Other early Golden Age classics include the first Sandman in #40, the first Hourman in #48, the first Starman in #61 and some great Simon and Kirby Golden Age Sandman material from #72-91: crying out for reprinting (D.C. take note..)

The first appearance of the Legion in #247 saw a modest increase again but now that this issue is beyond the reach of most collectors in high grade (if you can find one!), the market interest for such a book in the U.K. necessarily shrinks. Time was it was the issue to get but it seems when this and other issues like it reach that £1,000+ barrier the interest may still be there but sales are fewer and fewer.

The Legion issues from #300-380 are still in steady demand and a high grade run of these issues is becoming very difficult to put together. Many low grades have been reported sold as the stories are still a fun read. Issues #412, #414, #415, #420 and #421 have long ago been picked up by those who can't afford the original Animal appearances and they are a part of the general Silver Age Animal Man malaise so values are stagnant. The killers to find are those last Digest size issues – numbers #491 to #503. Drives completists wild. Others of interest are The Spectre issues #431-440, gaining in popularity on the back of the Spectre series by Tom Mandrake. They both evoke the "avenging spirit" of the character in the 1940s.

ALL AMERICAN COMICS/ALL FLASH/ALL STAR COMICS

The market in the U.K. for these Golden Age titles is quite small but issues can be picked up in average grades comparatively cheaply just to see what they are all about. For about forty pounds you could have a comic that is nearly 50 years old. All Star Comics have some great covers and lots of heroes for your money.

ALL STAR WESTERN

Worth mentioning for the first and early Jonah Hex stories. #10 is very hard to come by in any grade and is fast becoming something of a minor key issue.

1993 NM Price: £15.00
1994 NM Price: £30.00
1996 NM Price: £50.00

ANIMAL MAN

Animal Man underwent a period of revitalization under the Vertigo banner of titles with excellent scripting begun by Jamie Delano and experienced something of a comeback to fan popularity of yore. But now that the series has been cancelled, early issues (#1-10) are hardly in demand though the excellent Trade paperback reprints these and is a great read with a fab Brian Bolland cover.

AQUAMAN

Back issues sales of the 1960s issues are still slow in the U.K. market though the latest series (how many times have D.C. tried to launch this character?) has finally proved to be a winner with its "no more Mr Nice Guy" approach. Still can't understand why the prices of the Silver Age material in America seem to be, if not ablaze, then at least very healthily warm, particularly on early issues. Every other Overstreet Fan Magazine has them coloured in red. Why? Love to know who's buying them over there. Aquaman #1 is still a reasonable key issue and tough to find in high grade. Issues #50-52 are sought after by Neal Adams completists even though the artwork is on the Deadman back-up strip. For the best in Aquaman entertainment, check out the back-up stories in early 1960s Adventure Comics. Octopi with boxing gloves, swordfish cutting through chains and Aquaman launching himself into the fray on a whale-spout. Great stuff.

ATOM

Still attractive as a set to complete for some collectors but like Aquaman not as popular here in the U.K. as he seems to be in America. General back issue buyers are just not interested in The Atom. Funny how it too goes up in value in one monthly Update magazine or other to the point of ridicule. Issue #1 is still a reasonable D.C. Silver Age first issue, particularly with the comic exceeding the 30 years old barrier. Issues #29 and #36 continue to be more highly valued in the States than in the U.K. but they are getting noticeably harder to find. The Atom & Hawkman issues of #39-45 are a little harder to find as print runs were lower. They also have some nice moody covers by Joe Kubert.

BATMAN

Although still regarded as D.C.s most popular character, Batman has never quite attained the dizzy heights it did in the summer of 1989 when the first movie opened in a blaze of publicity. In recent times, Batman has a mixed reception from fans in the U.K. The Knightfall issues of Batman and Detective seem to be in demand once more. The "breaking" of Batman issue #497 slackened in demand as the issue seems very common at marts and conventions in the U.K. now. Back issues are still raided from comic-shop bins, particularly any issues before #300. Even those in the 300s are in shorter supply than they were. Either way, 1996 should prove to be an interesting year for the Dark Knight Detective as he squares up against Captain America in the D.C. vs. Marvel series and a fourth Batman film with Poison Ivy and Mr Freeze will be released.

The listing starts from #1 to give more information on some of these classic issues featuring some of the most classic Golden Age comics of all (perhaps a little bias comes into play here...) Low grade copies of these issues are excellent value for reading and enjoying the artwork of Bob Kane, Jerry Robinson, George Roussos, Dick Sprang and Charles Paris. As a general rule, this Guide has adopted a parity between the values of Golden Age Batman issues in the U.K. and the U.S. though in theory earlier issues of Batman, in common with virtually all Golden Age comics, are harder to get in the U.K. than in the U.S. Though they may be harder to obtain, the size of the market for them in the U.K. must be taken into account. #100 has taken another leap in value to become a serious back issue.

1993 NM Price: £690.00
1994 NM Price: £875.00
1996 NM Price: £1,100

It is very tough to find in high grade. #155 featuring the first Silver Age appearance of the Penguin has crept up only slightly.

1993 NM Price: £120.00
1994 NM Price: £140.00
1996 NM Price: £150.00

#171 featuring the first Silver Age Riddler took a leap in 1991 but has proved to be a fairly common book with many copies in lower grades appearing on Mart walls. Admittedly, the pink cover colour is prone to fading so very high grade copies are hard to come by. For this reason it still sky-rockets in the States. Historically however it is the 3rd ever appearance of this major Batman villain, made popular by Frank Gorshin on the Batman TV series. With Jim Carrey playing The Riddler in Batman Forever, much was done to popularise the character but prices only really rose in America on this comic so that the differential between values in the U.K. and U.S markets is increasing. The 80pg giants continue to be hard to find in high grade (#176 and #198 in particular) and with their reprints going back to the 1940s, they are excellent reading material. #200 is another very common issue in some areas of the U.K. It has always been much sought after in America as many collectors traditionally start their runs at anniversary numbers. #200 sports fine Neal Adams Batman and Robin figures set against a collage cover but the story and artwork (not by Adams) are less than breath-taking and values have stuck in the last year. #234 features the first modern appearance of Two Face as delineated by Neal Adams – amazing to think that such a major character never appeared right throughout the Silver Age. It is, however, an issue that turns up regularly on mart walls. #238 has become sought after as a giant issue with a dark cover that shows all the wear and tear. The 1st Doom Patrol reprint also helps. The 100 pagers from #254 to 261 continue to fly out of dealers boxes though #260 seems way higher in value on the American market. The run from #270 to #290 generally is as hard as ever to find.

Year One and Ten Nights of the Beast continue to drop in value and Death in the Family has dropped quite considerably in demand. There are still a lot of copies in circulation from this period of Batman and unless the fourth film catches fire, supplies should meet demand. Watch out for #181 with the first appearance of Poison Ivy.

One other footnote: Catwoman appearances will continue to be watched with interest as speculators wonder if the Catwoman film (if its ever made!) will do anything like what it did for the Batman character.

BATMAN ANNUAL

Earlier issues elude in high grade. #1 in particular is becoming something of a major key issue, very hard to find in high grade with its darker cover. Lower grades always sell (Batman in various bizarre forms and roles – the Zebra Batman a particular favourite of mine). Try finding any of these issues in shop back issue bins or on the walls.

BATMAN FAMILY

One of the more impossible sets to put together from recent times. Those that want one are continually frustrated. Keep looking. Values are steady in the U.K market and still very reasonable on the U.S. market. The differential between the two is still quite high with "for-dollar-write-pound" prices.

BATMAN: LEGENDS OF THE DARK KNIGHT

One of D.C.'s continued best-sellers. The "Venom" story from #16-20 is a particular favourite making #16 and #17 tough to find in the U.K. The Destroyer story was well received at the time as it crossed into the Batman and Detective titles. The Prey and Gothic storylines from earlier issues continue to be sought after. "Mask" by Bryan Talbot was well received and sold well. #50 with its stunning Brian Bolland cover is still sought after. Other general issues, particularly the earlier issues, have fallen slightly in price from Guide #6.

BATMAN: SWORD OF AZRAEL

This mini-series continues to drop in value in the U.K. with prices almost double in the U.S. The stunning Joe Quesada artwork and covers are probably the only reason why this title does not slide more than it has. Production values on the current Azrael series continue to be high and its recent involvement in the Contagion storyline has brought in new readers.

BATMAN: THE DARK KNIGHT RETURNS

The mini-series that started it all for Batman in 1986. It has reached a point of stasis as a back-issue seller as The Cult did in 1991 (and that is now a relatively poor seller). It was thought at the time that these two series would continue to sky-rocket but only goes to show how dangerous it is to predict prices in the world of comics. Far better to reflect prices in a Guide. The value on #1 has fallen dramatically in the U.K. over the last couple of years. £30-£35 at one time, now about half that at £15. For those that have never read it or are hard-core Marvelites, this is one to pick up and read if only to love it or loathe it.

BATMAN VS. PREDATOR

A reasonable back-issue market has developed for this title but only really worth a mention for its marketing from D.C. and Dark Horse, the script by Dave Gibbons (who continues to grow in stature as a writer) and art by the Kuberts. The Prestige and Standard formats of each number smack a little of the Big Companies Game but nonetheless no harm done to the Batman character. One complaint however was the very dark reproduction in the Prestige Format issues making it difficult to read.

BEST OF DC DIGEST

Worth mentioning as issues of these, let alone sets, just do not turn up. Or if they do they are not in any great shape as their Digest size makes them more difficult to store so they tend to get squeezed into book-shelves or get buried in dealers' boxes. Excellent reading value and some nice early Silver Age reprints. Not everyone's cup of tea owing to their smaller size but a title to watch. By the way, anyone got a #57?

BLACKHAWK

A title much more highly rated in the U.S. market than in the U.K. market. Early issues in high grade are very hard to find in the U.K. though the customer base for them is very small. Sixties issues in low grade sell quite well as do issues around #230. These issues with the Blackhawks as super heroes have achieved something of a cult status for epitomising the era.

BRAVE AND THE BOLD

Another big increase for #28 as it assumes it's rightful place as one of the main D.C. key issues. This sells very well in poor and fair grades just for the sake of having one. #29 and #30 are deservedly recognised as minor key issues. #25 is as rare in the U.K. as it ever was and is impossible to find in any grade (has Brian Bolland still got his? Want it!) Issues before this occasionally appear on mart walls in the U.K. and in spite of great Kubert art, there is little interest in Robin Hood, Viking Prince or Silent Knight. It would take a blood and guts, slice 'em dice 'em mini-series featuring all three of these characters to stir the interest. One of the big movers again is #34, the first Silver Age Hawkman.

1993 NM Price: £510.00
1994 NM Price: £1,050.00
1996 NM Price: £1,200.00

It is very scarce in high grade and delights in a classic Kubert cover. The other Hawkman appearances in #35, #36, #42-44 have risen nicely in value. #54 continues to rise as it is proving hard to find though more research is being done on its scarcity in the U.K. Those other issues from #55 to #59 are also undervalued in many people's opinion. The Neal Adams issues from #79 to #86 have picked up a little in interest. The 100pg issues from #112-117 are always missing from back-issue boxes which must tell you something though later issues from #150 onwards are in plentiful supply apart from #191 which annoys completists

CHALLENGERS OF THE UNKNOWN

Back issues of this title have remained static. Shame. The Swamp Thing appearances in #82-87 again picked up as they are harder to find than ever. And the late reprint issues that ran the early Showcase appearances in all their glory are far cheaper than the originals and sport some nice Joe Kubert covers!

CRISIS ON INFINITE EARTHS

A check-list has been included for those after the cross-over issues It still remains D.C.'s most successful mini series Amazing that there hasn't been a trade paperback version which would be of great benefit to those that missed it first time around. The Zero Hour mini series of 1994 was not exactly regarded by many as "Crisis II" and it remains to see how long it will be before there is a "Crisis III"

DC COMICS SPECIAL

A much under-rated title that put together some nice classic collections for those who don't know a lot about where D.C. is coming from but would like to get a taste Only 29 issues but it covers everything from super-hero to humour, horror to medieval. Reasonable parity of prices between the U.S. and U.K. markets Notable exceptions are the last two issues which are scarce in the U.K.

DEMON

The Kirby series from the 1970s continues to be sought after with price increases in the U.K. market on the early issues Great covers – a fab monster in issue #2 (check it out – Fin Fang Foom's cousin?). The 16 issues are difficult to put together as a run in a hurry. The Lobo cross-overs in the 2nd series are about the only thing worth mentioning, now cancelled.

DETECTIVE COMICS

The 2nd string Batman title has been extended back into the mists of time to #1 and includes of course the classic comics Detective #27-38 that would need a mortgage to buy. There is a small market for the very early issues of this title in the U.K. though copies sold are usually low grade. A small cachet of early issues was discovered in the U.K. about three years ago though some had missing pages. Still interesting is #168 with the first origin of The Joker though he had already been around for a dozen years or so but this issue has fallen back in value Detective #225 saw a very healthy increase in value in the last year – it really is tough to find in high grade with its bright yellow cover and at one time it had been helped by some interest in the Martian Manhunter and his role in Justice League Task Force. That may change slightly with Justice League Task Force rumoured to be cancelled #233 saw a smaller increase though it is thought to be much scarcer

Issues around #235-239 are virtually never seen in the U.K. #327 is fast becoming a minor key issue at around £45 in the U.K #387 is sought after for its cover and reprinting the first Batman appearance in Detective #27 (May 1939). It is regularly missing from collections bought in The Marshall Rogers issues in the #470s picked up slightly with their classic renditions of Batman and particularly the Joker The new Robin appearances in #524, #525 and #535 remain static #599 and #600 fell slightly again as there seem to be a lot of copies hoarded by collectors. #627 with its tribute to #27 remains an attractive issue but in good supply. The conclusion to The Destroyer story proved very popular Covers on issues #654-660 by Sam Kieth have been real eye-catchers but some fans may feel disappointed that such artwork is not carried on once the book is opened

#691's new Spellbinder was quite a hit with some fans, cashing in on the fad for "hot babes"

DOOM PATROL

Fortunes were revived for this title for a time under the Vertigo banner and scripting by Rachel Pollack but back-issue sales seem to have fallen off dramatically as the title was cancelled in early 1995 Back issues from #19 are still reasonably in demand for the stunning Simon Bisley covers and for the Grant Morrison scripts that remain as thought-provoking as ever. The original series has not fared too well with hardly any increases at all in the Good and Fine grades and copies sticking on Mart walls, even at 50% off. Only strict Near Mint copies are in demand Seems that no-one is really that interested in the likes of Arnold Drake's bizarre scripts or Bruno Premiani artwork. #121 continues its something of a cult status book Readers, it's up to you You decide if the Doom Patrol lives or dies. Well, the readers decided alright as that was the last issue! The only real activity has been the trade in Erik Larsen issues (#6-15) of the 2nd series because they remain cheap and they are in plentiful supply

ECLIPSO

His first appearances in House of Secrets are still in demand but more so in the U.S and tough to find in high grade. No interest in his own series.

EIGHTY PAGE GIANT

This series has shown more interest as people realise what excellent reprints are to be found in there at a fraction of the cost of the originals. Having said that, the phenomenal interest in this title in the States keeps forcing up the price. This Guide is reflecting the availability and consequent static nature of prices in Good and Fine grades, but for those that want very high grade copies, reasonable parity of U.S. and U.K. prices comes into play. Of particular interest are #4 with the early Flash reprints, #8 for the origin stories and #14/#15 for their scarcity #7 is still classified as rare in the U.K as it does not seem to turn up in any grade.

FLASH

Still one of the biggest success stories as far as Silver Age D.C. back issues go. All the early issues are in demand in the U.K Flash #105 is proving to be one of the top D.C key issues

1993 NM Price: £1,350.00
1994 NM Price: £1,995.00
1996 NM Price: £2,900

A big jump also for #110, a mere skip #123 and no change in the U.K for #175. The 80pg giants are much in demand for their reprints, indeed all the early issues can be found in reprint somewhere (see the Reprint Index) The 2nd series continues to sell, particularly the later issues with the introduction of Impulse, the Terminal Velocity and Dead Heat storylines and Mark Waid's writing

GREEN LANTERN

#1 sees another healthy increase from £1,400 to £1,950 from Guides #6 to #7 Still very tough to find in unrestored NM Early issues generally have seen healthy increases though #40 still remains a mystery. It is highly regarded in America and priced as such but according to observations and Questionnaires in this country it would be valued at around half current American prices Indeed in the Guide we have priced it at less than half the U.S value #45 has remained static #59 has gone down as has #116 #76 still seems to be undervalued for its historical importance and its package as a very attractive comic book Emerald Dawn I continues to sell but it is proving less successful. The Golden Age Green Lantern market seems very slow in the U.K. This Guide has adopted a parity of pricing between U.S. and U.K. prices though in theory Golden Age issues are harder to get in the U.K and should be more expensive.

HARDWARE

It was erroneously reported in the last U.K. Guide that the Milestone imprint was being cancelled Sorry about that. Hardware, Static and Icon seem to be going strong. Not so good for Xombi, Shadow Cabinet and Blood Syndicate. Doing occasional issues at 99 cents cover price seems to have proved useful for the Milestone group of titles. Time will tell

HAWK AND DOVE

The 1988 mini-series with Image favourite artist Rob Liefeld has seen a drop in price from the last U.K. Guide. No interest

HAWKMAN

Early issues continue to rise steadily in the U.S but that is only reflected in the U.K. in the highest grades on the earliest issues Good and Fine prices have gone down substantially in the U.K as there seems to be a plentiful supply in most comic shops, at marts and on dealers' lists Funny how all grades keep going up in American guides (see Aquaman and Atom!)

HEART THROBS

Mentioning these only as part of the D.C Romance titles which are an under-collected genre in the U.K. Perhaps not to everyones taste but they do have some great story titles, some nice grey tone covers and their rarity drives D.C. completists wild

HECKLER

Always worth mentioning for the Giffin art and the fun read

HELLBLAZER

Always worth a mention as one of D.C.'s fan favourites. Early issues are still in demand though prices in the U.K have dropped slightly from the last Guide. From there on in the prices are static as sets keep turning up from fans cashing in their collections. Garth Ennis successfully took up the reigns of Jamie Delano and kept this title right on track along with Sean Phillips excellent art. There are stories that make you laugh out loud. Excellent. It is seen very much as a companion title to Sandman and collectors of one usually collect the other.

HOUSE OF MYSTERY

There has been a marked swing away from the earlier horror/mystery issues which have fallen in value. They are still hard to find in high grade though and low grade copies are an excellent read #143 has risen in value and healthy rises for #178 and #179. Some lovely moody covers around here

HOUSE OF SECRETS

Very early issues collected for their Jack Kirby art The Eclipso run from #61 to #80 has its collectors. #92 continues to defy best efforts to find it in NM and interest in it has surged as sales have been reported consistently over the psychological £200 barrier

1993 NM Price: £95.00
1994 NM Price: £160.00
1996 NM Price: £250.00

IMPULSE

A fan favourite on both sides of the Atlantic. Supplies seem to be reaching the fairly plentiful in the U.K. as #1 went up to £5.00 and slipped back to about half that. A fun read.

INFINITY INC.

#49 and #50 may be ones to watch with the appearance of Lyta that ties into the modern Sandman title. Otherwise this title is a cheap read and of great interest if you want a taste of Golden Age heroes and their off-spring.

INVISIBLES

Another Vertigo success story and the Britpack show the way in comics yet again. Lots of copies around so go read, though there are reports of scarcity in some areas of the U.K., particularly the West Country

JIMMY OLSEN

Does #1 exist in high grade outside the U.S? A genuinely hard book to find in any grade. A title that appeals to thirty-somethings only these days. Probably true in the U.S. as well. Current collectors have no interest in Superman signal watches (prizes for anyone who can remember the sound it made?) and hoax stories involving kryptonite. Legion collectors pick up Legion appearances, the 80 page giants are as hard to find as in any other title and most interest lies in issues #133-135 with the first appearances of Darkseid

JONAH HEX

This 92 issue series has come on leaps and bounds in the U.K. in the last couple of years. Hard to believe that a #1 can fetch up to £30.00. More Price Guide prizes on offer here – can you find the issue with my (poetic but embarrassing) letter in it?

JUSTICE LEAGUE

#3 test cover has slipped again in interest. Hard to believe that this was once a £100 comic. £20 now if you're lucky. The Justice League family of titles have slipped badly in the past couple of years to the point of Justice League Europe and Justice League Quarterly being cancelled whereas in 1992/3 interest was very high. The alternative Justice League storyline of recent times where they break people's arms and kick in heads got great fan reaction. Recent storylines like Aftershocks, Judgement Day and Way of the Warrior have done their best to involve other characters in cross over opportunities. One hopes for long-range plans of a big re-launch

JUSTICE LEAGUE OF AMERICA

#1 is on the verge of cracking the £2,500 mark and #2 has risen well, having been under-rated before now. As for #3 with its black cover, this issue is notoriously hard to find in any decent shape. Big jump for #9, little jumps for #21 and #22. Issue #39 still in demand with its excellent reprints. Issues from #60-100 are getting scarcer in the U.K., particularly the Neal Adams cover issues in the #80s and #90s. The 100 pagers (#110-116) are always missing from back-issue boxes and #122-150 continue to drive JLA completists mad. Were more than just a few copies of #150 ever printed? This title is a steady back issue seller and gains new fans all the time even if the current Justice League incarnation has varied

KAMANDI

Still an under-rated title in the U.K. It's just not to everyone's taste. Not the easiest of sets to complete but possible as prices remain static. A few shades of Kirby at his Fourth World best

L.E.G.I.O.N.

Lobo's presence used to ensure that this book sold consistently though this seems to be a particularly regional creature – hot seller in some areas of the U.K., distinctly cool in others. Cancelled in late 1994 and back issue sales have suffered accordingly.

LEGION OF SUPER-HEROES

Throughout the history of the Legion of Super-Heroes each incarnation has brought re-vamps and change but there is the feeling that the huge popularity gained by the first 25 issues of the 2nd series in the mid 1980s has never been regained since. The Quiet Darkness storyline towards the end of 1991 did something to improve the ratings. The destruction of the planet Earth went down very well which gave rise to a popular spin-off The Legionnaires – the spirit of the Legion as they first were back in the very early 1960s, all about 14 years old and ready to take on the world. But though this title remains a decent seller, there just does not seem to be the interest in team books that there once was. Back-issue prices in the current Legion series have dropped to a general £1.00/£1.25 mark.

LOBO

Still one of D.C.'s most popular characters. The first mini-series continues to sell but supplies seem adequate for demand. Prices have dropped slightly from Guide #6

Subsequent mini-series have done quite well and Lobo guest appearances in other titles are a useful stand-by to halt flagging sales in lesser titles so that says something of the character's overall status in the D.C. universe. His first appearance in Omega Men #3 still hasn't taken off as any sort of key issue however (no matter how hard Darryl Jones tries!)

LOIS LANE

As with Jimmy Olsen, #1 is very hard to find in high grade though does turn up in the U.K. in lower grades fairly regularly. As with Jimmy Olsen, only a certain section of collectors bother with this title. Stories about Lois tricking Superman into revealing his identity belong to a different era. #70 is still quite big news in America, not so much in the U.K. and that is reflected in the price difference. One or two issues in the early '70s are sought after for Darkseid appearances and the last few issues can be quite scarce in the U.K. for completists.

MISTER MIRACLE

Sadly cancelled in 1991 after only 28 issues. The original Jack Kirby series continues to attract fans keen to collect The Fourth World of Kirby but having no current series to keep the interest going has affected back-issue sales. New Gods, also having been cancelled, interest in the original series from the early 1970s has been less affected and it does remain the most popular Fourth World series

METAL MEN/METAMORPHO

Very static as back issues and reaching the stage of U.K. prices being half that of U.S. values.

MORE FUN COMICS

A monster of a title, many a classic has passed through its numbers. First appearances of the Spectre, Dr. Fate and Aquaman but demand is strictly limited to those that can afford them. Later issues in lower grades are fairly common and worth picking up. The very first few issues are very popular in America but sales are unheard of in the U.K. Will that ever change? About time more American dealers took a chance and came over to the U.K. with some interesting material at realistic prices. They may be pleasantly surprised.

MY GREATEST ADVENTURE

Some lovely covers on early issues. Notable for #80 being the first appearance of Doom Patrol. Hard to find in high grade with its black cover but these Doom Patrol issues are slow sellers and almost non-existent as far as sales go in mid grades

MYSTERY IN SPACE

Much under rated in the U.K. All that lovely Infantino artwork and some lovely covers on issues between #53 and about #90. Issue #75 continues to elude British collectors and #55 with its grey-tone cover is a genuine rarity in the U.K. #53 is sought after but only in lower grades as far as we can tell.

THE NEW TITANS

Like the Legion of Super-Heroes, this is one of those titles that enjoyed a high profile and popularity in the mid 1980s but saw years of decline and final cancellation in early 1996. The New Titans title was helped in 1990 with the Batman/Tim Drake Robin cross-over and again in 1991 with Deathstroke appearances, his relationship with Jericho, a death here and there and a line-up change. The Titans Sell Out storyline was quite well received at the time. Back issues will probably remain static for some time to come

NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR

Unbelievably hard to find but to devoted Golden Age collectors covet these comics like very few others. The Guide can only adopt reasonable parity between U.S. and U.K. values. Theoretically it would be much harder for a U.K. collector to find and buy one of these issues without going to America himself/herself. Very low grade copies would sell in the U.K. with some regularity if they could be supplied. Noted for the only appearance of Superman with blond hair

OMEGA MEN

The first Lobo appearances seem to be very static with little or no change from last year. Seems odd that Lobo is a major character in the D.C. universe and yet his 1st appearance commands nothing like the attention and value that it should. Maybe because it isn't really like the Lobo that the character has evolved into

OUR ARMY AT WAR/OUR FIGHTING FORCES

The war comic genre is generally under-rated in the U.K. which is a shame as there are some lovely grey-tone covers and some great Russ Heath and Joe Kubert art to be sampled. The market on these is very U.S. driven and the U.K. Guide can only reflect the constantly rising prices in the U.S. with a conversion back-to-pounds-less-a-bit. The same can be said for All American Men of War, G.I. Combat and Star Spangled War Stories. Our Army at War #81 is big in the States. I can think of maybe two people over here that would be interested/could afford £1,000 or thereabouts for a Near Mint copy. An example of the difference of the size of markets.

PREACHER

One of the hottest (how I detest that word!) new series around, Preacher has caught everyone by surprise on both sides of the Atlantic. Prices are generally more here in the U.K. but it won't be long before the dollar price goes up and beyond. Well done Garth Ennis and Steve Dillon. Price on #1 about the £7.50 mark at the time of writing.

RAY

Early issues featuring Joe Quesada still sell. Shame he didn't do more of them. The new on going series has yet to set the world alight although the cover of the first issue was impressive.

SANDMAN

What is there to say that hasn't been already? Still D.C.'s most popular series and award winner (worth re-iterating that #19 won an international award for Best Short Story, significantly without there having to be a special category because it's a comic) is still a good read. Some over-criticise in the fan press, some over-intellectualise but it still demonstrates some of the best qualities about comics. The release of the trade paperbacks collecting the first 69 issues (ie. virtually all of them) has proved very popular over the last few years. #8 is still in demand as the first appearance of Death and the variant issue has been recorded as selling consistently in America for over $150 with a few recorded sales in this country at £100. Not sure sure that this will continue as the market for any kind of premium or special variant issue is virtually dead now. The Season of Mists storyline beginning in #21/#22 excited some interest in 1991 while the more recent Game of You and Brief Lives storylines continue the excellence. Issue #69, the conclusion of "The Kindly Ones", is one to watch where Sandman/Morpheus dies. The most recent storyline of "The Wake" has provoked much interest, mainly because the title will be cancelled at issue #75 and I won't have a reason for living.

SECRET ORIGINS ANNUAL

Big book in high grade now. We have kept the prices on Good and Fine grades static as that is probably a true reflection in the U.K. market but the issue is quite hard find in any grade.

SENSATION COMICS

Worth mentioning only because we were so gob-smacked to hear about the phenomenal price rises in the States. Can it really double in price from one year to the next? Is #1 in particular that sought after? Not here in the U.K. And this is our constant problem. The U.K. Guide has to adopt some sort of parity on these issues as someone wishing to buy could reasonably be expected to pay at least the going U.S. rate and probably more without dealers' discounts if you go over to America yourself and with dealers' profit margins if you rely on a U.K. dealer bringing something back for you.

SHADE

Another British affair. This title began with a bang and promptly fizzled out in 1990. 1991 saw a steady improvement and the painted covers by Jamie Hewlett were well received. Improvement continued and steadied with the storyline of Shade the Changing Woman and then the Birth Pains storyline under the Vertigo banner by scripter Garth Ennis so finally people were beginning to pick it up along with their Sandmans and Hellblazers. Interest continued as the title reached its 50th issue but recently it has proved static, so much so that back issue prices on early issues have fallen. Good read though. I'll always champion the reading of comics. There is no interest it seems in the original late 1970s series featuring Steve Ditko artwork. Perhaps because the characters are completely different. Maybe for that reason alone, it is worth picking them up for comparison.

SHOWCASE

The title that requires a mortgage to acquire is rapidly seeing the same steps needed for single issues. It seems a pity that this title is pricing itself out of the reach of almost all collectors on both sides of the Atlantic. There are very few people in the U.K. right now saying to themselves "Right, I'm going to start collecting a set of Showcase". There are probably not many more saying "Well, I'll forget the first 20 or so". Showcase #4 widened the gap with its nearest rivals in the "most valuable" stakes.

1993 NM Price: £6,000.00
1994 NM Price: £9,000.00
1996 NM Price: £17,500.00

There seems to be no stopping this book. Some American guides value it even higher than this fabulous figure. Price variations on this comic are huge. Several high grade issues have sold in America in the last two years at up to $30,000 and one sold for a staggering $29,000 cash alone! One was very recently offered at $50,000 in an auction system of buying. As incredible as all that may seem, a relatively conservative value has been chosen for this British guide but bear in mind that this is one of those comics that genuinely sell for multiples of guide in high grades. Showcase #8 went much the same way.

1993 NM Price: £1,950.00
1994 NM Price: £4,000.00
1996 NM Price: £9750.00

It is very hard to find in Fine or above let alone Very Fine or better. As Showcase #4 rises, this 2nd appearance of Flash must also. #13 and #14 continue to climb (#14 is definitely harder to find). #15 took another jump. Space Ranger may not be a major character (a Space Ranger mini-series is still on its way) but it is a notoriously hard issue to find, particularly with its black cover that usually hides someone's attempts at colour-touching with a felt tip pen. Other issues with significant value increases: #17, #22, #27, #34, #37, #45, #55, #59, #60-#62. And the whole set will put you back about 50 or 60 grand. Bargain. A series crying out for careful reprinting.

Showcase '93 was a nice idea but executed pretty poorly apart from issues #7 and #8. Showcase '94-'96 looked a lot better. Decide for yourself.

SPECTRE

This 3rd series has really caught on with many people. Back issue prices are still very reasonable but supplies of the first few numbers are drying up. The first series has always been popular in the States and has dragged that British market price along with it, not to parity levels but bubbling just under. #1 with its black cover is hard to find in high grade.

STAR TREK: THE NEXT GENERATION

Now that the series is regularly shown on terrestrial and satellite TV in the U.K., the comic book is bound to be a good, consistent seller. Star Trek in general is faring well after the media attention of the 25th anniversary and then the 30th anniversary this year will do no harm whatsoever. There is a healthy back-issue market for all D.C., Marvel and Gold Key Star Trek series though the prices on the early Gold Key series are getting beyond the reach of most U.K. collectors.

STARMAN

The new series is pretty cool. Back issue prices are not high but £2 and £3 are not uncommon for the first couple of issues. Have a read if you are not familiar.

STRANGE ADVENTURES

The Animal Man issues (#180, #184, #190, #195, #201) are well dead. #117 (1st Atomic Knights) seems a more interesting book though its appeal is for the dedicated few. Excellent reading value as quirky sci-fi was one area that D.C. excelled in and didn't always rely on fabulous monsters that threatened the Earth etc. Some nice art by Gil Kane and Carmine Infantino too. The Deadman run from #205 to #216 with Neal Adams art in most has enjoyed a slight price increase at the front end, static city for the rest of the run.

SUPERBOY

Issue #100 was always a biggie in the States and the British equivalent price creeps a bit closer to parity. Silver Age collectors in the U.K. still like #86 and #89 and for my money #147 is a hard comic to find with its new Legion origin story. Interest remains in the increasingly difficult issues #197-#202 (Legion). All the 80pg giants with their value-for-money reprints are hard to find in back-issue boxes. Late Golden Age issues (ie. the first 20 or so) have a minority following but then they don't exactly turn up in cartloads.

SUPER FRIENDS

Something of a cult follows this title. Very cheap (when you can find them) and a must for D.C. completists.

SUPERMAN

The listing starts from #1 to take in some of those early classics. Even though the Golden Age market is relatively small in the U.K., Superman comics always sell, particularly in lower grades. Get a load, if you can, of such classic covers as #14 and #24. Note also undervalued keys like #61 and #76. #100 is as hard to find in any grade as ever. Back-issue sales on the 1960s material is steady: once again the 80pg giants are snapped up and some becoming noticeably scarcer (#193 and #202 for example). Issue #200 is one that doesn't seem to turn up and it is getting on for 30 years old! #233 is an undervalued issue as all Kryptonite is turned to harmless lead. Issues in the 300s and 400s are in good supply but still don't stay long in back issue bins as they are still relatively cheap. As with Action Comics, interest in the Death and Rebirth issues of Superman is steady and sales of the current issues are healthy with storylines such as The Death of Clark Kent and The Trial of Superman. Latest storylines point to a break-up between Superman and Lois Lane. Watch this space.

SWAMP THING

Renewed interest in the first series. Some excellent Bernie Wrightson art and Len Wein scripts. £35 for a Near Mint #1 is not unreasonable. The last five issue of this series are hard to find in the U.K.

WEIRD WESTERN TALES

Jonah Hex appearances in #12 and #13 are especially sought after in the U.K. as is the rest of the series up to #38 before Jonah Hex graduated on to his own series.

WITCHING HOUR

This long-standing mystery title is being picked up in the U.K. for the Wrightson and Neal Adams art in the early issues and are good reading value for money.

WONDER WOMAN

Listing from #1 on the first series to take in some of those early classics though there is hardly any interest in these very early issues in the U.K.

Mid Golden Age issues on low to mid grades do sell however. The Animal Man appearances in #267/268 have long died in interest. War of the Gods, which was centred very much around the second series but to no great acclaim, has did nothing as back issues shortly after the time and still don't. The Brian Bolland covers on recent issues were up to his usual excellent standard. The title enjoyed a new lease of life with artwork by Mike Deodato but sadly his tenure was short-lived. Much was expected of John Byrne taking over the reins but fan reaction has been mixed. Issues #85 and #90 are still in demand.

WORLD'S FINEST

Listing starts at #1 to include the very scarce and rare issues with cardboard covers that obviously hardly ever turn up in great shape. Unfortunately the demand for early issues of this title is quite low in the U.K. and looks set to remain so. The absurdity of the stories remain the chief delight of this title. How else could you team the world's mightiest hero with a mere mortal man (even if it was Batman?). By using a healthy dose of magic and monsters, role reversal and powerlessness. Silver Age issues in general are quite sought after and there is that very tough-to-find late Golden Age/early Silver Age range from about #65-85. The 80pg and 100pg giants seem to be the best sellers along with #198/#199's Superman/Flash race part 3. #71 is still an undervalued issue and under-rated for its historical importance of being the first of regular Superman/Batman stories.

ZERO HOUR

The mini series that removed the 25th and 30th Centuries from D.C. continuity but didn't set the back-issue world alight. #4 is slightly harder to find in the U.K. as the series caught many shops and dealers on the hop. The time-line chart is quite groovy.

Conan the Barbarian #1 – Hailed at the time as a ground-breaking comic book, helping to usher in the Bronze Age of Comics

An Introduction to MARVEL COMICS

MARVEL COMICS (also known as Timely Comics in the 1940s and Atlas Comics in the 1950s) have been published and distributed in America since 1939. Official distribution in the U.K. began in July 1960 although there may have been sporadic trial distribution before this date. The first years of the original Marvel Bullpen fronted by Stan Lee, Jack Kirby, Steve Ditko and Dick Ayers produced Fantastic Four in November 1961, followed by The Incredible Hulk in May 1962 and Spiderman in Amazing Fantasy #15 in August 1962, Sgt. Fury in May 1963, The Mighty Thor in August, The Avengers and The X-Men in September and Daredevil in April 1964. It was an impressive and enduring output.

The Marvel style was very much more dynamic than that of the more well established but by that time somewhat staid-in-some-areas D.C. Their heroes were younger and created a new kind of rapport with their readers. Heroes like the impetuous Human Torch, the misunderstood Hulk and the has trouble with the girls-gets-bullied-at-college Spiderman. The Marvel universe was very much more integrated from the start with characters crossing over into each other's territories and every permutation of team-up. This was very different from the D.C. Universe of more hermetically sealed characters and stories. Also, the use of a tight stable of artists and Stan Lee writing virtually everything made the feel and look of the Marvel Universe more coherent. Marvel very much led the way with the potential of team books like The Avengers, X-Men and Fantastic Four and later The Champions, The Defenders, Alpha Flight, Squadron Supreme, The New Mutants and Power Pack, although ironically, D.C. Comics had the first super-hero team of all in the Justice Society of America. Marvel also gave a kind of value for money by having composite books – The Hulk and Giant Man in Tales to Astonish and Captain America and Iron Man in Tales of Suspense. Perhaps where Marvel scored most of all was with the different kind of intimacy between creators and public. "Smiling" Stan Lee used his editorials and letters pages to add to the Marvel bandwagon and soon True Believers earned their 'No Prizes' for spotting mistakes in stories, enroled in the Merry Marching Marvel Society, became Quite 'Nuff Sayers if their letters got printed and read their own fanzine FOOM (Friends of Ol' Marvel). No wonder Stan Lee was smiling.

In the D.C. manner, Marvel went in for revivals. In Avengers #4, January 1964, Captain America was revived from being frozen in a block of ice, his first appearance since the hey-day of the 1940s and his slide into oblivion in the early 1950s. The Sub-Mariner had also been found wandering about as a down-and-out in the pages of The Fantastic Four and thus the origins of Marvel comics found their way to the forefront of their second age. While team-ups and confrontations abounded with the much heralded punch ups between The Thing and The Hulk, the disadvantage of the Marvel formula was that it became well tried too quickly. When two heroes met it seemed the only way to fight a villain was to fight it out with each other first. Mountains moved, fights became more preposterous and the Marvel style gloried in their majesty. Jack Kirby's four-square style did much to enhance splash-page spectacle in the early to mid 1960s.

Much more so than D.C., Marvel were quick to reprint even relatively recent material in King Size Annuals and anthologies like Marvel Collector's Item Classics and Marvel Tales. British reprints like Fantastic and Terrific and later the Mighty World of Marvel did much to popularize the early Marvel style in the U.K. Reprinting reached its peak in the mid 1970s and one expected to see new titles like Marvel Old Reprints Again and Marvel Marvel Marvel.

More recently, Marvel have reprinted the first 10 or 20 of their main line titles in coffee table format Marvel Masterworks. With such marketing and their zappier in-house style, Marvel have earned their place as the market leaders, virtually uninterrupted, for the last 10 years.

Marvel suffered from a patchy distribution network in this country and it was often easier to get DC comics at the newsagents, particularly in the North and Scotland. In the early part of 1964, however, a dock strike at the major ports of the U.K. meant that for two months, Marvels were strictly limited in distribution and across the whole line cover-dated November and December 1964 these issues are either SCARCE or RARE as noted in this guide (for more information on this, see the Comparison Between the U.S. and U.K. Markets article).

This situation may also have been aggravated by a change over of contracts for distribution. A bold experiment to expand to 52 pages across the range of titles in October and November 1971, lead to a limited distribution as less copies of these thicker issues came over in the regular size packets.

The experiment was a short-lived one. It may be noticed that many of these comics are ink-stained along the edges. This occurred when batches marked for return were splattered with ink, sometimes very heavily. Comics like Conan the Barbarian #11 are extremely hard to find without such staining.

This practice continued well into the 1970s and ink stained comics must be considered damaged by at least a full grade. Another defect peculiar to Marvel comics is that of "Marvel Chipping". Many early Marvels suffer from little chips out of the right hand side of the cover, particularly X-Men #1, Spiderman #2, Hulk #3, and Fantastic Four #4. This can vary from tiny surface cracks to major raggedness. The reason for this is, according to legend, one of the then Editors of the Marvel Bullpen would not invest in a new sharp guillotine machine. When bundles of comics were cut and trimmed in post-production, the top copies were strained under the blunt blade and suffered the chipping damage. Whether this story is true or not, the defect is a serious one and would detract from the value of a comic by at least a full grade if noticeable, 2 full grades at least if the damage is heavy (see the Defects Chart for more information).

In August 1968, there debuted a character that more than any other captured the spirit of the times – The Silver Surfer. With his incredible powers first seen in the pages of the Fantastic Four as the herald of an almighty power called Galactus, his later stranding on Earth, suffering and penance, many believe this to be Stan Lee's personal vision of Jesus Christ, Son of the Father. Appropriately enough, the character returned to preach to a new generation when his adventures were reprinted in a second series of Fantasy Masterpieces beginning in December 1979 and born again under the auspices of Steve Englehart and Marshall Rogers in July 1987.

In October 1970, Marvel introduced Robert E. Howard's Conan the Barbarian under the pencils of Barry Smith. Although nearly cancelled, the character grew to achieve early cult status. The Barbarian was first tried out in April 1970 in Chamber of Darkness #4, an example of Marvel showcasing a character before trying an on-going series which was much more of a D.C. tradition.

The mid to late 1970s were the biggest crisis for Marvel when many of the lesser titles were cancelled like, Amazing Adventures, Astonishing Tales, Skull the Slayer, Doc Savage, Marvel Chillers, Tomb of Darkness and most horror/fantasy reprint titles. This was followed hard on the heels of the collapse of the quarterly Giant Size issues that were introduced in May 1974 in the Fantastic Four title. It was a case of too much too soon as fans had to buy to keep up. Rising paper costs affected all companies including D.C. who also cancelled many new titles like Justice Inc., The Stalker, Kong and Claw, leading to their "Implosion" of 1978. From August 1974 to mid 1980, Marvel comics in this country were denoted by the banner "Marvel All Colour Comics" at the top of the cover instead of "Marvel Comics Group" resulting in a confusion over British reprints. The confusion was added to as Marvel had four different price/number codes on the top left of the cover. The diamond shape with the number on the left and the cents price on the right denotes copies for direct sale/no return to American comic shops. The diamond shape with the cents price on the left pence price on the right and number underneath, denotes copies for direct sale/no return to overseas (i.e U.K.) comic shops. The square shape with the cents price on the left and the number on the right is for the American news-stands and the square shape with pence price right and number left is for overseas and U.K. newsagents. There is no evidence to suggest that any one is a reprint of another. All comics were produced at the same time on the same machine on the same paper. It is possible that the overseas issues were produced towards the end of the print run with the usual substitution of pricing/code plates. This lasted until September 1982 when Marvel then rationalised their systems.

May 1979 saw Daredevil #158 which brought artist and then writer, Frank Miller to the fore. His run on Daredevil until issue #191 and a second stint from #227 to #233 brought new heights and maturity of story and art working as an organic whole. March 1982 saw the first slick format regular comic book Marvel Fanfare whose higher production values and presentation lead to the current trend of D.C.'s New and Deluxe format and Marvel's on-going Epic Line. Marvel took the opportunity to combine the new slick process with reprints to produce in 1983 the Special Editions of Avengers and X-Men, Moon Knight and Micronauts to name but a few. These were high quality reprints and in some ways the pre-cursor to the now ubiquitous and it seems obligatory Trade Paperback. The early Eighties saw an expansion of the mini and maxi series with further permutations of team-ups and spin offs to reach the plethora of X-Men progeny from Kitty Pryde/Wolverine and Iceman to Excalibur and the X-Babies. Coupled with this was the advent of the Direct Sales market which saw the unprecedented sale of 400,000 copies of Dazzler #1 in May 1981 which was bettered still by Marvel Super Heroes Secret Wars in May 1984.

To celebrate their 25th anniversary in 1986, Marvel created a line of titles called New Universe which were all set in a Universe separate from the regular Marvel titles. With the exception of Star Brand and D.P. 7 they were not well received and the line all but disappeared in the first year with only sporadic appearances scheduled for the future Another marketing ploy from Marvel was to produce their top three titles Spiderman, G.I.Joe and the X-Men twice monthly during the summer of 1988, summer being the peak sales period. Thus the cover dates would read "early" or "late" whatever the month.

In the same way that Walt Simonson breathed new life into (what had become a flagging title) Thor #337, Todd McFarlane similarly invigorated the traditionally slow-selling title Hulk, with issue #330 McFarlane's depiction of Spiderman has also proved to be very popular and his recent departure from that title will ensure their collectibility The end of the decade saw the mutant titles like Excalibur, illustrated by British artists Alan Davis and Paul Neary proving to be extremely successful as other recent developments including a new-style Captain America, on going titles for Wolverine and She-Hulk, constant line-up changes for the Avengers and the Fantastic Four and the return of the anthology title with Solo Avengers and Marvel Comics Presents. Spectacular Spiderman #158 had Spiderman acquired "cosmic powers" from another Marvel character Captain Universe which met with much fan interest and the fact that The Punisher Wolverine and Sabretooth, three of Marvel's ostensibly most violent characters also proving to be the most popular, is an interesting indicator of fashion particularly with Sabretooth meeting a suitably bloody demise most recently.

Probably the appeal of Marvel comics has always been their intricate continuity and it is probably because of this that they have dominated the recent back-issue market for so many years. The inter-locking structure of the main group of titles, the proven loyalty of Marvel readers and the company's traditional alacrity to take advantage of current buying trends are all indications of Marvel's strong customer-base, there seems no reason to believe that Marvel back issue sales shouldn't continue to make up a healthy percentage of every dealer's business though this may fluctuate from time to time Big sellers in the cross story stakes have been Lifeform, Atlantis Attacks, Acts of Vengeance, Inferno and Spidey's Totally Tiny Adventure all of which are detailed in the Guide. Another was the very popular X-Tinction Agenda storyline sought to resolve some of the loose plot threads and unnecessary complications that had built up in the X-Men and other mutant titles over the last two years. The arrival of artist Jim Lee has consolidated the X Men's position as the biggest selling monthly comic

The biggest selling individual comic of 1990 was the phenomenon of the latest Spiderman series from writer/artist Todd McFarlane The first issue in its many variations sold over 2.5 million copies with a special Platinum version of 10 000 copies for retailers only. At best it is a carefully executed marketing ploy and at worst it is a speculator's nightmare. A printing error made an unspecified number of the first edition have a blue instead of green Lizard character on three pages Isolated copies sold at premium prices all over the U.K. at the time. Printing mistakes have happened throughout comics history but a special importance has been attached to this particular issue. Collectors have been told that others may exist in their sealed bags but to open one in the hope of a gold mine reduces the value of that sealed bag copy. Collectors have been told that these bags may not be acid-free and in an air-sealed environment the comic may deteriorate faster than a regular unbagged copy Little mention is made of story content and art as the debate raged. While individuals are free to choose how much value and importance they place on this particular comic, the overall situation saw the uglier side of the industry come to the fore

As 1991 developed, Marvel continued to consolidate their market-share lead with the promotion of the new Ghost Rider appearing in just about every other title, the new intelligent green Hulk with fine draughtsmanship by Dale Keown to match, a new detailed origin for Wolverine in a 13 part serial called "Weapon X", the New Mutants disbanding to form "X-Force" later on in the year, which itself became a record in volume sales. The new X-Men title was launched in 5 cover variations and a staggering 8 million copies printed. Speculators who stocked up with case-fulls for a rainy day may have a long time to wait. Through this extended marketing push Marvel gained an unprecedented 68% share of the market towards the latter half of 1991 No wonder Marvel's Editor-in-Chief Tom DeFalco claimed that 1991 was The Year of the Mutant

In the last few years, Marvel have seen their fortunes rise to the dizzy heights of an unprecedented 68% market share followed by a falling off in sales in the face of the up and coming Independent companies Image and Valiant

Marvel had much to celebrate and use to their advantage with 30th anniversaries being achieved by all of their major characters who started in the years 1961–1963. The X-Men was perhaps the most widely publicised and marketed milestone. Where Marvel experienced some back-lash however has been in the realm of "gimmick" covers There was a time when if a title reaches double figures it's a cause for celebration and so the answer was to slap a foil cover on it. Or a holografix one or an embossed one or a hologram one or a mirror finish one. As these are more expensive to produce so they cost more to the collector who has to let lesser titles go by the by as money can only stretch so far. The situation was not helped by Marvel's compulsive drive to produce as many new titles as they possibly can making it a nightmare for retailers who order blind three months ahead and fans who face the dilemma of missing certain regular titles to pick up the specials and the mini-series

Marvel launched their 2099 Universe in 1992 with Doom, Spiderman, Punisher and Ravage and contrary to popular expectation, it wasn't another New Universe. But sales on the entire line have continued to slip with Ravage 2099 being the worst Whereas once Marvel were credited as "The House of Ideas' it now seems that they observe more from the sidelines to see what DC will do next, learn from any mistakes and then bring out their own version. A good example of this would be DC's Death of Superman storyline followed more recently by Marvel's plans to kill off Mr Fantastic of the Fantastic Four. Or not Mr Fantastic and Dr. Doom duly returned. 1994 saw the demise of Marvel UK which many found sad but others rejoiced. A case of too much similar product was blamed

In recent times, Marvel have sought to catch fan attention with The Age of Apocalypse storyline where all the X-titles were put on hiatus for new titles to appear – a nightmare for anyone writing Price Guides Fans were mixed in their reaction to the news that Peter Parker as Spiderman has in fact been a clone for the last five years and the real Spiderman is in fact Ben Reilly Only a matter of time to see how long that lasts.

The last year or so has seen a major upheavals for Marvel Comics In a bid to make the company more profitable and to please their shareholders, major characters are being farmed out on license to other companies like Image. Marvel also went into direct distribution of their product through Heroes World, Marvel acquired Malibu Comics and their Ultraverse characters and many creative staff were lost in a reorganisation and streamlining Time will tell as to how solid Marvel's creativity is and what they can do to dominate as they did so strongly at the start of the decade.

MARVEL COMICS MARKET REPORT

This Market Report for Marvel comics examines the last twelve months or so of activity, looking particularly at value trends and reasons for increased or decreased collector interest It is very generalized and as such, regional variations should be taken into account. This is also purely a comparison with Guide #6 prices by way of on-going information. For titles and comics not mentioned one may assume relatively stable values and collector interest not significantly differing from last time. See the Market Reports from selected dealers around the country for more information.

AKIRA

Still a title in demand but not helped by the uncertainty of the publication of the last few issues – interest is easily lost on a title if there is a sudden and extended delay in the shipping of issues And these last issues are expensive at a $6 95 cover price Early numbers still hold their values and the series as a whole has only dropped marginally. Not as popular in the U.K. as it used to be.

ALPHA FLIGHT

Even though the series finished in March 1994 it is still a stable title with issues across the board having dropped by about 20%. Issue #51 (1st Jim Lee) has some demand but has dropped in value Issue #106 having been hyped as the first homosexuality in comics (unbelievably – goes to show how hermetically sealed comics can occasionally be from real life and current concerns) has now dropped from a high in the U.K. of about £5.00 to half that

AMAZING FANTASY

It's been on then off, off and on again. News of director Jim "Terminator" Cameron's live-action Spiderman film has experienced about four and a half years of frustration and rumour but seems to have done nothing to dampen the enthusiasm of fans and collectors for this title. The first appearance of arguably Marvel's most famous character has once again gained incredibly in value, thanks largely to the hype in the States of the White Mountain copy selling for $39,100 (or 26 grand in real money!) a little while ago. There is a noticeably good supply of Amazing Fantasy #15's around in the U.K. but very few in very high grade and even fewer in an unrestored state. Beware heavy browning pages, even if the exterior looks glossy. A common fault. Must be something to do with the original paper composition. Beware also copies with amateur brown felt tip touching in around the top of the cover.

1993 NM Price: £4,250.00
1994 NM Price: £8,100.00
1996 NM Price: £14,000.00

U.S. dealers and collectors should take note of the fact that pence copies of this comic are exactly the same as the cents copy version apart from printed cover price and the cover month being removed. It could be regarded as a rare cover variant!

AMAZING SPIDERMAN

Listing Spiderman under "Amazing Spiderman" for the first time. Grudgingly. After all, why not "M" for Mighty Thor? I bow to our American cousins on this one.

McFarlane Mania isn't what it used to be on issues #298–#315. Prices in the U.K. have generally dropped on these. #300 in particular has established itself as a minor key book but with a big difference in prices between the dollar and the pound. Carnage and Venom appearances continue to be in some demand but not quite at the pitch they were.

The general consensus of opinion seems to be that this Spiderman-clone-thing has made the title into a kind of X Men at its most complicated and there are reports of fans dropping the title in droves. Time will tell. The fact remains that should the Spiderman film ever get off the ground, the general audience are going to be more familiar with Peter Parker and the traditional costume, very valuable from a merchandising point of view. There will certainly be a conclusion to the clone saga

The Spiderman 2nd Series continues with healthy sales. The various permutations of issue #1, bagged and un-bagged, signed and unsigned, continue to sell but as they were produced in such vast quantities and as collectors bought and saved multiple copies, long term investment value is very long term indeed. The phenomenon of the Platinum Spiderman edition seems to be dying a death (remember the Dark Knight Returns Signed/Limited Edition in 1986 selling for £700 at one point and today can be picked up for around £150–200). All those who want copies have got copies and one more often sees a copy held up for auction with proceeds going to charitable causes which is no bad thing. All this is not to say that the Platinum Spiderman is worthless, it has settled on an average price at the moment and may see some movement if Spiderman hype surrounds a new film. But rather than play the predictive game, better to enjoy the comic as a high production value package of a very successful comic. The only other Spiderman variant worth mentioning is the "Blue Lizard" phenomenon of 1990 (an unknown quantity of the silver ink/black cover editions of #1 which had a blue rather than green coloured Lizard character in a number of panels) which waned rather in 1992 and 1993 and though copies still change hands today at whatever the purchaser is prepared to pay should he or she so desire one, there is still no firm proof as to exact numbers of this comic that is essentially a printing error (and how many of those have there been throughout comics' history?)

Amazing Spiderman back-issues of great interest are those from #100–#150 or so. Some very tough issues to find and some important changes for the Spiderman character though some of these issues are prone to volatile changes. #101 and #102 are prime examples of a once hot character (Morbius) peaking and now remaining static, even if they are difficult to find in high grade. #129 was very static for a time but there are signs of a pick up. There seem to be a lot of copies around but not many in strict NM. Many copies have a few millimetres of white area on the left of cover ("white spine") where the copy has been mis cut slightly. Perfectly square-cut covers are difficult to find. The U.K Guide remains cautious on this comic showing only a slight increase and still under the U.S. equivalent price. #149 sky-rocketed but now seems to have settled down at the £50.00 mark in the U.K. Hobgoblin appearances seem to be big news in American price guides but not in the U.K. #238 at $85 in the States translates to around £56—no way!

ASTONISHING TALES

As little a while ago as 1992 it was all Deathlok and Astonishing Tales #25. It still seems to be such a case over in America with their Guides, if not going crazy on the price, values are still holding. But over here, Deathlok may as well be dead. Copies just do not seem to be shifting. Copies are in plentiful supply, particularly in lower grades. Perhaps yet another mini-series is needed to kick-start this title. Or not

AVENGERS

As 1993 was the 30th anniversary year of The Avengers, there was a welcome and now continued turn-around in the fortunes of this title, against the then general backlash towards team books. #360s bronze-foil cover was a real eye-catcher. #1 has now reached £1,450 though this is still fairly low relative to the other Marvel #1s as high grade copies of Avengers #1 are surprisingly common in both the U.S. and the U.K. Issues #3 and #5 with their darker covers have become increasingly harder to obtain in higher grades. There's new interest in #57/58 and #93 is still in demand and harder than ever to find without any label damage in the top left hand corner. #183, #204 and #205 seem noticeably scarcer in the general circulation in the U.K. Recent storylines involving teaming with Ultraforce have kept this title on track rather than set it ablaze

BEAVIS & BUTT-HEAD

A palpable hit, owing much to its screening on late night satellite TV in the U.K. Find the first issue if you can. U.K. prices are keeping up with U.S. prices and #1 would see around £3.00. However most recently there has been a noticeable decline in the popularity of humour comics in some areas of the U.K.

CAPTAIN AMERICA

After a fairly stable couple of years for the good Captain though there was much interest in the Operation Rebirth story courtesy of that man Mark Waid (see Impulse in the DC Market Report). #100 has seen a slight drop in value – very common in lower grades and while an absolute top grade copy is hard to find, high grade copies do seem to turn up in the U.K. #117 is still a tough issue to find too – very annoying for completists one would imagine. The Mike Zeck and Ron Lim issues continue to be reasonably sought after. #241 has slumped from £20.00 in the last U.K. Guide to £14.00 in this one. The Golden Age title has something of a following here in the U.K. but the days of owning a Good copy of even the cheapest issue of the run for under £50.00 may be over. If you can find the slipcase set of Captain America The Classic Years that reprints issues #1–10, grab it and enjoy

CAPTAIN MARVEL

No longer regarded as one of those seemingly junk titles from the 1970s with gains in U.K. Guide #6, still attractive as a run, not impossible to put together at 62 issues but increasingly harder. Interest in this title is mixed however, and that is reflected in the static nature of #1 and yet price rises on some earlier issues which do not seem to be around. The 2nd appearance of Thanos in #26 and indeed the other Starlin art issues have seen slight drops or no change. Time will tell what effect the new Captain Marvel series will have

CONAN THE BARBARIAN

It was sad enough to see this title cancelled after nearly 24 years in 1993. A re-launch as Conan the Adventurer stuttered to a halt after 14 issues. Another re-launch as Conan in August 1995 and guess what, another cancellation. In this age of hi-tech mutants, maybe barbarians have had their day. Early issues still sell well and for #1 in top shape, a price of £200 has not been unknown in the U.K

DAREDEVIL

Still one of the most undervalued titles of the early Marvel out-put. People forget that #1 only came out 7 months after X-Men #1; 1964 is over 30 years ago! Daredevil #1 in NM is very hard to find. The cover should be pure white and not the off-white/yellowing that often occurs

1994 NM Price: £1,200.00
1996 NM Price: £1,400.00

Other early issues of note: #4 which still maintains its "rare in the U.K." status though copies do seem to be surfacing at marts so status will be monitored, #7 (still hard to find in high grade with that dark blue cover), #81 and particularly #82 definitely very scarce in the U.K. (particularly in high grade), the Miller issues from #158 showing a slight decrease for #158 and no change for the rest of the run. #227–#230 have had similar slight decreases and the first appearance of Typhoid Mary in #254 is static. #257 has dropped considerably (as has its counter-part Punisher #10). #319 was the shot in the arm that the title needed at the time and this issue peaked in the U.K. at about £10.00 but has slipped back to the £5.00 to £7.50 mark. That whole story arc has dropped slightly as supply seems to have met demand. Recent celebrations surrounding the 350th issue suggest that the title is quite strong

DARKHAWK

One of the genuine surprises of 1992/93, this title has crashed. While issues #1–5 are generally not around in either the U.K. or the U.S., everyone who wants them seems to have them. Issue #1 was at £6.00 in U.K. Guide #6 and now struggles to £1.50. Now that the series has been cancelled, back issue sales will be affected to the point of this title appearing more and more in the 50p bins at marts

DEFENDERS

With issue #1 nearly 25 years old (is it possible?) and with those appearances of the Silver Surfer in the early numbers, this title has maintained interest. The Thor vs. Hulk #10 is a genuinely very scarce book in the U.K. and continues to defy many collections though the price seems to have reached a peak. Either that or there are so few sales that information is hard to come by. The Guardians of the Galaxy appearances that were once snapped up along with Son of Satan appearances between #92 and #109 in times past are no longer. Giant Size issues are static. The return of The (Secret) Defenders promised much but failed to deliver. The title was cancelled in March 1995

DOCTOR STRANGE

Steady increases on the first series but they do tend to turn up in the U.K. in high grade quite frequently. The title value for the second series has risen by all of a pound so that must say something. Prices on the early issues of the third series have dropped though his new "hippie" look at issue #76 went down well with a lot of fans. Recent scripts by Warren Ellis and J.M. DeMatteis have kept this title alive.

DOCTOR WHO

With renewed interest in the character and a highly collectible series (of reprints admittedly) that are 10 years old, watch this space...

EPIC ILLUSTRATED

While there have been no price increases on this title, it is one to watch out for. A highly collectible set with some great art (Paul Gulacy, Neal Adams, John Bolton, Barry Windsor-Smith, John Byrne etc.) and some great stories (featuring Silver Surfer, Galactus and Dreadstar etc.). Good reading value if you can find them at marts and conventions. Forget the gimmicks. Forget the fads and fashions. Read!

EXCALIBUR

The title has dropped in value generally by about 10% pointing to a plentiful supply of issues in the U.K. marketplace. Mutant Genesis issues are still popular but no change in prices.

FANTASTIC FOUR

Big increases on early issues thanks to ever-spiralling rises in American guides

1994 NM Price: £6,200.00
1996 NM Price: £9,000.00

Having said that it will be noticed that prices on Good and Fine issues have been kept static as this is a true reflection of the U.K. marketplace. Average grades are just not selling at the moment. How long this trend will last is hard to say. People seem to snap up very low grade copies to complete their runs and one or two who can afford it are prepared to pay for top quality. F.F. #48 is not unknown at $1,000 in the States. The rise in price by £100 from Guide #6 values has taken this reluctantly into account but the ceiling on this issue in the U.K. must have been reached. As far as other earlier issues go, there is less interest in #66 and #67 as the first appearances of "Him", later Warlock, though it's still hard to believe that people will pay such big money for basically a non-appearance. This is purely as a result of hype in America and too much regarding of America price guides. One hopes that fans and collectors will get wise to this. The U.K. Guide has had to follow U.S. prices to a certain extent but refuses to consider parity. If you want a Near Mint cents copy of these issues, be prepared to pay silly money. #80 seems finally to have lost its traditional rare/scarce status in the U.K. – so many have been brought over to this country from the States by dealers that it generally shows up in collections now. #100 is still as hard as ever to find for those completists and though dollar prices seem to keep rising, even less-than-dollar/pound-translation forty pounds for this issue does seem a lot of money. The John Byrne issues (ranging between #209 and #293) are picking up in sales again after a lull. Current storylines are as complex as ever. Reed Richards and Dr. Doom are back (surprise, surprise!) and love triangles abound. More soap-opera than ever before, fans just may tire of increasingly higher percentages of issues being taken up with flashbacks, re-caps and the-story-so-far stuff

FEAR, ADVENTURE INTO

One of the biggest 1970s titles of recent times with the Morbius appearances has plummeted in interest in the last 12 months. While #20 is genuinely hard to find in high grade on both sides of the Atlantic with its black-bordered cover, even in the States the price has dropped from around $50 to about half that

1993 NM Price: £10.00
1994 NM Price: £15.00
1996 NM Price: £12.00

The problem in the U.K. is that lots of copies turn up with some sort of inking stains on them, usually along the top edge in blue. All part of the same batch marked for return all those years ago. So one could expect to pay more than the Guide price stated for a genuinely Near Mint copy, especially as only cents copies are available. A decent read but forget words like "investment" or "speculation"

FRANKENSTEIN

Completely static both in the U.S. and U.K. However, the Mike Ploog art captures the mood of the subject quite well and there is something of a collectors' challenge to put a set together

GHOST RIDER (1970s)

Prices on the early issues have come down in the U.K. though #1 is still quite hard to find in top grades. Formerly one of the hottest of the '70s Marvel series that everyone wanted to collect. The current series initially did much to hype its predecessor and elevated it to a status it perhaps didn't deserve. This was borne out by the fact that people begun to realise that the two Ghost Rider characters were different and separate and sales did begin to wane. Interest was temporarily renewed thanks largely to a few obscure panels showing Daimon Hellstrom (otherwise Son of Satan) getting dressed! But now that even the Son of Satan has cooled as a character, these first few issues have little to commend them to back-issue collectors. As ever, the genuine scarcity of the last few issues (#72 81 in particular) when the title was on its last legs makes this a difficult set to complete and may sustain collector interest.

GHOST RIDER (NEW)

Big drop in value on issue #1 on both sides of the Atlantic. The early issues have almost halved in value from the last U.K. Guide. The status as one of, if not the, hottest Marvel characters around at one time experienced a distinct resurgence of interest with the Rise of the Midnight Sons storyline, #28 being particularly in demand. The inclusion of other magic/horror-related characters like Morbius and Dr. Strange helped the situation. But this resurgence of interest was not sustained. The 20th anniversary issue #25 with its pop-up centre-spread is more or less back to cover price. The recent inclusion of guest-stars like Gambit has helped keep the title alive. The future looks uncertain

GROO

Early issues of this title are always in demand with #1 at a very healthy £12.50. Prices of back-issues in the U.K. are slightly static as they rose so fast in the last two or three years. Great read. Sad to see the character finally cancelled after all these years

GUARDIANS OF THE GALAXY

Early issues of this title are generally not around in the U.K. and some very great price variations have been noticed at comic marts. Prices on early issues have slipped and there is no interest in issues #17–19 as there once was. Now that the title has been cancelled it would seem that back-issue sales are going to slip further as fan interest wanes

HULK, THE INCREDIBLE

Prices on the first series are getting well out of most people's reach on both sides of the Atlantic, particularly looking at American guides (but we don't do that, do we?). The all Steve Dikto issue #6 is edging towards a £1,000 comic in the U.K. but if one does a direct translation from the American guides, one would be looking at over £1 250! Is this book so superior to #3, #4 and #5? The time has come now that these issues are lovely to look at but are difficult to sell now that they all top the £500.00 mark. Delighted to be proved wrong, however. Renewed interest in #181 as it doesn't seem to be around in NM shape. Even so the U.K. Guide strikes a note of caution by being under the American equivalent. The 30th anniversary issue #393 still sells well and the 2nd print grey cover seems to be harder to find in some areas of the U.K. #400 sported a dazzling holo-grafix cover and the great Dale Keown passed on from the book. Britain's own Gary Frank took on the unenviable task of following in his foot-steps but with Peter David scripts of a consistently high standard, this comic is still a firm fan favourite. Shame that it seems destined for cancellation/renewal in another guise under Marvel's plans for the future. Wait and see. A valuable Marvel asset won't be wasted

INVADERS

Healthy increases in price for this title. Always quite highly valued in America, sets of these do not often turn up in the U.K. as #1, #2 and #41 are getting harder to find

IRON FIST

As we all know it's a highly attractive 1970s set with only 15 issues, all Byrne art and all Non-Distributed in the U.K. Though issues have been brought over by dealers over the years it is still not the easiest set to complete, some claiming that #2 is impossible to find. #14 and the first appearance of Sabretooth was the Marvel back issue for the greater part of the last three years. It is still tough to find in Very Fine+ or better

1994 NM Price: £50.00

IRON MAN

30th anniversary time for this character in 1993 and with Tony Stark being cryogenically frozen and brought back to life, with zappy new armour and Iron Man's struggles with The Avengers, it's been no more than a decent couple of years for old Tin Head but nothing special, indeed stagnant in some U.K. areas. Fans and collectors often talk about how great Armour Wars was but what about the 200 or so issues before that? Tons to look at with many odd issues to look out for. #101 with Frankenstein is often over-looked, a Thanos appearance in #88. Tony Stark's alcohol struggle in #123-128, the great Barry Smith origin issue #47, some Jim Starlin art John Romita Jnr's 1st work, all fab stuff. Demand for the fabled issue #55 has slackened off to the point of itself being cryogenically frozen.

1994 NM Price: £40.00
1996 NM Price: £30.00

There is slightly more demand for the 20 cents version (rather than the British 6p one) but it is nowhere near the key issue it used to be.

JOURNEY INTO MYSTERY

A mention for back issues of this late, great title. Catch Jack (still The King) Kirby at his quintessential best from #100–125. And issues #83 to #99 are not easy to come by in high grade, especially #84 with its dark brown cover. #112 is becoming a tough one to find but the size of the market after it is equally tough to estimate.

LUKE CAGE

The first 16 issues of this 1970's title are still hard to find being Non Distributed in the U.K. and #1 with its black-border cover is still very hard to find in anything approaching high grade Historically an interesting title as one of the major black superheroes (not too many of those around). Note that prices are unchanged frrom the last U.K. Guide reflecting its static status

MARVEL COMICS

A mention for this Golden Age title if only to say that U.K. prices have to be calculated on the basis of U.S. guide values. The market in the U.K. for this title is small but could grow if more lower grade copies were brought over for people to try.

MARVEL CLASSICS COMICS

A mention for this much underrated set. Great reading for those who haven't tunnelled through several feet of college and university reading lists (I remember having to "do Dickens in a week"!) Issues #9 and #20 have decent Dracula and Frankenstein adaptations and a complete set is hard to come by.

MARVEL PREMIERE

One of the most attractive sets to collect for character and artist variation. #1 and #2 have Warlock-as superhero for the first time, #3 sees the start of the Dr Strange run by Barry Smith and Frank Brunner, #15 has the first Iron Fist (continuing to rise in value) and later issues have a variety of characters (Ant-Man, Man-Wolf) and a variety of artists (Chaykin, Byrne, Perez). Many issues are Non Distributed in the U.K. which makes collecting all 61 not the easiest task in the world. Keep an eye on #57-60, the Doctor Who issues.

MARVEL SPOTLIGHT

This title is very similar to Marvel Premiere as it introduced Werewolf By Night in #2, Ghost Rider in #5 (increasingly hard to find in top shape with its black cover) and a wide variety of characters in later issues (Son of Satan, Spiderwoman, Deathlok, Moon Knight, Sub-Mariner). The Ghost Rider run from #5 to #11 is hard to find without ink-staining along one or more edges. Prices are generally static and in one or two instances, issue #12 for example, have halved in value. Some good reading value here though.

MARVEL TALES

A series that represents remarkably good value as far as classic reprints go (and the same also applies to Marvel Collectors Item Classics). #1 may be beyond many people's pockets but later issues, particularly in low grade, provide the opportunity to read the very early issues of Spiderman, Fantastic Four, Tales to Astonish and Journey Into Mystery. Issues in the 100's reprint many classics like Spiderman #1 and Amazing Fantasy #15 and issues in the 200's reprint many 70's classics like Marvel Team Up #4. Some new covers by Todd McFarlane make for attractive packaging This series deserves more attention, particularly as prices have fallen slightly so now's the time to buy

MARVEL TEAM UP

With early issues now reaching nearly 25 years old, this series is coming into its own more and more. The first 23 issues are Non Distributed in the U.K. and feature most main Marvel characters teaming with Spiderman. They are all becoming harder to find in NM. Later issues with John Byrne art are still asked for and the greater part of the series is in enough supply to be very affordable and thus collectible #1 with its black-border cover is notoriously hard to find in very high grade

1993 NM Price: £35.00
1994 NM Price: £45.00
1996 NM Price: £50.00

Issue #150 has come down in price in the U K

MARVELS

Hailed as the best mini-series that Marvel (or perhaps anyone) has ever produced. A cracking read. A short-term gold mine but issues are in plentiful supply so don't over-pay. £4-£5 for #1. Plans are afoot for Marvels II Can't wait

MOON KNIGHT

Prices on the Stephen Platt issues are steady in both the U.S and U.K Not much interest in other Moon Knight back issues as the last series was cancelled in early 1994

MS. MARVEL

Worth mentioning for issue #18. £1 50 in the U.K., $12.50 in the U.S Go Figure..

NAMOR

The label of "hot" artist is becoming increasingly more volatile Jae Lee is not held in as high regard as of yore and consequently #26 has taken another tumble from £4 to £3. Cross-overs with Fantastic Four recently have helped as long time fans remember the attraction between Namor and Sue Richards (Invisible Woman). Prices on early issues are also down

NEW MUTANTS

A title that was all the rage at the start of the '90s but now seems to have died somewhere along the line. Interest in #87 is very low now)

1993 NM Price: £25.00
1994 NM Price: £15.00
1996 NM Price: £7.50

Issues in the 90s seem to be steady in demand with 1st appearances of Deadpool and Feral and the 1st print of #100 is still popular but the title as a whole has lost about 15%

NEW WARRIORS

Launched in 1990 this title was initially under-ordered by dealers, gained a fan-following after a year or so and thus early issues went up in value This trend has now reversed with #1 slipping down from a U.K. Guide #6 value of £12.50 to £7.50. Recent storylines involving the Scarlet Spider have helped this title but time will tell

NICK FURY

Brave of Marvel to kill off a character that's been around for over 30 years. It will be interesting to see what effect that will have on back issues of all Fury's various series. Probably negative.

NOVA

A title that did little to excite when it appeared from 1976 to 1979 but at only 25 issues and fuelled by the success of his appearances in New Warriors this became an attractive title in the early 1990s. Completists have been known to go mad trying to find that elusive last issue which has been given a "very scarce in the U.K." status pending more information. The new on-going series started well with a (yet another!) gimmick cover. Prices have fallen ever so slightly on the first series.

POWERMAN

The Luke Cage – Hero for Hire title quickly metamorphosed into Powerman added Iron Fist and has now produced a title of some collector interest. This was also helped by the appearances of Sabretooth in issues #66, #78 and #84. The appearance in #78 is, though highly suspect, most probably Sabretooth For those that don't know/don't care (delete where applicable), there is one panel that shows a claw like Sabretooth's appearing from under a cloak and otherwise the mystery character wears a sack over his head There is no mention by the name of Sabretooth but rather as "The Slasher". Prices are static. The last few issues of the run are the hardest to find and a completists nightmare though again prices are static

PUNISHER

This once the hottest of all Marvel characters experienced an all-time low in 1995 when the long-running title was cancelled. Demand for the first series of 5 issues has slackened off to the point where the title value is about half the U.K. Guide #6 listing. The character achieved some notoriety by killing off Nick Fury and has been re-launched once more. Time will tell

REN & STIMPY

Like Beavis & Butt Head, a cult favourite cartoon. Issue #1 has risen from £7.50 in U.K. Guide #6 to £12 50 now. All early issues are up and as long as the series continues and fan interest remains, prepare for more price rises

SGT. FURY

Worth a mention to say that early issues are not around and #1 is rarely offered for sale in the U K. It's a Marvel #1 that always gets over-looked. Surprising to think that it came out before Daredevil! A Near Mint #1 still seems very reasonable at £450 but the size of the market in the U K. that wants one must be taken into consideration. U.S. prices seem to value this key issue more at around $800 or £533 at a rough conversion

SILVER SURFER

As much a cult character as ever he was, the Silver Surfer continued to enjoy much success in the early 1990s. The first series remains much in demand, helped by the publication of the excellent Marvel Masterworks edition of reprinting #1–18. A pleasure to read. #4 over-took #1 in value for its rarity status around 1993 but now the situation has reversed and #1 has assumed precedence over #4 in importance and value. The John Byrne one-shot series remains in high demand though there are copies about in the U.K so prices have remained largely unchanged. Surprisingly the Moebius two-issue mini-series has dropped in value. Also watch out for the one-shot graphic novel The Ultimate Cosmic Experience An all-new Stan Lee/Jack Kirby book which is very hard to find, let alone in high grade. £100 00 has been seen at recent marts. It has been noted that a number of mis-print copies came over to this country in varying degrees of the silver foil flaking off. Most look rather ugly and soiled but ones that have a pure-white Surfer and logo look very attractive indeed and the few that have sold have gone for a wide variety of prices. It remains to be seen how many there are of this curious mis-print and indeed how to judge an accurate market value in the U.K U.S. price guides make no mention of it.

SPIDEY SUPER STORIES

One to watch, I kid you not Not around, a set is impossible and some interesting villains appear to appeal to completists. And cheap

STAR WARS

Definitely a title to watch. News abounds at the possible start date of filming the next trilogy and this under-rated title has some nice Simonson art with the last few issues becoming increasingly hard to find Issue #107 (the last) is a monster of a comic to find in the U.K. and a £20.00 price tag takes some getting used to if you were lucky enough to pick it up at cover price when it came out

STRANGE TALES

Issues to watch as ever are #114, #115 and #135 #135 does not seem to be around in NM and the recent death of Nick Fury may add to its appeal The Warlock issues #178–181 are static in value as they seem to be around in the U.K. in plentiful supply

TALES OF SUSPENSE

Issues between #57 and #66 continue to grow in desirability and are genuinely hard to find in top grades. Price rises are slight however as the market in the U.K. for these sorts of books seems to be shrinking for the time being. As a general rule of thumb in the U.K. market, later issues of Tales of Suspense do not turn up in higher grades any more whereas comparative issues of Tales to Astonish do. Prices are generally static though. #39 is in demand but very common in lower grades. True NM copies are impossible to find but demand in the U.K. seems to be low. Pre super-hero issues are not often offered for sale which is a pity as there is some lovely artwork and great covers. Low grade copies would sell well in the U.K. if some enterprising dealer from the States brought them over

TALES TO ASTONISH

Just as with Strange Tales #101 and #110, Astonish #35 is more sought after than #27 The first Ant Man in costume is deemed more important than a man-in-an-ant-hill fantasy type story though #27 remains the hardest early Marvel key issue to get in very high grade with Hulk #1 a close second. Astonish #57 is much sought after on both sides of the Atlantic as an early Spiderman appearance (1964), there's some interest in #59 as a battle issue, #60 as hard-to-find-in-high-grade and #61 as the first Ditko Hulk since Hulk #6 back in March 1963. Issues #92 and #93 are must-haves for all Silver Surfer fans being his 4th and 5th appearances. As commented above, later issues of this title do seem to turn up in higher grades and are very common in lower grades in the U.K.

THOR

Another better year for this title than recent times with the short run from #491–#494 attracting some interest. Nice Mike Deodato artwork and crisp Warren Ellis writing injected new enthusiasm for this title. Though prices are generally static, older back issue interest continues to focus on #134 with the 1st High Evolutionary, #158 for origin facts and a great cover, #165 and #166 in which "Him" appears, not yet called Warlock and issues in the #220's with Galactus and Firelord. #193 remains tough to find in high grade and like Avengers #93, Fantastic Four #116 and Daredevil #81 can suffer from label damage in the top left-hand corner #126 is said by many to be under-rated as it is technically the first issue of Thor as a title. The Simonson issues beginning with #337 have enjoyed a new lease of interest as a rattling good read and more attention has been focused on the first and much under rated Simonson run from #259-271. The planned re-launch of Thor with Image has caused concern rather than excitement

TOMB OF DRACULA

Tomb of Dracula does very well as one of the best 1970s titles with its moody Gene Colan artwork and Marv Wolfman scripts. #1–6 are increasingly hard to find in top shape though #10 with Blade the Vampire Slayer hasn't taken off as well as some thought it might #18 and #50 are worth looking out for and the last issue (#70) is always one to defeat the completists. Check out the availability Dracula Giant Sizes as well and be surprised at their scarcity in the U K.

WARLOCK

This character gained a huge following in the early 1990s and this short-lived series that ran 15 issues between 1972 and 1976 became much sought after. The "Thanos factor", with appearances in #9,#10,#11 and #15, did much to fuel prices though these have showed yet more signs of slowing, certainly falling behind American excesses Issues #10 and #11 have dropped in price in the U.K. Another example of a title rescued from bargain bins of a few years ago, hyped beyond all belief and now settling back to some reasonable, affordable levels. Expect the trend to continue

WEB OF SPIDERMAN

Worth mentioning as it is was cancelled in late 1995 The value of #1 seems to have slipped but early issues generally are up a little #29 and #30 have slipped. #48 is $15.00 in the States, about £4 00 over here in the U.K

WEREWOLF BY NIGHT

And yet another example of bargain bins of yester-year now wall books of many a comic shop. Not quite in the same league as Dracula or Frankenstein but still an attractive set at 43 issues, some common as dirt, others ND and very scarce in the U.K. This title does not seem to have suffered as much as other horror titles in falling back issue sales and the title value is up by about £30 on U K Guide #6

WHAT IF

The first series is approaching 20 years old incredibly and is one to watch. #1 is becoming harder to find in the U K. and the title value as a whole is up by about 15% or so

WOLVERINE

Still as popular as ever, early issues of his main title are difficult to keep in constant stock in U.K shops. #50 still seems to be in plentiful supply (speculators beware) and Sabretooth keeps cropping up to fuel fan interest Interest in the Charleston Chew Bar Wolverine giveaway comic with Sam Kieth cover and art featured has fallen away in price from £10 00 in U.K. Guide #6 to £6 00 here The Limited series seems to be in as much demand as ever before

X-FACTOR

Early issues of X-Factor continue to hold in value #24 is down slightly #40 is static. #60 is up slightly.

X-FORCE

As a more than abundant supply of copies abound the first issue will almost definitely remain static for some time. The preference for the issue #1 with the Cable trading card and thus selling for more in the U.K. marketplace no longer applies. Rather than being the poor relation to the established and new X-Men titles, sales are just as strong, even stronger in some areas of the U.K.

X-MEN

Still number one in just about every category, the X-Men just cannot be ignored as far as volume sales go. Looking back through the 1990s, 1991 was a great year with an incredible 8 million copies supposedly printed of the first issue with its five cover variations, dealers ordered heavily and some sold out, some got stung. There is no doubt that there will be enough copies to supply demand for some considerable time to come. The first issue was well distributed to the U K. newsagents though they suffer from a large and ugly bar code label stuck on the front cover which is very difficult to remove (not advised!). It is not yet fully established whether all distributed copies have these labels but it is thought highly likely. 1992 was also a good year for the X Men with the build-up to #300 and the 30th anniversary celebrations neatly falling into place Gimmick covers again but quite tastefully done on #300 Having Deluxe and Regular editions from #316 to #321 As far as earlier back issues go on the X-Men title, #1 is deservedly over the psychological £2,500 barrier as #94 and Giant Size #1 are likewise over the £200 barrier. These two are very important milestones as far as back issues go. #94 is as difficult as ever to find in Near Mint with that dark/black cover showing the tiniest crease. The Neal Adams issues from #56–#63 and #65 have shown a lot of increased interest #201 with the first appearance of Cyclops' son Nathan (who becomes Cable) has slackened off in demand but that does not mean it turns up with any more frequency. Prices have dropped on this from about £10.00 to £7.50. #248 with the first Jim Lee art on X-Men was in huge demand but slackened off as there seems to be a reasonable supply £7 00 in U.K. Guide #6, £5.00 here and now #268 is in demand for its striking cover as are all Jim Lee and Whilce Portacio art issues. The return of Magneto, the marriage of Scott and Jean and the most recent Age of Apocalypse storyline has kept interest in this title high. There is still the general fan complaint that the sub-plots are too complicated and new fans have trouble just getting into the title though Marvel seem to be addressing this situation. Ones to watch out for though are #150–200 always in demand and supply could be exhausted to dangerous levels in the U K soon. Issues in the #210–250 range seem fairly common in the U.K. and issues #212 and #213 have come down. Expect further falls.

Variety is the spice of life

– or a layman's guide to Variant covers !

by Rick Appleby

Variant a. different -n. difference in form; alternative form of reading

THE ABOVE DEFINITION is courtesy of my pocket dictionary. In comic terms, however the meaning can be somewhat more, especially to the ardent collector.

The "variant cover" theme was arguably kick-started with a different than standard cover on the Image Comics title "Prophet" Volume 1 #4. This variant cover was drawn by the (then) hot artist Stephen Platt. Image in their infinite wisdom decided unannounced to issue this variant cover comic on a basis of 1 copy of the variant cover issue for every 4 copies of the standard issue ordered by your friendly retailer. This had the effect of catching everybody (including myself) totally unaware and the demand for this book led to some amazing price increases.

Under the popular misconception "that there are only 1 in 4 copies of this comic, so it must be rare" the demand and hence the asking price went sky high. The standard cover comic could be bought for around £1.50 whilst the variant cover hit a peak of around £20.00 !!

Image (no doubt encouraged by the commotion and publicity caused by this event) then began to produce more variant covers, again drawn by "hot" artists. Whilce Portacio drew some variant covers which when joined together formed a much larger "poster" of the Wildstorm characters. Again fandom responded to the cause, helped by the fact that most of the titles concerned were more readily available as the ratio was on average about 1:4 (that is one variant for every 4 standard covers). On a side note, it is worth noting that of these Wildstorm cover variants the Deathblow #5 is probably the hardest one to track down. This book still had a variant ratio of 1:4, but unfortunately the U.K did not receive its full delivery of this book. The normal book retails at £3.00 upwards, and the variant can go for anything from £10.00 upwards.

Suddenly, more and more comics were having variant covers produced. Publishers were actively promoting through the main distributors the fact that this or that book has a variant cover and in some cases even cited the ratios! Naturally, the beleaguered dealer, perhaps encouraged by the sales he or she was realising on the more popular variants ordered accordingly. More comics were printed and made available and regrettably to some extent still remain sitting on dealers shelves.

The irony of all this is that variant covers are NOT NEW !! A detailed examination of the listings in this guide will show that there are variant "test" covers for Justice League #3 and Firestorm #61 !!

In order to generate yet more sales on a particular title/issue, it even reached the ludicrous stage whereby it was not uncommon to have a variant ratio of 1:1. The thinking behind this idea being that the fan would buy "both" covers. Who is say which is the standard issue and which is the variant - if indeed one exists !! Does an American "newstand edition" (with UPC barcode) count as a variant ?

I discussed this subject with a close friend who also happens to be an American dealer and he told me that his definition of a "variant cover" was in the instance where there is a distinct "plus one" ratio. That is to say, where a ratio of more than 1:2 + exists. Using this philosophy, the multi covers used on the 2nd series X-MEN #1 would not count as variants, particularly given the huge print run on this (these ?) books.

On the subject of print runs, a 1 in 25 ratio does not necessarily mean that a book is rare, not if it's print run is 500,000 !! In this instance there exists 20,000 copies of the variant cover ! That said, demand dictates price, and even then 20,000 might not be enough.

All of this and I haven't even mentioned the specially produced retailer "thank-you" editions (e.g. Spiderman Platinum) colloquially know as "premiums". There are even examples of retailers producing their own "specials" sometimes for a charitable cause but more often as an "exclusive" offer only available through them. Then there are the American convention "specials" - do these count as variants ?

Taking the issue one step further and referring back to my opening definition, it could be argued that the 60's Marvel 64 page issues (Thor #193) or the 70's Marvel Two-in-One issue drawn sideways on could be variants in their own rights. What about the anniversary issues ? They were not the normal standard, often having larger page counts and / or glow-in-the-dark / embossed / hologram / fifth ink cover which may or may not be polybagged with / without trading card etc. Then there's the old cents vs pence argument - are the 60's Marvel and D.C comics with pence indicas variants, or not ? It's all starting to get somewhat complicated isn't it ? Perhaps, the cruellest irony of all, is that underneath the cover most of the variant cover books have exactly the same story as their "standard" issues!

Each weeks shipment of new comics invariably brings a new variant in one form or another, the popularity of which lasting maybe just as long. At the beginning of this article, I mentioned Prophet #4A from Image Comics with a peak selling price of £20.00. I have two copies of this book on my wall at comic marts at £12.00 each. No one is interested !! It seems that one mans variant cover is another mans poison - or something like that !!

Those of you particularly using this guide for details of variant covers should be aware that because of the time delay between submitting the guide to the printers and retailing to yourselves (2 months), will inevitably result in some variant cover comics not being detailed. It is hoped that these will be included in future updates. However if there are any books which have escaped notice or you feel deserve mention I am sure the authors would be pleased to hear about them. In conclusion, with some variant cover comic books realising prices of £30.00 upwards and many an argument about whether or not it is better to "invest" your money in Silver/Golden age books, it certainly is a case of variety being the spice of life .!

CRISIS ON INFINITE EARTHS

Cross-over series that re-shaped the continuity problems of the DC universe that had developed over four decades The number of different planet Earths each with their own heroes started with the story in Flash #123 that saw the Silver Age Flash (Barry Allen) meet his Golden Age Flash counter-part (Jay Garrick) Thereafter the Golden Age heroes were said to exist on Earth II Further complications followed introducing other groups of heroes and complicated plot lines This series resolved to combine all the various Earths into one and a number of heroes died as a result It was seen at the time as a great clearing-out process by DC and represents a water-shed in their history [illegible] had (appropriately) an almost infinite number of cross-overs listed below in alphabetical rather than chronological order

CRISIS ON INFINITE EARTHS - THE EARTH INDEX

Over the years, DC had built up a very complex set of universes and thus very complex continuity problems which was the main reason for having their "clearout" Prior to the events of the mini-series, the known Earths of the DC Universe are as follows

Earth 1 - where the DC super-heroes and characters from the Silver Age onwards are based All stories unless otherwise stated from cover date September 1956 (ie Showcase #4) take place on Earth 1

Earth 2 - where the DC super-heroes and characters from the Golden Age to just before the beginning of the Silver Age are based. All stories from cover date June 1938 (ie Action Comics #1) to about 1955/56 take place on Earth 2

Earth 3 - very similar in make-up to Earth 1 but the only super powered beings are in The Crime Syndicate of America (Ultraman Super Woman Johnny Quick Owl Man and Power Ring) Alexander Luthor is the only (short-lived) super-hero and his son, Alex Luthor, escaped to Earth 1

Earth 4 - inhabited by the Charlton Comics characters. These are Captain Atom, Blue Beetle Nightshade Thunderbolt, Son of Vulcan, Peacemaker and The Question

Earth 5 - to my knowledge, an Earth 5 has never been mentioned

Earth 6 inhabited by a super powered family comprising Lord Volt, Lady Quark and their daughter Princess Fern

Earth S - inhabited by the Shazam family of characters These are principally Captain Marvel, Mary Marvel Captain Marvel Junior

Earth X a world where the Second World War lasted 40 years and becomes the home of The Freedom Fighters (The Ray, Black Condor, Phantom Lady, Uncle Sam Human Bomb and Doll Man - all Golden Age heroes

Earth Quality a world that also has Freedom Fighter counter parts plus Kid Eternity, The Spirit, Lady Luck and Mr Mystic

Earth B a world created by DC editorial staff to allow for the many inconsistencies in Brave and the Bold and World's Finest stories It is named after "The 3 B's" editor Murray Boltinoff and writers Bob Haney and E Nelson Bridwell The mini-series DC Challenge takes place here

Earth C - inhabited by DC's "funny animals" such as Captain Carrot and co

Earth C Minus - a world discovered by Captain Carrot in his civilian identity of cartoonist Rodney Rabbit where living versions of the cartoon characters he created announced they were from

Earth Prime - the "real" world where super-heroes only exist as comic book characters
